COMMANDER BYRD in the Antartic, temperature 40 degrees below zero, picks up radio messages from the Zeppelin. It is now a fact that a man on any part of the earth can talk to another on any other part of the earth.

Plans for the Zeppelin's reception on the California coast remind you of receptions for important personages in cities. Ten navy planes, clearing away air traffic, made way for the Zeppelin, as motorcycle policemen clear street traffic to make way for personages.

CLEVELAND, one of the nation's most important air centers, welcomes fliers to the national air races and aeronautical exposition.

One thousand airplanes have already brought visitors to the city. Cleveland's magnificent municipal airport is a great asset.

MISS JULIA HANLON, 71 years old, has worked 64 of her 71 years in the Wamsutta cotton mills of New Bedford.

Eighty-seven years ago the late Albert Brisbane asked good New Englanders demanding abolition of Negro slavery why they did not begin by abolishing slavery of white women and girls in their own cotton mills.

The question apparently might be repeated in 1929.

A child put to work at the age of seven and still working in the same mill, 64 years later, seems fairly close to slavery.

The mill owners say that Julia Hanlon would be unhappy if she were not busy.

MORE bad news from Jerusalem, 47 killed in a riot, Arabs driven into the suburbs by British forces after attacking all Jews.

American Jews in Palestine urgently request that a United States warship be sent. The British government, responsible for Palestine conditions under a mandate, takes the Arab uprising seriously. Two war vessels and troops from Egypt are sent, with plenty of ammunition.

CONTROL of 600,000 Arabs, apparently bent on exterminating or driving out the Jewish population only one-tenth their number, is not easy.

TROUBLE between Arabs and Jews started when Arabs received permission to begin building operations near the remnant of the Temple of Jerusalem, close to the Wailing Wall.

The building is alleged to interfere with prayers of Jewish pilgrims and the wailing that recalls the destruction of the temple more than 1,800 years ago.

ON THE eve of the Jewish Sabbath, the Jewish population was attacked by mobs of Arab peasants from the countryside, armed with clubs and daggers. Arabs possess few modern weapons. The Jewish population is said to be well armed. All business has ceased in Jerusalem and martial law is declared, civilians not allowed on the streets after 6:30 in the evening.

IN HER last article, "The Inside of Prohibition," Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt "admits" that prohibition is not being effectively enforced.

The existence of 32,000 speakeasies in the City of New York, admitted by the police commissioner, adds confirmation to Mrs. Willebrandt's admission.

"YIELD my demands," says Russia to China, "or prepare for war." Europe exclaims: "What Bolshevik brutality!" But what Russia says to China now is what "respectable" European nations have been saying to China for a generation.

THE Chinese-Russian situation is complicated by the presence of "White Russia" advocates of Czarism, enemies of the Soviets, with Chinese troops. This causes intense excitement among Russian workers and Russian peasants. The latter know that the "White Russians" include those that once owned land that Bolshevism has given to the peasants.

DR. WYNNE, New York's health commissioner, warns ladies that cheap lipsticks may be poisonous. Especially important is the warning against poisons in inferior hair dyes and other semi-medicinal preparations. This interests those that drink such things in lieu of whisky.

21 INJURED AS BIG BUS CRASHES

Tree Stops Skidding Machine On Verge of 35-Foot Fall; Rush Vctims to Hospitals

Twenty-one passengers of a Cleveland-to-Pittsburgh eastbound Yelloway bus were injured when it swerved from the roadway in Center avenue, Emsworth, early today, snapped off a pole, felled a tree and stopped on the brink of a 35-foot embankment.

About 30 passengers were in the bus, according to several of the injured. Every seat was occupied. Many were dozing when the crash came.

Sixteen of the injured were taken to the Allegheny General Hospital and one to the Suburban General Hospital, Bellevue. Others were treated by physicians near the scene of the accident. None was seriously hurt, according to hospital attendants.

TREE PREVENTS PLUNGE

A locust tree, broken off by the impact, saved the bus from plunging down the embankment into a wooded ravine, passengers and Emsworth police said.

The injured are:

WILTSHIRE, MRS. LOUISE, 29, of 964 Pine street, Camden, N. J.; cut on head, left ankle sprained, bruised.

BRITISH REFUSE HAGUE OFFER

THE HAGUE, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, informed the other four creditor powers today, that their new proposals did not satisfy the British claims and in their present form were unacceptable.

The representatives of the four powers concerned, France, Belgium, Italy and Japan, soon after began consideration of Chancellor Snowden's rejection of their offer.

This offer was understood to meet 60 per cent of the reparation demands originally made by Snowden to his fellow delegates in The Hague conference.

TOWBOAT PILOT SHOOTS BOY IN SKIFF

Power Boat Captain Sees Brothers Stealing Ride in Boat, Opens Fire on Them

Firing from his pilot house, O. J. Roush, owner and pilot of a gasoline towboat, wounded one of two brothers stealing a ride in his skiff in the Monongahela River, opposite South Tenth street, today, police reported.

SKIPPER ARRESTED

Roush, 50, whose home is in Sistersville, W. Va., was arrested later on his boat tied at the foot of Short street.

"I saw the boys in my skiff and shot to frighten them," Roush told police, they said. "I took an old shotgun from the pilot house and pointed it at the boat. I wasn't sure it was loaded."

After firing one shot Roush veered his towboat alongside the skiff, he told police. He towed the skiff ashore, then returned to his towboat, "Indian No. 2."

SHOT AT 30 FEET

Bystanders on the bank sent the wounded lad to the hospital and notified police.

George Paton, 12, brother of Peter, told police they had untied the skiff from its mooring place in the river near the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Station and were pulling toward the south shore when spied by Roush, who blazed away when the skiff was only 30 feet away, the boy said.

2 DROP 125 FEET IN AUTO CRASH

Struck by a hit-and-run driver Sunday on Southern avenue, near Boggs avenue, Mt. Washington, James Scheifer, 23, of 96 Prospect street, and his uncle, George Shaffer, 42, of Cleveland, were hurled over a 125-foot cliff into Saw Mill Run boulevard.

Mt. Washington police say the coach driver by Scheifer was struck by a sedan going in the opposite direction, ran on the curb and over the cliff. The injured men were removed to the South Side hospital in a taxicab, suffering bruises and probable internal injuries. They are expected to recover. The machine was wrecked.

KLINE LEADING STRAW VOTE

The first tally of returns in the mayoralty straw vote poll of Pittsburgh, conducted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, gives Mayor Charles H. Kline a slight lead over President of Council James F. Malone, with Judge Richard W. Martin a strong third.

The three candidates for the Republican nomination are given an initial standing in the poll by the first votes as follows:

Kline	138
Malone	125
Martin	98

The returns are from a group of downtown and East End wards and represent but a small proportion of the thousands of ballots mailed into the sectors casting the first votes.

The division of the votes between men and women in this tally is as follows: Kline, 93 men and 45 women; Malone, 88 men and 37 women; Martin, 64 men and 34 women.

Returns are coming in rapidly in an increasing volume, indicating the public interest in the canvass. The poll is extended today to the two largest wards in the city, the Fourteenth and Nineteenth, which experienced a record registration last fall.

RUTH NICHOLS OUT OF RACE

BULLETIN.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Fourteen contestants in the women's national air derby hopped off from Port Columbus today on the last lap of the race from Santa Monica to Cleveland.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Ruth Nichols, of Rye, N. Y., one of the contestants in the women's aerial derby, was slightly hurt today when her Rearwin plane struck a tractor and turned over when she was landing following a test flight at Port Columbus. The plane was damaged to such an extent that Miss Nichols was forced to withdraw from the derby.

Victory seemingly was within the grasp of Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden, of Pittsburgh.

The Pittsburgh aviatrix had an advantage of 1 hour and 3 minutes over her nearest rival, Gladys O'Donnell, of Long Beach, Cal., in the standing of elapsed time for all legs of the cross-country flight.

Cleveland is less than two hours away by plane route.

The takeoff from Port Columbus for the non-stop flight to Cleveland was postponed until 1:15 p. m. at the request of airport officials.

The leaders:

Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden, Pittsburgh, 19:35:04.

Ruth Nichols, Rye, N. Y., 21:15:45.

Amelia Earhart, Boston, 21:17:37.

Hoover Returns, Son, Ill, Stays in Camp

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—President Hoover returned to the White House at 10:15 a. m. today from a week-end at his camp on the Rapidan River in Virginia.

The Chief Executive was accompanied by Mrs. Hoover and the guests he had with him over the week-end. Allan Hoover, the younger of the two sons of the President and Mrs. Hoover, remained at the camp where he is recuperating from a stomach ailment.

MILLION HAIL DIRIGIBLE AT END OF 79-HOUR DASH FROM TOKIO

By WILLIAM PARKER
International News Service Special Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—Finally completing its 5,400-mile flight from Japan to Los Angeles, the third leg of its cruise around the world, the Graf Zeppelin today settled safely here at 5:18 a. m. (9:18 a. m. Pittsburgh daylight time).

Scarcely had the giant dirigible been safely landed here than preparations were being rushed for its departure tonight at 11 p. m., Pacific coast time, for Lakehurst, N. J., on the final leg of its round-the-world cruise.

Two reasons prompted decision for the quick departure from Los Angeles, Com. Hugo Eckener said.

"We need only 5,000 cubic meters of fuel gas," he explained.

"Our second reason is that we want to establish a record nonstop flight across the country and make a day landing at Lakehurst, N. J. We hope to reach Lakehurst 36 hours or less after leaving Mines Field."

The mighty monarch of the air had made its appearance over Los Angeles at 1:50 a. m., Pacific coast time (5:50 a. m. Pittsburgh time).

Cruises Over Los Angeles

From that time onward it cruised over Los Angeles and vicinity at an approximate speed of 60 miles an hour rather than hazard a night landing.

Many false alarms that the Zeppelin was "coming down" were voiced by the crowd when the Goodyear baby blimp Volunteer circled lower over the field during the night.

The entire journey of the Graf, Tokio to Los Angeles, was completed in 79 hours, 5 minutes.

The Graf Zeppelin was safely moored to its mast after 21 minutes of maneuvering at 5:39 o'clock this morning (9:39 o'clock Pittsburgh daylight time).

Militia Surrounds Zep

Detachments of Marines in white khaki looked ghostlike through the thinning fog. Sailors, in blue denim, ran aft to place the dolly under the rear gondola.

A detachment of state militia, in marching formation, came out from behind the administration building and marched directly toward the great ship, with the purpose of surrounding and keeping overcurious spectators from rushing between the landing crew.

In bringing the ship to earth, Dr. Eckener nosed the forward gondola within 50 feet of the ground, the rear protruding in the air.

There was nothing visible to the eye to indicate any damage was suffered in the storm it had encountered en route from Japan.

Acclaimed by 1,000,000 Persons

Thus far the great aircraft has traveled on its round-the-world journey 16,480 miles, and has approximately 2,500 miles to go.

Less than 48 hours more of flying time should find it safely in a hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., the point of origin of the flight.

A crowd estimated at more than 500,000 persons in the immediate vicinity of the mile-square field waited all day yesterday and through the chill hours of the night to be on hand for the Zeppelin's descent here.

Another half million persons were watching in nearby towns and fields.

When it was tied to the mooring mast a tumult of sirens, automobile horns and shouts sounded from far and near.

As the first rays hearlding the coming of dawn appeared in the east, 1,000,000 pair of eyes scanned the horizon for a daylight view of the elongated balloon.

Graf Sends Greetings To W. R. Hearst

From the Graf Zeppelin, speeding over the Pacific, greetings to William Randolph Hearst were radioed last night by Karl von Wiegand, correspondent of the Hearst newspapers aboard the dirigible. The message, received by KUP, the Los Angeles Examiner's wireless station, read:

"William Randolph Hearst, Los Angeles, Cal.,

"Twenty-two hundred feet above the Pacific, 1,800 miles off Cape Mendocino, racing along at more than 80 miles an hour, I take pleasure in reporting to you complete success so far of this incomparable achievement, the Hearst round-the-world flight.

"Dr. Eckener, Lady Drummond Hay and Capt. Wilkins join me in greetings from first Friedrichshafen-to-Japan-to-America trans-Pacific flight, which your journalistic enterprise made possible."

These pictures show the 125-foot plunge experienced by Jomes Scheifer, 23, and George Shaffer, 42, Cleveland, when their auto was forced off Southern avenue, Mt. Washington, by a hit-and-run driver. Although the car was smashed (bottom) neither man was killed.

LINER ENDS 79-HOUR FLIGHT

In the dim, hazy distance over the sun-browned hills surrounding the mile-square field a tiny moving speck appeared at 4:57 a. m. (8:47 Pittsburgh daylight time).

"There she is again!" It was as though the 500,000 spectators had raised their voices in unison, like a great trained choir.

It marked the epochal crossing of the Pacific by a dirigible and wrote down in history man's challenge to the capricious forces of nature and a triumph over the treacherous air currents of the vast ocean.

The successful flight over the Pacific brought vividly to mind to airmen the loss of seven lives of intrepid airplane fliers who had sought before to cross its watery wastes from the mainland to Hawaii.

Mob Storms Guards

On four sides, outside the field, a surging crowd, men, women and children on tension from long hours of waiting moved relentlessly on the hundreds of state militiamen, sheriff's deputies and Los Angeles police to storm the field for a close-up view when the Zeppelin came to earth. Sturdy steel poles and heavy mesh wire held back the mob.

Within the field, 376 sailors and marines who had been "at ease" snapped to attention at the sharp command of Lieut. Commander T. G. W. Settle, U. S. N., and scurried with clocklike precision to their appointed tasks.

Coming swiftly at first, the Zeppelin then cut down its speed and drifted overhead like a giant bug, pausing as though in indecision whether to come down. It had flown over the field three times during the night, the first time at 1:50 o'clock, again at 3:20 and once more at 3:25.

The great bug's curiosity and timidity presumably were satisfied by sight of a landing flag of red and white painted on the ground, to show the direction of the wind.

Ballast Let Go

The Zeppelin loosed a flood of water ballast and began slowly to sink earthward.

What looked, even through binoculars, to be a mere thread in comparison with the huge bulk, dropped down from the nose of the Zeppelin unrolling as it fell.

It was one of the Zeppelin's "spiders," each a rope with numerous strands flying free for the ground crew to grasp.

Forty United States Navy men, long ago trained for any emergency and carefully drilled for this momentous occasion, stretched their arms upward, each striving first to grab a rope. Other "spiders" began dropping, forward, aft and from the center of the silvered belly of the aerial monster.

Hundreds of hands tightened on the "spiders."

The Zeppelin stopped swaying. It was drawn closer to the earth.

'Walked' to Mast

"All fast!" called the "dolley" crew.

A forward movement was started and the Zeppelin was "walked" three-quarters of a mile across the field to the mooring mast 60 feet tall, which had been brought to Los Angeles especially for the Zeppelin's landing from the United States navy flying field at North Island, San Diego, Cal.

At the Administration Building Dr. Eckener and other distinguished passengers were officially welcomed to the United States by Gov. C. C. Young, of California, and Mayor John C. Porter, of Los Angeles, and a committee of prominent residents as well as army and navy officials.

Gov. Young, Mayor Porter and the committee had remained awake all night at the airport to be on hand for their mission.

Sir Hubert Wilkins, famed explorer, had a smile that was almost a beam of joy as he greeted newspapermen.

"A very marvelous trip. A wonderful experience!" he declared.

Herbert Hoover, Jr., who flew here from Kansas City, Mo., went aloft in a plane and flew 60 miles north in an attempt to broadcast the Zeppelin's arrival over low-wave set. He was unable, he said on returning to the field, to contact with the ship.

The arrival of the Zeppelin was broadcast from Mines Field and picked up by low-wave length stations in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Schenectady, N. Y., for re-broadcasting to Germany and Europe generally, South America, Australia and Japan.

The preferable route for the Zeppelin on its Los Angeles-to-Lakehurst flight, Hugh Allen, American representative of the Zeppelin Company, said would be southward through Arizona, crossing the Colorado River at Yuma. From that point onward the Zeppelin will pass over El Paso and Fort Worth, Tex. At Fort Worth a mooring mast has been set up in the event it is necessary to make a forced landing.

The Graf Zeppelin then will continue on over Birmingham, Ala., Atlanta and Richmond, and in a "bee-line" to Lakehurst.

Refueling operations were begun within an hour after the Graf Zeppelin had come to rest at Mines Field. The refueling will be completed easily by 8 o'clock tonight, Lieut. Comamnder T. G. W. Settle, U. S. Navy dirigible expert promised officers of the Zeppelin.

"It has been the policy of Dr. Eckener to move as quickly as refueling and weather conditions would permit," E. A. Winkler, Pacific coast representative of the Hamburg-American line, American passenger agent for the Zeppelin, explained. "There is no other reason for the departure of the Zeppelin tonight."

Over Sea in 68 Hours

By ELLIS H. MARTIN.
International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—Tokio to San Francisco in 68 hours. This was the latest record hung up by the record-smashing, globe-circling air liner Graf Zeppelin.

When the huge dirigible poked her blunt nose through the Golden Gate at 6:15 last evening it has brought Japan and the United States into neighborship approximating that existing between Atlantic and Pacific seaboards of America where 72-hour train-and-plane service exists.

Meeting the Pacific at its worst mood at one place soon after the coast of Japan had been left behind, the Zeppelin not only conquered the elements but shattered even the fondest hopes of its navigators for time in passage.

The Graf left Tokio at 10:13, Pacific coast time, Thursday night and, following the shorter Northern circle route, had hoped to make the Pacific coast near Seattle in 72 hours. Nine days is fast steamer time by the shortest route—Yokohama to Victoria.

Speed Phenomenal

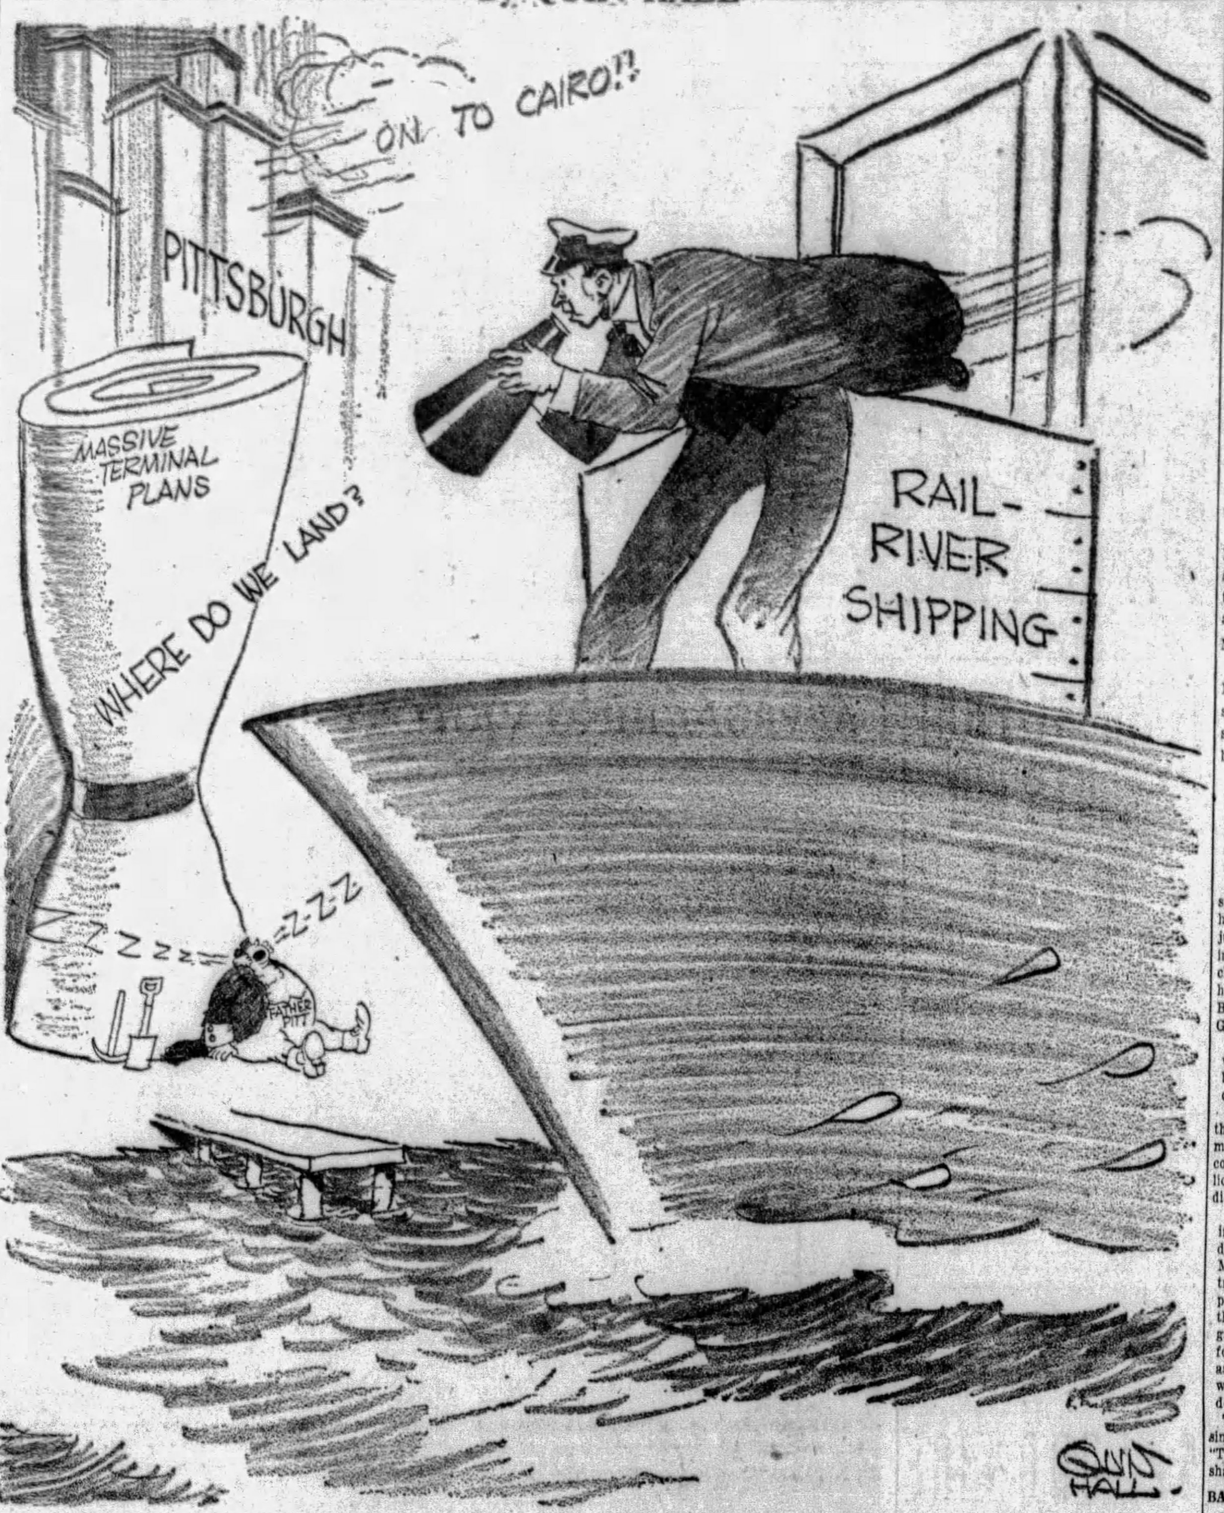
Forced southward over a much longer route, the Graf not only made the passage in three days but lopped four hours off that expected minimum.

The speed of the Graf was especially phenominal the last 24 hours of its race across the Pacific. Those charting the progress could scarcely credit the radio reports which came at frequent intervals as they lopped off degrees of longitude in much the same manner that a speedy train traverses miles.

Golden Gate famed in verse and story has probably never been the setting for a more remarkable scene than that spread before the eyes of countless thousands who lined the promontories as the Graf swept in over the narrows with nearly a hundred airplanes hovering overhead in much the same manner that seagulls flutter high over the ferry boats that ply San Francisco Bay.

GREAT OPPORTUNITY—LITTLE ACTION

By QUIN HALL



For fifty years Pittsburgh has been blasting the battle cry of "On to Cairo." The nine-foot channel, 9,000 mile waterway link-up is complete. Other cities are furnishing adequate docking facilities. Pittsburgh is still befogged with massive plans. It's time to start collecting dividends on those years of battle crying.

Man Electrocutes Self on Power Line

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Missing since last Monday, the body of George Cornwell, of the Department of Agriculture in Goshen High school, was found beneath power lines on a mountain near here, evidently a suicide by electrocution.

Stephen Hatch, 15, one of a party of 15 searchers, found the body. It is believed Cornwell climbed a tower of the high tension power lines and electrocuted himself.

'Murder' Mystery Called Suicide

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 26.—County detectives believe the shooting which resulted in the death of Leon Rotto, 24, of Burgettstown, was self-inflicted, although unable to account for the gun being missing.

Rotto was found dead in his coupe a short distance off a side road near Muse, a mining town close to Canonsburg. He had been shot through the heart.

Connecticut Seeks Factory For Prison

WETHERSFIELD.—(INS.) — Directors of the Connecticut State Prison here are looking for a proper manufacturing business to succeed the ancient shirt making industry that for decades has kept the prisoners' minds occupied. The Cooper-Hart federal act has put an end to the shirt making industry behind the prison walls. Just at present the prison board is making a survey of the state to determine what manufacturing may be carried on in the future.

DR. BLESSING QUITS POST TO AID MALONE

Civil Service Member Sends Resignation to Mayor; 'Regular' Title Battle On

Dr. F. C. Blessing today resigned his post as a member of the Civil Service Commission to take an active part in the campaign for Councilman James F. Malone and the other candidates on the "Regular Republican" ticket.

He gave that reason for his resignation in a letter sent today to Mayor Charles H. Kline.

The resignation of Dr. F. H. Frederick from the same commission to take the chairmanship of the Kline campaign committee was announced Saturday.

MARTIN ANSWERS ATTACKS

Attacks made upon him by Malone and by B. Robert Averback, speaking for Mayor Kline, were answered in an address at noon today by Judge Richard W. Martin.

"The Mayor himself should make a real reply to my charges," he said. "The reply of a spokesman for the city administration cannot meet the charges nor fix the responsibility."

Referring to the fact that both speakers had suggested that he himself should have called a grand jury investigation of racketeering in Pittsburgh, Judge Martin declared that such an investigation had been instituted by Judge James B. Drew and that the Federal Grand Jury also investigated.

"Both revealed the condition which I assert existed in Pittsburgh—political protection of crime," he said.

Judge Martin again demanded that Malone explain why he remained silent as a member of council and did not attack the police system until he became a candidate.

"Mr. Malone says that he did interest himself in this matter during the administration of Mayor Magee," he said, "It is true that he tried to make some political capital out of the fact that the Euterpe Club ran as a gambling house in the East End for a short time. He knows that as city solicitor I had nothing whatever to do with the police department."

Taxes have increased 26 per cent since 1925, declared Martin, adding "The mayor and Mr. Malone must share part of this responsibility."

BATTLE FOR 'REGULARITY'

Signs inside and outside Hotel Henry point to the headquarters of "the Regular Republican Organization" supporting Mayor Kline.

Signs in the lobby of the William Penn Hotel direct visitors to the headquarters of "the Regular Republican Organization" supporting Councilman Malone.

H. B. Lewis, 530 North Euclid avenue, one of the few living Pittsburghers who was present at the founding of the Republican party in 1856, objects to either group using that name.

"I object to the pre-empting of the name 'Regular Republican' by Senator Max Leslie or any other combination of politicians," he said. "I protest against his group or any other group attempting to copyright the name 'Regular Republican.'"

BACKS MARTIN

Mr. Lewis is supporting Judge Richard W. Martin for mayor.

THEIR PLANS

1. The formal announcement of John A. Fugassi as a councilmanic candidate on the Malone slate, his statement demanding "a reorganization of the police department in its present form," and promising support of legislation encouraging new industries, a more beautiful city and development of the youth of the city.

2. Announcement from the Kline Regular Republican headquarters that John M. Haverty will speak over KDKA at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening and that the Mayor and other candidates on the slate will address a meeting in Shadeland School, Twenty-seventh Ward, the same night.

3. Announcement from the Martin headquarters that Jacob Yeager, local chairman of the Brotherhood of Railroad Telegraphers, has been named head of a committee of railroaders working in Martin's interests.

4. Announcement from the Martin headquarters that the judge will speak at four large rallies before the primary, the first to be held Thursday evening in North Side Carnegie Hall, with L. B. Seefried as chairman and Lee C. Beatty as another speaker.

5 Announcement from the Kline headquarters that Benjamin L. Steinberg has been appointed secretary of the meetings' and speakers' committee.

6. Announcement from the Martin headquarters that the judge will speak at 3:30 today in the home of Mrs. Arthur B. Siviter, 6427 Kentucky avenue, and at 7:15 tonight over KDKA.

7. In the third of a series of radio talks, the Rev. A. V. B. Hightower, Negro candidate for Council, will speak over Station KQV Monday night at 7:30 on "The Preservation of Womanhood." On Thursday evening at the same hour, Rev. Hightower will make another campaign speech.

Coast-to-Coast Record Made With Load

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Capt. Roscoe Turner with four passengers on a speed flight from New York landed his monoplane here yesterday afternoon after a terrific battle with fog and storms which finally exhausted his fuel supply and forced him down at Tulare, Cal., before he reached Los Angeles.

Capt. Turner left New York at 6:21:21 Eastern daylight time, ending the hop here 23 hours 59 minutes and 42 seconds later. Four stops were made to refuel.

The journey completed a flight to New York last Tuesday and established the fastest times ever made over the continent for a loaded passenger plane. The elapsed time to New York was 19:51:04 which included four stops.

Youth Sues Over Injuries by Auto

BEAVER, Pa., Aug. 26.—Alex Kozel, a minor, through his father, Steve Kozel, of Ambridge, has entered suit for $5,000 damages against Joseph Boda, Jr., of Ambridge. It is charged the youth was run down and injured by defendant's automobile on October 2, 1927.

RACE FLIERS DRAW NEAR CLEVELAND

Five Derby Flights Converge On Headquarters; Graf Zep May Be Thursday Feature

Associated Press.

Here's a bird's-eye view of the national air races, centering in Cleveland, as they stand today:

SCHOENHAIR OFF

BOWYER LEADS MIAMIANS

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—C. D. Bowyer, of Westfield, N. J., led the Miami-Cleveland derby pilots into Nashville from Birmingham today, landing his Cessna at 10:31:9.

G. E. Halsey, of Buffalo, N. Y., came in second, nosing his ship to the judges' line at 10:34:34. Earl Rowland, of Jackson, Ill., was the third in his Cessna, which he landed at 10:37:03. C. E. Myers, of Cleveland; Les Bowman, of Kansas City; R. E. Dake, of Pittsburgh, and C. A. Burrows, of Los Angeles, landed their ships in rapid succession.

WARREN OFF FOR OMAHA

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—D. C. Warren, of Oakland, Cal., got away first here today in the Oakland-Cleveland air derby. He left the field at 9:05 a. m. and was followed at two-minute intervals by five other pilots in the race. The schedule called for a stop at Cheyenne, Wyo., for fuel and lunch before continuing to Omaha to spend the night.

ARMY FLIERS FEATURE

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 26.—Along with the derbies and the closed course races of the national air races, armed air forces of the United States entered the program here today with formation flying, including intricate maneuvers of offense, bombing movements and full power dives used in "trench strafing."

Major John S. Owens, of Philadelphia, won the 10-mile event yesterday from 16 other national guardsmen. His time was 28 minutes, and one second, or an average speed of 149.91 miles per hour.

Only the question of favorable weather prevented outright assurance by American representatives of the Graf Zeppelin that the ship would pass over Cleveland. The Graf's scheduled departure from Los Angeles, Cal., would bring the airship here some time Thursday, it was said.

Winners of today's parachute jumping contest, with the distances they landed from their goal, a white circle on the ground, were:

L. C. Snyder, of Jackson, Mich., 89 feet; Edward Henderson, of Cleveland, 156 feet; M. H. Weiss, of Hampton Roads, Va., 185 feet, and Joe Dunkle, of Cleveland, 218 feet.

The dead stick landing contest, the only other competitive event on the program, was won by Orm Welch, of Anderson, Ind. R. C. Wensinger, of Cleveland, was second; Larry D. Ruch, of Kansas City, third, and Russell Weist, of Cincinnati, fourth.

SUN GOD AT ST. PAUL

CREW OF SUNKEN GERMAN FREIGHTER LOST AT SEA! SIGHTED BY LINER, SAVED

The stranded crew of the old German freighter Quimistan lost at sea! For three days they fought death in this open boat after their ship had sunk 1,000 miles east of Norfolk. This graphic picture which shows the crew pulling towards the liner was taken as the hungry, tired sailors were sighted by the President Harrison.

DONOHOE DEATH REWARD URGED

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 26.—Recommendations of a substantial reward for the arrest and conviction of the killers of John F. Donohoe were made to the grand jury today by Judge Thomas S. Hudson at the opening of the September term of court. Regardless of cost, Judge Hudson asks that every effort be made to apprehend the killers.

A complete investigation of any rum ring and racketeering in Fayette County is asked by the court, with a general cleanup urged.

Judge Hudson, in his charge said:

"Maj. Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of state police, who has had charge of the investigation, is an experienced, capable and determined officer, and we are fortunate in having a man of this type in charge of the investigation. The federal government has also sent a squad of officers into the county who are assisting in the investigation. A vast amount of work has been done by the officers in gathering evidence which should lead to the arrest of those who committed the murder.

"In our opinion, everything that is possible to be done, is being done to ferret out the perpetrators of this crime. Those who committed the crime must be brought to justice."

FLAMES RAGING IN FORESTS

KALISPELL, Mont., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Fires continued to spread through the forests of northwestern Montana and northern Idaho. The great Half Moon fire, which hundreds of men have been fighting, made its way toward the top of the Continental divide in Glacier National Park.

Maj. E. W. Kelley, district forester, who has characterized the situation in the forests as nothing short of a catastrophe, held a conference last night with other forest officials and decided upon a general reorganization of their campaign.

The Sullivan Creek fire, which crossed the south fork of the Flathead River near Twin Creeks, has gone seven miles up the mountains toward the top of the main range.

The Train Creek fire on the north fork is 20 miles long and now is within a half mile of the custom house at Boundary. In the Blackfeet forest a determined stand is being made to divert the fire from a valuable stand of timber at Canyon Creek, 20 miles north of Columbia Falls.

Five men were brought from the fire lines to Kalispell last night to be treated for minor injuries.

3 Bandits Get $45 In Gas Station Raid

Three bandits held up the Rose Service Station on Butler Plank road, Undercliff, early today and escaped with $45. The trio approached the proprietor and, according to a report made to County Detectives Harry Barker and John Carmichael, held him at bay while they took the money from a cash register.

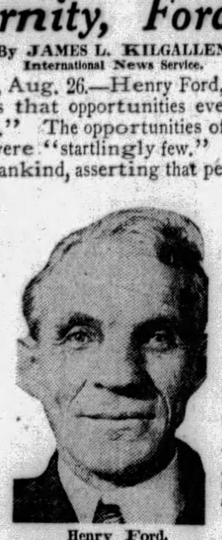
By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Henry Ford, world's richest industrialist, believes that opportunities everywhere "are just beginning to break." The opportunities of 50 years ago compared with today were "startlingly few." He foresees a wonderful future for mankind, asserting that people are just beginning to live.



Henry Ford.

As for himself, Ford has a "supreme mission"—service to his fellowmen. When that service is performed it is "not the end."

"What we call death doesn't end all for us by any means," says Ford in an interview with B. C. Forbes, appearing in the September issue of Forbes magazine.

"I believe that man's experience is not confined to his brief appearance on this earth, but that we are given millions of opportunities in course of our evolution onward and upward through eternity.

"It has taken a long time to bring us where we are. But we will go on and on until we can create things now utterly beyond our ken. As Mr. Edison says, we don't yet know one-millionth of what there is to be known. Practically every field of human endeavor is hungrily demanding research."

Ford also made these observations:

"People who have no time, don't think. The more you think, the more time you have.

"Anyone who spends time with children is distinctly better for it.

"The more alive you are, the more eagerly interested you are in what you're doing, the less sleep you need."

Ford's normal night's sleep is only six hours. He is usually up before 6 o'clock.

Men should not quit work because they are growing old, Mr. Ford told Mr. Forbes. He said the world "needs

"If all the men over 50 got out of the world, there owuld not be enough men left to run it," said Ford. "I prefer to have a good part of my employes not young men. Men from 35 to 60—and in some jobs older—are more desirable.

"Young people say there are no opportunities. Why, the world's opportunities are only beginning to break. Every generation leaves more opportunities than it found. Think of the airplane, electricty, motor transporttation, radio, distributing, merchandising—everything that enters into modern life.

Reported Release Of Capone Denied

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—Reports that "Scarface Al" Capone, Chicago racketeer, now serving a 12-month term in Eastern Penitentiary, would obtain his freedom this week were laughed down by court and prison officials here today.

Capone was sentenced May 16 last to the county jail for carrying concealed weapons. He later was transferred to Eastern Penitentiary. The transfer, however, did not affect his standing as a county prisoner, and as such he cannot appeal to the parole board of the state without the approval of Judge Walsh and the district attorney.

Fifty Planes Due For Airport Opening

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 26.—The airport dedication committee of Milton L. Bishop Post, American Legion, has received word that a squadron of Army observation planes will come here from Mitchel Field, New York, on September 7 for the opening ceremonies, bringing the total of planes now assured to 50. Congressman Samuel A. Kendall was instrumental in securing the formation.

Twenty Arrested As Drunk Freed

Of 23 men arrested on the South Side and West End on the charge of drunkenness, 20 were discharged by Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court yesterday. The other three failed to appear at the hearing and forfeited $5 each.

MARLOWE CLUE SEEN IN ARREST

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Arrest here of Charles Green, Broadway racketeer, under indictment in New York charged with the murder of William Cassidy and Simon Walker, may also throw new light on the slaying of Frank Marlowe, another racketeer, police intimated last night.

They did not make public on what evidence they sought to connect Green with the Marlowe murder.

Green, arrested with his wife, Anna, told police that New Yok racketeers are exploiting a new and fertile field, the kidnaping and blackmail of brokers, which already has netted them more than $1,000,000.

Green was undecided whether to fight extradition to New York. He asked that he be given until today before making a decision to waive extradition, so that he could communicate with his attorney.

$75,000 FIRE AT GREENVILLE

GREENVILLE, Pa., Aug. 26.—Fire swept the adjoining two-story brick buildings occupied by the Murphy Company Five and Ten Cent store and the A. & P. grocery store here early today causing loss estimated at $75,000.

Mrs. J. J. Naman, 65, who with her husband and son occupied an apartment in the rear of the Murphy company building, sounded the alarm. Greenville volunteer firemen battled for three hours. One fireman, Clarence Callahan, was overcome by smoke.

Pair Under Arrest For Theft of Auto

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Aug. 26.—Edgar A. Nelson, 23, of Alberta, Canada, and Julian Kaufman, 24, of San Antonio, Tex., arrested on the New Castle-Youngstown highway by highway patrolmen testing brakes, were unable to establish ownership of their car, bearing a Michigan license. They have been removed to Pittsburgh by John J. Lowers, deputy U. S. marshal. They are charged with stealing and transporting a stolen auto.

Lindy, Bride Fly to Races, Ann Sharing Controls

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here last night to attend the national air races. They landed at a private airport and their presence in the city did not become known until this morning.

The Lindberghs will be house guests of Parmely Herrick, son of the late ambassador to France, during their stay in Cleveland.

Both the Colonel and his wife planned to be regular visitors at the remaining eight days of events of the air race program.

Mrs. Lindbergh was piloting the plane, a small open model.

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh landed at the Bowers Airport on the Sharon-Greenville road late yesterday afternoon when their fuel supply ran low. After filling the tank of their plane they took off without revealing their destination, which was believed to be Cleveland.

GARBAGE FIGHT TRUCE SOUGHT BY EVANS

Controller Asks Ordinance To Insure Fund in Suit; Offers May, June Payment

Controller Henry O. Evans today submitted to City Council an ordinance authorizing a proposed agreement between the city and the American Reduction Company to insure the recovery of $1,200,000 improperly charged to the cost of disposing of garbage and rubbish.

Evans proposed that the company set up $500,000 to be available to the city for any judgments obtained in the city suit to be tried in the October term of court.

He also proposed to have the company refrain from declaring any dividend or sell assets or property without the consent of the controller until the law suit is settled.

Evans also asked the company to withdraw a mandamus seeking to compel the city to pay the company $275,000 claimed for May and June service pending the outcome of the suit.

In consideration the city would agree to pay the service bills for July and subsequent months until the court makes a decision on the city's claims.

TEACHERS OPEN ANNUAL MEET

Twenty-six hundred school teachers of Allegheny County gathered in Memorial Hall today for enrollment in the seventy-ninth annual session of the Allegheny County Teachers' Institute. The program began shortly after noon and will continue until next Friday. Noted educators will instruct the teachers.

Following a devotional exercise directed by the Rev. G. W. Terbush, of the Salem Methodist Episcopal Church, McCandless Township, County Superintendent C. E. Dickey addressed the institute and told the teachers what was expected of them. Dr. Charles Lose, of Montoursville, Pa.; Dr. Frederic W. Maroney, director of health education of Atlantic City, N. J.; Dr. A. H. Harrop, of Albion College, Albion, Mich., and Dr. Arthur MacMurray, of Indianapolis, were among today's speakers.

With morning and afternoon lectures during the remaining days of the week, the institute will close Friday with a business session.

20 AMERICANS IN HOLY LAND RIOTS SLAIN

Death Toll Grows; British Rush Troops to Suppress Disturbance by Arabs

JERUSALEM, Aug. 26.—Twenty American Jewish students were among the 70 Jews killed in fighting with Moslems at Hebron, according to information received here this afternoon.

Order has been restored at Hebron.

VICTIMS IDENTIFIED

JERUSALEM, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Among the students killed yesterday at Hebron, 20 miles south of Jerusalem, were these Americans:

Messrs. Wexler, Greenberg and Epstein, of Chicago; Berman and Hurwitz, of New York, and another student named Scheinberg. Two brothers named Arbater were wounded. The American consul motored today to Hebron to investigate conditions there.

"OPEN REVOLT"

Severe fighting between Arabs and Jews over rights of religious worship at the Wailing Wall spread today into remote quarters of Palestine after terrorizing Jerusalem and its environs with three days of bloodshed.

Twelve American Jewish students were on the death roll.

Massacres were reported at Haifa, where a troop train was attacked by Arabs this morning. Fighting continued in the center of the town with three persons killed and many wounded, but Jewish defenders beat off Arab attacks from the Mount Carmel suburb.

At Jaffa last night Arabs attacked in force the government offices. They were driven off. Five persons were killed and 30 wounded.

It was persistently rumored in London that Lord Reading, influential Jewish nobleman, would be charged with a special mission in Palestine. He held a conference with Premier MacDonald.

JEWS ACT

All members of the Zionist executive committee were summoned to London for an emergency session. Louis Lipsky, president of the Zionist organization of America, will represent American Jewish interests.

British warships and troops were rushed to Palestine from all strategic points in the Mediterranean.

From Cairo, Egypt, it was reported casualties were greater than was indicated in news dispatches.

HOLMES, JOHN F., 21, of Turtle Creek; right wrist sprained.

DRIVER ARRESTED

Driver Cheek was arrested by Emsworth police after he had been treated by Dr. E. H. Sloan, 7435 Church avenue, Ben Avon, for lacerations of lips and head. He was then taken to the hospital.

"I was driving towards Pittsburgh from Cleveland," Cheek said. "In Center avenue near Plummer avenue, Emsworth, I attempted to make a right turn. The steering mechanism locked. Neither the steering wheel nor the front wheels would move. I stepped on the airbrakes but they didn't operate quickly.

"I hit a pole, knocking it over and came to a stop when the car struck a tree. If it had not been for the tree we would have gone over the embankment."

A boy, uninjured, with a pet canary in a cage, was aided through a window of the bus to the street following the crash.

SPEED BLAMED

Failure of the bus to negotiate a sharp right curve when the big car was running under full headway was declared by the passengers to have caused the wreck.

"The brakes locked when they were applied to break the speed," said Theodore Ember, 15, of 2328 Bryant avenue, Baltimore, Md., "and the bus seemed to slide off the road and into a telegraph pole. Every seat in the bus was taken and the passengers were thrown forward in a heap. Many of the people were asleep and were bumped against the fronts of the seats or tossed into the aisle of the bus.

"When the bus hit the pole there was a shower of broken glass and nearly all of the passengers sustained cuts about the faces and hands. With my sister I was seated near the rear and suffered only slight cuts and sprains. The passengers who were more seriously injured were seated immediately behind the driver."

"I hugged my baby closely in my arms when the bus gave a sharp jerk and then slid forward," said Mrs. Eleanor Druhloski, of Cairnbrook, Pa., who was traveling from Cleveland with her infant son, Francis. "I was thrown against the side of the car and suffered a bruise on the head that stunned me. When I realized what had happened the baby was screaming and there was blood oozing from a cut on his forehead. The other passengers were crying for help and trying to untangle themselves from the twisted seats."

Mexican Beauty, Victim Of Bigamy, Kills Mate

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Senora Marie Teresa de Landa de Vidal, "Miss Mexico," in the 1928 Galveston beauty contest, was in a prison cell today, having shot and killed her husband, Gen. Moises Vidal.

After reading in a newspaper that she and Gen. Vidal were to be arrested for bigamy, she procured his heavy army pistol and turned it on him, firing six shots which killed him almost instantly.

She then turned the gun at her own head, but its magazine was empty.

Police arriving found her prone on the body of her husband, crying hysterically: "I loved him dearly!"

She told them the newspaper article was the first intimation she had Vidal was married already when he courted her and won her heart after she had failed to win the Galveston contest.

The first Senora de Vidal, Maria Teresa Herrejon, lived in Cosamaloapan, Vera Cruz, with their two daughters. She became suspicious of her husband's long absences, suspecting his duplicity. She then filed charges of bigamy.

The story was published in Mexico newspapers Saturday, but was seen only yesterday by the young wife, who was 24 years old. She handed the paper to the general, with instructions to read, while she went into his room and obtained his pistol.

Under Mexican law both he and she might have been sent to prison for the bigamous marriage.

GLOBE CIRCLING FEATS OF PAST DIMMED BY ZEP FLIGHT

Lady Hay Writes Gripping History of Continental Linking Ventures

By LADY DRUMMOND HAY
Only Woman Passenger on Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World-Flight.

ABOARD GRAF ZEPPELIN, Over San Francisco, Aug. 26.—Trackless adventure through pathless space—a new trail blazed by the meteor-like Zeppelin, swiftly, jealously erased by outranged air gods frantic to redeem presumptuous human trespass.

But the glory of our meteor blazoning the "golden riband of the air" is not so easily dimmed. Footsteps in the sand, ships' paths upon the ocean, Zeppelin's passage through the air, even though they do not register in or upon the elements, are writ indelibly upon memory's tablets, logbook of accomplishment, and history's scroll of fame.

Lady Hay

Official landing of the Graf was set for 4:30 a. m., subject to change when the Zeppelin actually arrived over Los Angeles.

The announcement of the mooring time was made late last midnight by F. W. von Meister, representative of the Zeppelin company, who explained that the definite decision would be made by Com. Hugo Eckener upon his arrival about midnight.

Blazing Trail.

In vain Boreas and Zephyr blow with fury or charm with soft caress. Stronger than tempestuous gusts from the cave of Eolus, obliterating at Zeus' thundering command our new-made highway through the airy element, will be the arms of strong men piloting, navigating aircraft in our wake, keeping open and widening our pioneer track.

For the first time in the history of mankind upon this earth, the continent of Asia and the Pacific Ocean have been conquered from the air.

Columbus, Magellan, Vasco Da Gama, Capt. Cook and Capt. Peary conquered oceans and brought unknown continents in touch with civilization in their respective generations. Marco Polo and David Livingstone, heroes and heroines of the covered wagon days, opened up dark continents to the world and introduced the yellow man, the black man and the red man to his white brother.

The Zeppelin has pioneered across two oceans and two continents, bringing America and Europe within 42 hours of each other, Europe—Berlin and the outward fringe of the Far East—Tokio—within 93 hours of each other, Japan and San Francisco within 70 hours of each other. The Zeppelin has drawn the world together in 224 hours and 24 minutes, linking New York with Europe and the American Pacific coast with the Far East. Compared with the 1,083 days taken by Magellan's expedition which started out in 1519, was forced to leave the remains of their leader in the Philippines and returned triumphant to Seville, Spain, in 1522, after having successfully achieved the first recorded voyage around the world.

Beating Jules Verne

In 1889 the World claimed 72 days 6 hours 17 minutes as the latest record for Miss Nellie Bly, whom they had sent around the world to beat the 80-days' record of the fictitious Phineas Fogg.

Thirty-five years later, in 1924, United States Army planes circled the globe in 366 hours actual flying time, or 15 days, 6 hours. The expedition lasted, however, 175 days altogether—now, five years later, the Graf Zeppelin, the most famous lighter than air craft the world has ever hailed, promises to circle the globe in less than 12 days flight time, not as a sporting, daredevil kind of adventure, but as a solid, sound commercial proposition.

This latest, breathless record has not been achieved at expense of safety, comfort or physical well-being to the participants. Nor has it been limited to one or two "reckless" madcaps. Sixty repsonsible, modern minded human beings climbed into the 766-foot long airship, bringing plenty of baggage, a lavish allowance of food, water, wine, table delicacies, cameras and typewriters, in the knowledge that the twentieth century wireless would work the miracle of keeping them in touch with the world they were leaving below. No privation, no hardship, no sacrifice was demanded of them. True, they—I should say "We" since I am of the party as the only woman—We took our lives in our hands, for who could promise that our colossal man-made machine might not become the sport of the angry elements, who could promise that jealous Olympus might not have in store for us the fate of presumptuous and hardly-punished Icarus? Circling the earth round it, but not on it is still great adventure.

Not Birds Yet

Air-minded as man has already become, mankind is not yet a race of birds. The law of gravitation still hypnotizes sons and daughters of Mother Earth to level their native cradle. So we knew the possibilities of what was before us when starting.

I know that most, if not all, men revised their wills before stepping aboard. I myself left sealed directions for disposal of baggage stored in the Warwick Hotel, New York, and other directions in case of disaster.

None of us had any illusions about potential risks, although every one had implicit faith and confidence in Dr. Eckener and his wonderful crew. But God is greater than all, and who knows but that He might not have found us too ambitious—arrogant in our pride of mechanical achievement? Babel fell when man aspired to the skies. That was thousands of years ago. Thousands of years after, representatives of 11 nations—another Babel—with pride in human ingenuity, climbed into the Zeppelin intent on hurtling themselves through celestial domains of angels and seraphims.

Around our planet, upon whose earthly surface that Creator set man to pass through all phases of evolution from invertebrate jellyfish, if science tells the truth, to man and superman of the amazing century, 60 humans sought to emulate the winged world.

Thoughts of God

Inevitably the thought came to me as we soared aloft in full pride of determination to fly round our world, "I wonder what God thinks—is He gratified that His humble creatures thus should have grasped secrets of elements, harnessed to their ambitious needs the divine servants of Heaven, earth, fire and water. Did He mean us to achieve so much? Does He mean us to achieve more? Is it part of the infinite scheme that man shall eventually pass from the earth element to the air element just as scientists would have us believe we passed from the water element millions of year ago to the earth element? Will God weary of presumptuous man, and, if so, who is He going weary of first? Such thoughts, ranging from the philosophical to the mundane, from the sublime to the ridiculous ran through my head the first days. An answer came. At least, I like to think it was an answer, when, in desolate unpopulated Central Siberia our Zeppelin was strangely surrounded by a halo of light and three times the pioneer airship was encircled by fantastically beautiful rainbows.

What did Noah receive as a Divine pledge of safety and holy protection? The first rainbow ever seen by mortal eyes.

Craft of Demigods.

To us—Babel—in flying Noah's Ark, God in indulgent protection sent the rainbow messenger lest our poor senses fail us, lest the ungrateful earth forget or deny Divine protection or lest prideful thoughts betray us to powers of destruction and darkness. Everyone aboard was intensely moved by the sight of the glorious rainbows. I think they held the same promises to all of us.

Realizing the history-making significance of this pioneer world flight, golden romance, colorful adventure, thrill, excitement, emotion of flight, the deeper spirit pervading the undertaking, I begin to think what it means to me personally.

"What will we learn from it?" I asked before I left. "What does this world-flight mean to me? What have I learned?"

I have seen wonders of vast spaces which steal the eloquence from men of the desert, men of the sea, men of the steppes, plains, ice fields. I have lifted my eyes and seen God in the clouds, recognized the Divine harmony in comparable sunrise and sunset, ridden in the Zeppelin, ridden by the storm king, harried by the hounds of darkness, mocked by the furies.

I have traveled into the magic of moonlight into the faerie of starlight, into velvet shades of pansy-purple evening sky. The silver Zeppelin is a craft for demigods, transporting them from delights of the earth and mortal sweets to ecstasies of the paradise which lies just that much above us to tantalize the memory and near enough to inflame each pastel dawn with a flush of hope.

Man is little less than a demigod when he rides the air in the Zeppelin. The world below—world of worry, business, detail, buying and selling, sickness and disease, poverty and possessions—hydraheaded remorse shrivels up at the futility of anything finite.

Paris from Air.

Discordant earth vibrations languish before they reach us or fade before the music of the spheres. Released from earthly stranglehold, from passion-fogged atmosphere, human habitations, the soul leaps flamewise towards the ether and the ethereal elements.

I saw the gray Atlantic from above, the steel-blue Northern sky overhead, heard the great motors roar triumphantly at Atlantic furies lashing the wind and storm.

Favorable winds flew with us. Hitched to our gleaming tail they lent their hued wings to aid our flight.

From America to Europe in 42 hours. From New York to Paris in 48 hours, linking two capitals most beloved of the American—one where he makes his money, the other where he loves to spend it—in less time than it takes for a single journey to the coast.

The vision of Paris from the air—star-hearted capital where great streets radiate from Etoille, "Stat" We saw gleaming white cupolas of Sacre Coeur on Montmartre Hill flushed, rosy pink in the sunrise, busy early morning life of Halles and other markets, distinguishing through glasses smocked frequenters of the cafes so clearly that I almost imagined the smell of fragrant French coffee and crisp, delicious rolls which comprise every French breakfast.

Comfort Renounced.

How excited the passengers were to see Paris so near, yet so far. Queer, yet understandable, the tremendous lure the "City of Lights" holds for almost everybody.

In Friedrichshafen quite another picture. The little country nestling on the shores of Lake Constance, whose fame and fortune rest—made and unmade by success or reverse of the Zeppelin industry.

There is more romance in Friedrichshafen than in many great capitals. It is an altar of an ideal. Zeppelin enterprise. The beauty fascination of these silver airbirds who fly with closed wings captured the imagination of the hearts and souls of those in contact. Our Graf Zeppelin is built from public subscription, from the pennies of school children, marks of poor families, ill-sheared tributes of all classes of the population who in lean years after the war struggled—many still struggling—in poverty and misery. It needed but a call to the nation to raise the money to build the Zeppelin which, it was hoped, would revive the lighter-than-air industry.

Money was raised for materials. There was little to spare for wages, but that did not delay matters. They were proud to place their services to building the great airship which should awaken "Zeppelin City" anew. Some of the finest and most skilled workmen in the country took themselves and their families to Friedrichshafen to live on a mere pittance as they daily toiled to inject the fine sensitiveness of their own highly strung nerves. For officers and crew alike the past years have been ones of privation if not actual hardship.

Every superfluous comfort has been renounced by generally well raised women who are their wives. It may be easy to make spectacular sacrifice even at the cost of life. How dreary, monotonous and soul crushing is the daily and hourly sacrifice of economy which personal pride dictates that the world must never know.

These brave women are content to see their reward in the present success of the Zeppelin, even though success upon success means more flights, more daring flights, longer absences of their men, more poignant anxiety for watchers.

From Friedrichshafen across Siberia has been the most amazing part of this whole voyage. Hundreds upon hundreds of miles of virgin land where foot of man never has trod and certainly eyes of man never beheld from the clouds. Terror of desolation, dreariness of isolation, horror of nature at her most sinister phase seized you in imagination's grip. There was not a single passenger, or member of the crew for that matter, who does not still shudder at the recollection of certain pockmarked areas of repulsive swampland just as we will keep forever memory of the fir sheltered villages which loom large and lonely through the pages of Tolstoy, Dustoevsky, Turgenev and their comrades.

What Does It Mean?

Russia land of mystery, meeting place of the East and West, melting pot of races—bared to our sympathetic gaze. Everyone is attracted to Russia in one way or another I am sure. It may be the music, art, dancing, culture or merely caviar. Siberia, land of exiles. How could they walk those endless weary miles in chain gangs as we read. It made our blood freeze with horror at the idea of such human cruelty. Exiles were marched without consideration—where to? Takutsk was one reply. This most famous "city of exile" appeared one of the most dreary spots I have ever seen.

Wilkins, more anxious than anyone to see this town, declared his curiosity satisfied for all time.

First sight of Oshkotsh Sea. First sight of Japan. Tokio., Yokohama. The two days' official visit in Tokio, full of color, animation, bustle, publicity. A medley staged, weird setting. The Imperial Hotel, whose architecture is unique. In a world suggesting Oriental extravagance and originality run to frenzied fantasy, combine to make it one of the show places of the Far East. Two more days or thereabouts spent around the Japanese Naval Air Station at Kasumigaura before we rose in the air on the third lap of our round the world flight.

The unknown before us, the unconquered Pacific, across whose vastness no man or woman has ever flown before. So many attempts have been made—so many failed, and tragically. How would we fare? This thought, articulate or unexpressed, uppermost in every mind. The Atlantic has been conquered several times now, but the Pacific, looming up as potential center of new civilization, has sinister aspects all its own.

Navigation Amazes

From San Francisco by the sound route and Hawaii steamship voyage takes 17 days. By the quick northern route of Yokohama to Seattle, 11 days. By Zeppelin in 69 hours from Tokio to San Francisco.

What effect will or would such rapid transport have upon the coming "Pacific Era" predicted by many distinguished authorities? What bearing could it have upon awakening China, over-populated, seething Japan, restless Java, the alert Philippines, under-populated, exclusive Australia, Samoa?

In Japan already they are most eager to know whether there is any prospect of regular traffic from Europe to Japan via Siberia being planned.

"Even if only four times a year" the moral effect would be tremendous.

What is the true significance of this pioneer Pacific Ocean airship crossing? Writ in the annals of history, it will be, but how? In letters of blood and war, or golden character of peace and plenty?

The answer is shrouded in uncertainty just as the greater part of the Pacific is shrouded from our eyes by heavy fog mists.

Coy to win as a maiden, the mighty ocean of destiny drew an impenetrable veil of white fleecy clouds over her heaving bosom, hiding her agitated beauty in a blinding thickness of white fog.

Catches Up With Storm

For more than half of the time the Zeppelin had been plowing through fog mists without sight of sun or stars, yet navigation is better and more accurate than on any other voyage before, owing, the officer claims, to our new gyrocompass. Rosendahl considers the navigation during whole of this world trip really remarkable, while Leeds, aviator, expresses constant astonishment at the navigators' ability to steer a perfect course through fog mist, dark and other unfavorable weather conditions, which would cost an aeroplane pilot anxious hours and hectic minutes.

Leaving Kasumiguara Friday afternoon—a challenge to superstition, few sailors would care to sail Friday, a black mascot cat also missing—we lost no time dispatching messages by carrier pigeon. I saw their little gray bodies flung to space, witnessed their glorious recovery in air and a graceful curve flight homewards.

We soon caught up with that storm which had delayed us the night before, and after a goodly amount of buffeting the Zeppelin emerged trimphant if very wet—it almost seemed she was looking around for the next one. Every one was glad to be in the airship again. It seems so tremendously like "home" when we "go ashore."

Silence on Board

We leave a large proportion of baggage in little cabins so that we return to our possessions, which in the circumstances has a piquancy all its own.

After the rich, delicious feast of dishes in Japan, simple menus did not come amiss; in fact, we were all quite ready to call a halt to generous entertaining which made our Tokio visit memorably full. I was rather surprised no one expressed nervousness during the storm, for some one or two are generally ready with comment at least.

Lightning, known to be worst enemy of a hydrogen-filled airship, caused no remark. Standing in the navigation room with Seilkopf, famous weather expert, I watched great bursts of lightning flood the skies. Seilkopf said it was far away, but all the same not the harmless kind of summer lightning. Every one retired early. Never did I see the salon so quiet.

The gramaphone was silent; Perckhammer, our yodelling Tyrolean photographer, was subdued, peaceful; Leeds and Rickard with hardly a laugh between them. Saturday morning—I mean the first Saturday, we had two Saturdays in this story—breakfast late, Wilkins, early riser as usual; Hartmann always up with the sun, "in case I miss a chance to get a picture," he says, and asks Fleming to wake him at 4:30 every morning.

All Good Friends

Fleming, who is utterly artistic and beauty loving, rather likes to wake Hartmann, I believe, for both have appreciative joy in a lovely sunrise. Fleming tells me he drinks cold coffee at 4 every morning with which Schiller, who gives over his midnight to 4 watch to Fleming, bribes him to get up.

"No coffee, no get up," says Fleming. There's coffee in the tiny kitchen, where no other western people were, so I was the only woman present. It never embarrasses me. Even then I took it as a matter of course. Since becoming a journalist, specializing in the men's field of politics, heavier side work, naturally I often found myself the only woman among men correspondents on assignment. I am always meeting with consideration and courtesy, especially from American newspapermen.

Again it never struck me as a strange position. On the first Zeppelin trans-Atlantic flight last October I was the only woman and never thought a thing about it until some one asked me outright how I felt then. We are a band of traveling companions—companions in adventure, pioneer comrades, each one with a special job of work.

World of Gentlemen

We are all good friends, the very best of friends. There had been no friction or even one unkind or sharp word all during the whole trip.

It had been no difficult effort to consider each other. Nobody has ever been "embarrassed" as was suggested to me. My companions vary from dear, good friends of long standing or close acquaintance to those I met for the first time aboard the Zeppelin. In every case each individual man, whichever one of the 11 nations he happens to represent, passengers and crew from Dr. Eckener downward, had been courteous, considerate, kind, chivalrous, in the short, every one a gentleman in the old lively sense of the word.

I suppose it's an unheard of thing to thank men for being courteous, but I can do it with all my heart. There's every one of them to thank for little services, little helpfulnesses, the unceasing bright smile for me, friendly salutations. I have been so happy in a world which I suppose would be difficult to duplicate on terra firma-day world of chivalry, a world of gentlemen because they have the gentle qualities of strength and character. I will be sorry to leave my little cabin, to leave the silver Zeppelin, to leave this strange life which is still unique.

King's Doctor at Work

So far there is only one airship of the size launched for passenger use and no duplicate yet exists of days spent aboard the Graf Zeppelin.

"What do we do all day?" I am glad some one says "all day."

The days are not half long enough, although on this Pacific lap we had two Saturdays, August 24, by virture of crossing the one hundred eightieth meridian. I often heard people sigh "If only I could live yesterday over again," but no one seemed to take special notice Saturday the second. The first Saturday effects of the Tokio celebrations were apparent. Every one seemed asleep most of the day.

Today, Sunday, every one recovered his flagging spirits and borrowed some more, to judge by the atmosphere of excitement and a tendency to hilarity which is increasing in ratio to miles decreasing between the Zeppelin and the coast.

Von Wiegand had only three hours' sleep, he says, since yesterday morning. Wilkins has been typewriting all day. Hartmann is labelling negatives, Perckhammer preparing films for dispatch. Typewriter clicking up and down the corridor in the saloon, Schiller rushing round to collect customs.

Land, Land, Land

Declaration forms.

"What's that I hear? What's that I hear?"

"Land, land, land," echoes around the ship.

"Land, land!"

San Francisco rises from the sea before us. I was there in April. I am glad I know the city. I can look down and imagine myself on the streets amongst the tens of thousands looking up at us, and claim to know more than one friendly face. I wonder if they see me waving?

What the Candidates Think Of Sun-Telegraph's Straw Vote

CHARLES H. KLINE, Mayor of Pittsburgh:
The Sun-Telegraph deserves to be highly commended for its progressive idea of seeking in advance the sentiment of the people in the contest for the Republican nomination for Mayor. I feel certain that the public will follow the poll with a keen and growing interest as the primary election approaches. The poll of Pittsburgh by the Sun-Telegraph in the presidential election last fall proved to be a remarkably faithful index to the official results. Such a poll heightens public interest in a campaign, its candidates and issues, and thereby performs a public service. I hope every person who receives a ballot will participate in the poll, regardless of the candidate favored.

RICHARD W. MARTIN, Judge of Common Pleas Court:
I am very much pleased that the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is conducting a straw vote upon the mayoralty campaign. This will create a unique and distinct interest in the issues of the campaign. I believe it will help to bring about a marked increase in registration on September 5, September 10 and September 14. My hope is that the coming primary will result in a real expression of the public will among the electors of the Republican party. The straw vote will do a great deal to stimulate this interest and I am very glad that the Sun-Telegraph is aiding the public movement in this fine way.

JAMES F. MALONE, President of Council:
A straw vote such as is now under way by the Sun-Telegraph, regardless of the definiteness with which it may indicate the final results, promotes a wide public interest and will serve to keep the mayoralty contest before the minds of the people. The Sun-Telegraph is to be congratulated on its enterprise in such an important campaign. It will aid in reminding the voters of the city to exercise their right of suffrage and their duty to register and vote.

PACIFIC AIR SERVICE HELD DISTANT

Flight Owes Success All To Eckener, Says Wilkins

By SIR HUBERT WILKINS

Famous explorer, who crossed the Atlantic aboard of Graf Zeppelin from Friedrichshafen, and is writing the story of the Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World-Flight.

ON BOARD GRAF ZEPPELIN—Approaching San Francisco, Aug. 26.—Since the fateful day in May when over France, the Graf Zeppelin's engines one by one, went wrong, I have been waiting rather anxiously for the time to come when we would be over the American fringe of the Pacific ocean.

The appearance of the airship over California means that at least two great records have been created.

Sir Hubert Wilkins.

The first crossing of Arctic-Siberia by air and the first crossing of the Pacific is original aviation history. The delays in getting the Zeppelin to America for the start of Hearst Zeppelin-Round-the-world Flight from Lakehurst to Lakehurst, made it possible that further delays might happen, but the thoroughness with which the Zeppelin and Maybach companies went about the investigation of their difficulties, and the care exercised in preparation gave us the assurance that similar trouble would not occur.

Sure of Success

Most everyone who meets Dr. Eckener believe in his good judgment, good luck and good fortune, and from the very start we had confidence that the world flight would succeed.

The flight is not yet over, but with first-hand knowledge of what the Zeppelin has gone through and with growing admiration for the ability of the officers and crew, those of us on board believe that Dr. Eckener will successfully handle any air situation he may be called upon to meet between here and Lakehurst.

This trip has been a record of good luck so far as weather movement in concerned, but it needs great skill and good judgment to take advantage of conditions as obscure as they sometimes appeared to those of us with limited experience. As a result of foresight, experience and efficient preparation by Dr. Eckener, his crew and Carl Von Wiegand who was responsible for much of the ground organization and which turned out so well, this trip has been a phenominal success, but let me say right here that it is no precedent for promiscuous flights around the world, and particularly should not encourage ill-prepared flights from Tokio to America with heavier than aircraft.

A westerly wind in general might be depended on but without weather reports received in flight by wireless, without an expert to interpret them, without the experience of Eckener to judge storm conditions and know how far advantage can be taken of them, and, what is more—don't let heavier-than-air men forget this—without a heavy, efficient gyro compass with a vernier attachment fixed in front of the rudder control man—a giant inclinometer and pressure gauge guiding the actions of the elevator man, it is going to be difficult to repeat the record performance made by the Zeppelin.

The Pacific route from Tokio to Seattle, San Francisco or Los Angeles is not one to tackle lightly, but eventually, no doubt, it will become one of the highways of the world.

We figure that the mishap and delay at Tokio was not more than what might happen to even an established service and something that would not happen often, anyway. The delay caused by local storms and crosswinds was annoying but was tempered by the fact that the Tokio-Los Angeles section of the journey would not hold a greater thrill for us than any other part.

Once started, our next stop would be, God willing, on American soil. We expected to enter monotonous conditions. There would be little scenery and not much excitement on the trip, yet the Northern Pacific had never been flown by airship and there was some new and useful data to collect.

Start Is Tense

When in the hangar the great ship, as restraining hands released it, rose steadily we knew that with better lift conditions we would have no difficulty in rising with the load, the important thing was to get it out safely and in the air. As we moved slowly from the hangar the maximum caution was exhibited both by the Japanese ground crew and the airship officers in charge. The atmosphere was tense with apprehension.

Slowly, with many halts and hesitations we moved, yet nothing untoward occurred. In 10 minutes all was clear. The airship crew scrambled over the cradled arms of ground men to the engine gondola and control car, several scores of sailors—as many as could get a grip of hand rails—held the airship captive until the word was given, then with one accord they responded to the cry of "Lift her! Lift her!", and we were forced, by their effort high into the air.

Rapidly we rose, all engines purring comfortably. A storm of applause broke the stillness. It is impossible to imagine that people so undemonstrative as the Japanese, would show so much emotion.

Admirals in uniform danced and shouted like schoolboys, high officials tossed their hats wildly into the air. Even the sailors who had hardly let go their hold of hand rails or recovered from the astonishment of seeing the giant bulk rise above them, clapped and clapped again.

Qualms Disappear

Thousands of people who, in spite of frequent postponements, waited until they could see the start, danced and clapped and shouted banzai, banzai, as they might have done when witnessing a great big national achievement. We rose steeply, our qualms of fear were over.

With a safe start, full fuel bags and gas tanks, with Eckener's knowledge and assurance of good weather maps from the States, we felt sure of making the great Pacific journey. We had no hopes then of establishing such a phenomenal record.

Nine airplanes snapped out from the military airdrome near the airship hangar and accompanied us until we left the Coizaupkogind, then they waved their last farewell and turned for home. It was less than two hours after they left we caught up with the storm that had delayed us somewhat in starting. Soon the fight with Old Man Weather was on.

Before we left the hangar, Dr. Eckener knew of the job he had to tackle, knew that there was a sharp change of wind or line squall to pass, but he had no accurate information from which to judge its violence. Yet with courage born of experience he decided to push on through it. He knew that the ship could stand the strain and knew that his crew could be relied upon. Straight into the storm we went.

Dark angry looking clouds low down to the surface and a troubled sea beneath them made conditions look fearsome.

Watches Storm

I was sitting in my cabin watching from the window. The crew on watch, anticipating what was about to happen, directed the ship slightly upward.

We reached the bump before I expected. Suddenly the Zeppelin began to sink rapidly nose downward. A shower of books on navigation, protractors, almanacs, diaries, cameras, etc., the property of Lieut. Richardson, who shares my cabin, landed on my head.

People rushed from cabins to the salon, not in fear, but axious to see as much as possible of the maneuver. There was hardly time for them to look from the window before the ship rose steadily to an even keel. Then she danced jerkily over a few waves of undulating atmosphere, we felt a movement as if walking over a great big rubber cushion.

The clouds outside looked blacker still and things appeared to be far worse than they really were.

Then at the other edge of the storm we rose sharply—just the reverse of the customary movement in storms—but we had gone through that one from the rear.

The man at the helm was waiting for the upward movement and he compensated for it with the elevators.

Short, Sharp Storm

The storm was short and sharp, to enter it was perhaps the most dangerous thing we had done while flying on this trip. We had no definite information as t its diameter or its intensity, lightning could be seen flashing in the distance and no doubt the clouds beneath which we maneuvered were heavily charged with static, fortunately there appeared no lightning near us.

We came through safely. Again Dr. Eckener had shown his expert knowledge. He knew when to take a chance that looked too great for those of us with much less experience.

From the cloud and storm we entered a hazy fog condition in which we flew almost continuously for two days. Occasionally throughout the first night the late moon shone brightly enough to throw a shadow conspicuously upon the upper surface of the clouds and each morning the sun, rising in its glory, dispelled the clouds momentarily, allowing the navigator to take a sight. But fog and rain and low visibility was our greatest portion.

Throughout the first two days the weather was haphazard and uncertain, but ther was no haphazardness about the handling of the Zeppelin.

The course-indicator, a telltale on the helmsman, showed a line which was only slightly sawtoothed except where the course was deliberately changed.

Stays on Course

The general course was correctly kept throughout darkness, rain and fog. This was doubtless due almost as much to training and experience as to the gyro-compass vernier which indicates immediately the least fraction of a degree in change of course. Without such an asset and a pilot capable of flying entirely by instruments it would have been impossible to have kept a course and difficult to even keep in the air in such conditions in an airplane.

Several times during the day we rose to altitudes as high as 4,000 feet in order to get above the clouds and take sun observations.

Then, sometimes, the officer on watch would bring the ship down slowly to within 500 feet of the water and with the echo-lot test his altimeter for accuracy.

That maneuver also gave him an indication of the barometric pressure or barometer reading, and with that a correction could be applied to the altimeter at other altitudes.

The echo-lot is considered correct to within 1 per cent at 300 meters, within 2 per cent at 400 meters, and fairly accurate at 2,000 feet, but not so dependable at higher altitudes.

New Drift Indicator

These frequent checking of course and distance by sun observations, a reliable knowledge of air speed compared with engine revolutions and the use of an exceptionally fine drift indicator of the Zeppelin's officers own invention, made the navigation possible in spite of storm, fog, change of winds course easy compared to the difficulties one would have had on board an airplane. But nevertheless the marvelous accuracy with which the navigating officers did their job was most commendable. Nothing that I have known in navigation through the air has been quite as perfect.

It almost made one dizzy to realize that for 12 hours at a stretch we had been whizzing through the fog-laden air at a speed of 70 miles an hour, seeing often less than a ship's length ahead, rain pouring down the windows of the control car, practically obscuring what little outside view there was and yet keeping a course so accurate that after a total of 60 hours we were within eight miles of our estimated position.

Thrills Scarce

The winds broke in our favor. We could not well have asked for more, yet on the whole it has been a difficult job, one extremely well done by the Zeppelin's officers and crew.

Apart from the storm there has been little to thrill us on the journey. As a matter of fact the speed with which we were approaching our destination left us almost dumb and speechless. There were so many things we had planned to do on the "five days'" journey across the Pacific.

The fog and cloud obscured the ocean's surface much of the way, but during a few clear intervals I chanced to see three white whales, some large fish which I was unable to identify and a great big sunfish which seemed to wave its giant skirts lazily at us.

The birds we passed were perhaps the most startled creatures in existence. They darted back and forth in an erratic course as if pursued by some fiend incarnate, their hurry never slackening until they were lost from sight.

When the sky cleared Sunday morning—the morning after our second Saturday in one week—the view of the broad blue Pacific was a wonderful and pleasing sight. And what added even greater pleasure to the scene was the sight of the whitecaps on the ocean, frothing with their steep fronts leading in the direction in which we traveled. We were carrying with us, as it were, the "backing" wind, to use Dr. Eckener's favorite expression.

We watched eagerly for the first sign of what has become almost as dear to me as my native homeland, Australia.

At 10 to 4 by our saloon time, the outline of the coast was seen, and a few minutes later the Farralones hove in sight. It is almost incomprehensible; wonderful! In a few minutes we will be over San Francisco Bay, Tokio only 68 hours 17 minutes behind. The smell of the Orient, Japan has hardly had time to leave our nostrils and is only washed away by moisture of emotion.

PATRIOTIC SONS OPEN MEET

More than 1,000 members were expected to be in attendance today as the Pennsylvania State Camp, Patriotic Order Sons of America, opened its convention in the William Penn Hotel.

Frank A. Potter

State President Frank A. Potter, of 1100 Sheffield street, presided at the sessions that will continue through Thursday. A musical and reception is scheduled tonight in honor of the officers. A sightseeing tour and boat ride are among the social events for tomorrow.

State Chaplain Robert C. Clark delivered a patriotic sermon last night in the First Methodist Protestant Church, Union avenue, where members attended in a body.

HEARING OF GIRL RED CHANGED

Upon motion of her attorney, the hearing of Frieda Truhar, 18, of 2503 Arlington avenue, Young Communist League leader, was transferred to Morals Court from the North Side police court.

Miss Truhar surrenderd to North Side police Saturday night on a warrant charging violation of a city ordinance for addressing a Communist meeting Thursday night at Union avenue and East Ohio street, without a permit. When called for a hearing today, Attorney Henry Ellenbogan requested Magistrate Edward M. Hough to remove the case to Morals Court since the girl is a minor. A hearing will be held later.

A second warrant issued for John Casper, of Wilkinsburg, alleged to have been another speaker, has not been served.

2 DIE AS TRAINS COLLIDE

HARRISBURG, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Two Baltimore trainmen were killed in a collision of two freight trains today at Royalton on the Columbia branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Both trains were eastbound, one crashing into the rear of the other train. A number of cars were derailed and traffic was blocked on all three tracks.

W. M. Ruby, engineer of the rear train, and Ernest Petticord, believed to be the brakeman on the same train, were killed.

The accident was blamed by trainmen on heavy fog.

BOY BADLY HURT IN SWING FALL

Falling off a swing in Arlington avenue playground, head of South Twenty-second street yesterday afternoon, Edward Sedler, 16, of 908 Excelsior street, is in the South Side Hospital suffering concussion of the brain.

According to the report of the South Side police, Sedler and his companion, Norman O'Connel, 17, of 123 Eureka street, were on the swing when Sedler fell. He was taken to the office of Dr. Henry D. Jew, of 2306 Arlington avenue, where first-aid was given, and later was ordered to the hospital.

R. C. A. to Open Film Service Station Here

A service station of the Radio Corporation of America will be established here, H. L. Taylor, district representative for Pennsylvania, Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia, announced today. The first unit will be one for servicing the R. C. A. Photophone. The station will be in charge of M. A. E. Jackson and will employ six construction men and 17 service men. Proximity to the Westinghouse plant was given as the reason for the location of the station in Pittsburgh.

Jolson's Wife Better After Train Relapse

A Great College Girl Special

Four Favored Furs of Youth in the August Sale

$195

We know that young women assembling college wardrobes want fur coats at moderate prices—these coats will surprise them! We know that the classic collegiate types are semi-formal, sports and utility — and we have exceeded the liberal value limits of the August Sale to provide excellent examples. We know what the fashionable and favorite furs are, and in these coats we present them—

Lapin— Beige or nutria shade — the smart thing in swagger coats, semi-formal daytime and evening coats.

Kidskin— Wood-brown or gray—the sports fur that isn't too sportsy for a great variety of uses.

See the coats early tomorrow, while there is a complete size range, 14 to 20.

Tots' Sweaters and Creepers

$1.00

Even the tiniest folks are being outfitted now for the fall season ... with these new long-sleeved creepers and woolly sweaters ... very specially priced.

Sweaters

Of zephyr-and-rayon with high necks buttoned at the shoulder ... V neck sweaters with knit nursery motifs and borders in colors ... Coat style sweaters of zephyr with high collars and pearl buttons ... In pink, blue, and white, in infants' to 3-year sizes.

Creepers

Some are in tiny prints with ruffled collars and cuffs, and touches of smocking and embroidery ... others in plain color broadcloth with embroidered collars and cuffs, smocking, and pleats. In pink, blue, and white ... 1 to 3-year sizes.

Wear-Weave Coats

For Travel ... For General Fall Wear

$39.50

A woman can certainly see the logic in buying one of these new coats at such a special price, for she can wear it now for vacation travel, and in town later on.

They are of soft but sturdy tweeds in medium shades of gray, tan and brown. With fine kit fox collars harmonized to the shade of the coats in each instance.

All have good satin linings, and are tailored to fit well and have the appearance of much higher-priced coats.

Crepe Ensembles Satin Ensembles

$25

This is just about the price a woman will decide to pay for a "freshening up" costume for the first days back in town, and these are the kind of outfits she will be happy to find ... And, being of Canton crepe or satin, they can be worn later under even the slimmest kind of coat.

They are all of the same general type, with collarless jackets, skirts with the kind of pleats which can be easily pressed, and separate blouses of eggshell satin which can be laundered.

In both the satin and the crepe the colors are brown and black. In sizes 34 to 44.

News From Hollywood Concerning Events and Players in Film Realm

STUDIO HAS 'BRIDGE OF SIGHS;' RAMON NOVARRO PLANS TREK TO MEXICO

By DOROTHY HERZOG.
(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate).

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 26.

JETTA GOUDAL has achieved for herself the appellation: "Joan of Arc of Equity." And then again, I see in the pages of the New Yorker that Texas Guinan is now yclept the "Joan of Arc of Broadway."

The Frank Fays house. The telephone rings. Mrs. Fay (Barbara Stanwyck) answers it. Voice at other end: "Say, this is a friend of yours. Better keep your eye on Frank." Click. The Fays try to trace the call. No success. Ah, wotta town. Wotta . . .

Frank, by the way, has written a yarn in which he and Barbara will emote, courtesy the Vitaphone brothers. Yclept "Partners." And this month they celebrate their first year of wedded teaming.

Carmel Myers

A bridge has been completed on the M. G. M. lot leading from the exek offices to the projection room. The lot promptly christened it the "Bridge of Sighs."

And then there's Carmel Myers who strolled into the Montmartre at high noon accompanied by Husband Ralph Blum. Carmel wore bedroom slippers.

Novarro Plans Concert Debut

RAMON NOVARRO plans to trek to Mexico after finishing three vocalloids. At present he's working on "The Battle of the Ladies" a yarn unfolding in the Napoleon era. The title—need you ask?—will be changed. One hopes so. Ramon expects to remain in Mexico several months, during which time he will make his debut as a concert singer. 'Tis doubtful whether he will go abroad next year. Instead, he mulls over the idea of building a new house.

Ever so often, Hollywood excites itself for no apparent reason over a picture. F'r inst., "This Young Thing Called Love." One person has declared Ann Harding will be featured in it. Another, Constance Bennett. This colyum, if I recollect oke, gave it to Connie. An apology for accuracy is due all concerned and unconcerned. Connie does get the part. With Eddie Lowe featured as the husband. And Eddie, should you be interested, has just affixed his Johnny Hancock to a long term contract. Others in the cast include Roscoe Kearns, Carmelita Geraghty, Zasu Pitts and John Roach. Haven't heard from John Roach in ages.

Edmund Lowe

THEIR REAL NAME DEPARTMENT! Richard Dix — Richard Brimmer.

Propman Busy, Mary Annoyed

THERE were approximately 300 extras on "The Shanghai Lady" set. Mary Dolan, the star, sat to one side, waiting her call to camera action. Next to her was the water bottle. Suddenly, Miss Nolan called languidly to a propman?

"Boy, bring me a glass of water."

The propman was too busy. Miss Nolan was most annoyed. Ah, dear, how stardom bulges a cerebellum to Zeppelin size.

SCREENALITIES—Tim McCoy, erstwhile open-space star, plans to return to his ranch in Montana. Looks like Tim will make no more celluloiders . . . Norman Kerry is en route to New York via the airplane route . . . George K. Arthur speeds East next week. Um, George's contract with M. G. M. expires with the picture he is now in, "Road Show." He goes East to play voodvil for six weeks or so, at a salary, I hear tell, staggering around $2,250 per week . . . Elise Bartlett (Mrs. Joseph Schildkraut) departs for Manhattan next Tuesday eve. Elise may do a play before returning West . . . Item: The first application for a motion picture patent was made by Thomas Edison on August 24, 1891, just 38 years ago Saturday. Mr. Edison refused to pay the fee of $150, so he lost his basic rights. And sacrificed a fortune that would have hurtled into the millions . . . Priscilla Dean motoring out to Lois Weber's ranch . . . Ian Keith suddenly departed for London . . . That's all.

"LIKE MOTHER USED TO MAKE"

VENANGO TRIAL LIST HEAVY

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 26.—The busiest August Criminal Court session in recent years will begin Tuesday, with more than 30 cases listed for trial. One of them, charging murder, involves John Gidders, Oil City man now serving a term in Western Penitentiary for the shooting of Desk Sergeant William Powell.

The trial of J. Willard Nixon and Harry A. Cupler, for conspiracy as result of the failure of the brokerage firm of Cadigan, Nixon & Co., will come up. Nixon is now serving a jail sentence of 22 months for embezzlement. Cupler was a bookkeeper of the bankrupt Oil City firm.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A SMART FROCK FOR THE GROWING GIRL.

Silk or wool crepe or flannel may be used for this design. It is also attractive in gingham, rajah or linen. Printed linen, with plain linen for the yoke portions is suggested. Front and back are arranged in deep plaits over the center and are joined to the square yoke portions which extend in short sleeve sections over the top of the arm. A narrow belt holds the fullness of the dress at the waistline.

This pattern is cut in four sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. To make a 12-year size will require 2¼ yards of 32-inch material. To finish with bias binding or braid, as pictured in the large view, will require 5½ yards.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Zeppelin's Flight In Current News Reel

Exclusive motion pictures of the Graf Zeppelin on her epochal trip around the world are contained in the current issue of M. G. M. International Newsreel now being shown at leading theaters throughout the country. The pictures were made by Robert Hartman, the only cameraman permitted aboard the Zeppelin from the time she left Lakehurst until her return to that point after circling the globe.

How the time is spent by the passengers and crew during the Hearst-Zeppelin-Around-the World trip is vividly pictured in these exclusive pictures in M. G. M. International Newsreel. There are many intimate views of the passengers as they lounge about the great airship as it soars through the air thousands of feet over ocean and land. William B. Leeds, Sir George Hubert Wilkins, Lady Drummond Hay, Karl von Wiegand, Commander Charles Rosendahl, Lieut. Jack Richardson and others of the Zeppelin's round-the-world passengers are shown.

There are many other thrilling scenes in connection with this greatest of all aerial achievements, including one made by Hartman from the top of the Zeppelin.

Church to Observe 25th Anniversary

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 26.—Monsignor Charles Boehm, of Cleveland, Ohio, will be the principal speaker at a three-day celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of St. Emory's Magyar Roman Catholic Church here. The ceremonies will open September 27.

RKO Takes Over Oil City Theater

OIL CITY, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—The Radio-Keith-Orpheum combine has acquired the Col. Drake Theater here, it was announced today. The theater was built a year ago and has a seating capacity of 2,000. The name will be changed to the "Keith Colonel Drake" Theater.

Whitey Kaufmann's Band in Kennywood

Whitey Kaufmann and his recording orchestra, comes to Kennywood today to play for the Mardi Gras and Carnival Week celebration. Three special acts, including the Seven Nelsons, casting gymnasts, also will be presented.

WALTER WINCHELL—On Broadway

Novelettes.

LIVES there a lad with soul so dead, who never to himself hath said: "I'll get even with that guy if it's the last thing I do!"

However, most of us either forget the people who contributed to our misery at one time or another, or we are not so vindictive. John Farrow's earlier struggles aboard a trading ship were not too easily dismissed, though, and while it took him several years before he could arrange it, he squared matters.

Farrow, who never suspected that one day he would click in Hollywood, as a director and scenarist, shipped out of Seattle. The salty crew lost little time in making him a "patsy" and then, because John took it all good-naturedly, they became abusive.

The captain, his officers and the crew of illiterates made him so unhappy that he deserted at the first port and after numerous other unhappy incidents finally made his way back to the States. He found time to jot down short stories for this adventure magazine or that one, until one of the more intelligent Hollywood picture magnates decided that Farrow was clever.

Deputies were sent to bring him to Hollywood and after the usual bargaining Farrow went away with his first scenario sold for $100,000. They also urged him to join their staff at a huge wage, and Farrow was "in." But did he set his family up in style—or buy a fancy motor car—or pay his debts? No! He instructed his attorneys to locate the ship on which he was made so miserable and to buy it at any price. This was arranged for $60,000, and then Farrow went to Seattle, its home port, called the captain and crew into his cabin and, after telling them all what a bunch of curs they were he fired them.

Later his satisfaction was made complete when the ship was burned and sunk to make one of his movies more thrilling.

BRAVES RADIO PERIL

WHICH reminds us of the time Robert Crawford, Broadway's youngest music publishing executive, decided to go into business for himself. He had served The Irving Berlin, Inc., and Mr. Saul Bornstein for several years and contributed in no little way to its prosperity. But Crawford, fired with great ambition to do bigger things, braved the radio peril (which all the other publishers contended meant the end of the ditty business), and with DeSylva, Brown and Henderson opened his own firm, christening it after his trio of song-writing experts.

There has never been a music publishing company that clicked so rapidly. From the very beginning the DeSylva, Brown and Henderson songs registered powerfully and the boys became millionaires.

When Crawford resigned from the Berlin firm, of which Bornstein still is one of the chiefs, Bornstein said to Berlin: "Watch and see. Someday that little fool will be back here on his hands and knees looking for a job."

One day last week the greatest of the movie-music publishing mergers took place and the DeSylva, Brown and Henderson group and Harms now is the official distributing outfit for all ditties used in Warner audibles. Which means that Mr. Bornstein's firm along with the others will have to go to young Crawford to get a song featured in a Warner movie.

AND HE GREW

A SMILAR case has to do with Lawrence Fay, better known between Timesqueer and Columbus Circle as Larry Fay, founder of Texas Guinan's "El Fey" Club. When he was 17 years old, Fay applied to the owner of the Black and White Taxi Company for a job as driver.

"Aw," growled the boss, "go and grow up, you little runt!"

A dozen or so years later the pained Fay started his own company, calling it the El Fey Gray Cabs. It was a sensational success and soon after put the Black and White firm into bankruptcy.

A week after his firm went on the rocks, the owner who once snubbed Fay was badly in need of coin and went to Fay about it. "I'll sell my handsome apartment cheap," he bargained.

BUT the most thrilling, we think, of these "Horatio Algers" concerns a lad who, 25 years ago, on February 2, 1904, to be exact, became the business manager for a leading newspaper in Massachusetts, after struggling for the recognition he merited.

But the rag's stockholders were divided into two cliques, one favoring the youthful business executive and the other looking with disfavor on his efforts to turn circulation into ready cash.

The antis finally triumphed and the chap was gently but firmly informed that his services were no longer required. He almost wept, pleading to the heads that he needed the job to support his aged and invalid mother and he also had his own family to feed.

But the hard-boiled group gave him that "We're sorry, but you know how it is" business, and he found himself jobless and without a dime. On that day the almost licked lad made a solemn vow that some day he would buy that newspaper and would wipe it completely off the map!

The years passed slowly for the vengeful fellow, but he climbed and invested his coin shrewdly, although there were three times in his career when he found himself on the verge of having to search for a more lucrative position.

Five, or maybe it was six seasons ago he had accumulated enough rubles to satisfy his thirst for revenge.

But he couldn't buy the newspaper—because the owners wouldn't sell. It appears that they heard of his ambition and stifled his bids or propositions.

But last February, using Walter O'Hara, brother of Neal O'Hara, the humorist, as his "dummy," he secured control. Walter O'Hara ran the paper for a few weeks, until February 2 came around—you recall that was the day 25 years ago he was fired.

Then the fireworks made a beautiful display.

First, he gave every employe a couple of weeks pay, and then, timed to the minute, he printed the announcement that the paper—one of Massachusetts leading journals—had ceased to exist.

The gratification of his ambition only cost him $280,000 and, by erasing the rag from the earth, there is no hope of recompense, but the tale points to a moral.

To wit: That revenge certainly is sweet, but $280,000 worth must be saccharine.

The name of the newspaper was the Fall River Globe.

The man is Cornelius Kelly, of the Kelly-Smith Advertising Agency, which occupies an entire floor of the snooty Graybar Building in New York.

Roger Sends for Nancy After She Flees From His Hospital Room

CHAPTER LVI.

"HOW are you, Decatur? Well. . .looking fine!" There was Jack MacKimmons, and at his heels, Helen . . . "Oh, Mr. Decatur, I was so sorry to hear you were injured. . .I told Jack, I couldn't have felt worse if it was a brother. . .but you're looking fine, except, of course, those bandages do give you a kind of. . .well, a funny look . . . Jack! don't fidget so! Sit down, honey. Mr. Decatur won't care if you sit on the bed. These hospital rooms! It was the same thing when I was here, when Junior came you know, and I only had one chair unless I asked specially, and it was so . . ."

"Jack. . .get Nancy. Bring her. . .back—"

"Nancy! But I — you mean—"

Roger waved frantically toward the door. "Get her—she'll be gone—she—she—"

"Jack MacKimmons! That girl was Mrs. Decatur. . .I knew I'd seen her somewhere. Did you ever in all your life . . .Hurry, dear!"

MacKimmons got up stupidly. "Sure. Only I won't know where—"

"Find her. . .for God's sake find her. Make her. . . come back. . ." Roger sank back on the pillows. The helpless, irrepressible tears of weakness sprang to his eyes. He turned to the wall again, to hide them.

MacKimmons made for the door, and after him went his wife, Helen.

Helen gave her a handkerchief, and offered a small, pinkish powderpuff. Nancy took them gratefully. One on each side, they escorted her back to the door. She did not ask where they were taking her, did not look, or seem to care.

Jack opened the door with his free hand. They steered her in, as if she were a wound up, walking doll. Then they closed the door.

"Well, I must say," Helen said, "that's she changed! To think I was almost afraid of her when she came to see me, she was so stylish! And now . . .Jack MacKimmons, I never saw such a mess in my life. And there's certainly something very funny about it, because the nurse didn't call her Mrs. Decatur, and I noticed particularly that she wasn't wearing a wedding ring. . .Jack. . .you don't think—"

For the first time in his life good natured Jack MacKimmons spoke sharply to his wife. "I'm not thinking, and don't you do any thinking either. Don't you forget Decatur's my best friend. . . Nuts! The nurse did call her Mrs. Decatur—I heard her myself!"

For he had suddenly remembered the name that the nurse did call her . . . Hollenbeck . . . the same name that the Beamer woman said . . . So that was why old Roger shut her up! To protect this Nancy . . . this girl who left him for rich Jack Beamer . . .

"Jack, you needn't glance at me like that! I haven't done anything! I really didn't mean—"

He roused himself with an effort, drew her to him, and began to stroke her smooth pale hair, clumsily. "I know, honey. I . . . I wasn't quite fair with you. I was just worried about Decatur. Helen, if she comes back to the shack you'd be nice to her, wouldn't you?"

"Why, Jack, of course!" Helen's guileless gray eyes were fixed on him wonderingly.

"Because Decatur would feel it, and he's had so darn much bad luck already . . . And it's just one of those things, honey, that never get explained. Maybe if we knew . . . aw, nuts!" He broke off, embarrassed.

She smiled and put her rough little hands lovingly on his shoulders. "Of course I'd be nice to her. And oh, Jack—don't you feel sorry for everybody who isn't as happy as we?"

Behind the closed door of Roger's hospital room Nancy was making her second farewell. There was no bitterness now, just sadness. The almost unbearable sorrow of "it might have been."

"I might have known you would come," he said wistfully. "You thought I was all shot to pieces, didn't you? I'll bet you were even prepared to nurse an invalid for the rest of his days . . . poor kid! But it isn't necessary, thank heaven, I don't need you."

"No, you don't need me. And I'm happy for you. It's just another. . .joke. . .on me. . .that's all."

"Joke!"

"Yes. Don't you see that it was always I who needed you, more than you did me? But I didn't have sense enough to know it. Isn't it funny how you find out things after it's too late? And get things after you've stopped wanting them—"

"You mean—"

"Oh, everything." She laughed a little wildly. "The family has even got rich. Can you tie that? Isn't that the crowning touch? And you . . .sitting up, chipper as ever, not needing anything . . .not even a haircut!"

"Nancy!" He sat bolt upright in bed.

"After me, coming like a melodramatic fool in the middle of the night, picturing myself making mustard plasters in the cabin. . .and all the time. . .and all the time. . .' Roger! You do want me? You do—" For he had held out his arms, his poor bandaged face alight, and she had sunk on her knees beside the bed and laid her wet face on his flannelette shoulder. . . "Oh, my darling, I need you—I need you so!"

And that was the way Nancy Decatur, nee Hollenbeck came back.

"Of course it was a silly, schoolgirl prank and her papa and I are very angry!" Mamma told her friends. She was going out again, now that there was a car, and new clothes, and the house was fixed over. "But it IS romantic!"

"Yes, my youngest girl married a ranger. Lives right up in the mountains," papa told the men from the bank when they called. "Great big, six-footer. Wonderful shot. My idea of a real he-man. Not that my oldest girl didn't do well for herself, too. Married that young millionaire, Matthew Tully, you know. Well . . . it's nice to think you brought them up well and lived to see them happily married!"

And over the back fence, newly painted green, Grandma Hollenbeck told the Whaley's cook, "No, I won't be visiting the girls for a while. Seems like somebody ought to be home with Peter, now that Kitty's so popular in society . . . We're going to visit the oil fields together if he's well enough next spring, and after that maybe I'll go visit the girls. Seems like I might be of more use then. I always say, that's one thing an old lady can always do, even if she isn't much account other ways. She can always take care of the babies, can't she?"

THE END.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Who's "It" in Matrimony.

NEARLY every man goes into marriage with the secret conviction that a woman needs a "boss;" and nearly every woman goes to the altar under the impression that a man needs a mother.

That is the great casus belli, the real underlying reason for most of the matrimonial battles which seem to be drowning the music of the spheres, these days. It is the apple of discord in the Garden of Love.

* * *

The Big Idea in the average man's mind seems to be, to find a high-strung, mettlesome woman—and then marry her and TAME her. All she needs is a masterful caveman to knock some of the headstrong silliness out of her, and drive her with a curb bit and a tight rein.

HELEN ROWLAND

Even while he is telling her how dazzling and wonderful she is, he is planning to make her wipe the mascaro off her eyes and wear her skirts a few inches longer. Even while he is promising to make her happy for life, he is thinking up ways to make her OVER.

* * *

He loves her because she is such a gay, free, daring, original thing; but when HE "gets her," he'll trim off all the rough edges, smooth down all her wild ways, and put a soft "finish" on her manners and temperament. What a chance!

* * *

Meanwhile, if she's a normal women, the girl is already mentally picking out his socks and ties, planning his diet, conspiring to make him shave off his mustache, and scheming to make him give up some of his wild bachelor friends, and cut out his before-dinner cocktail or his after-dinner cigar. All, "for his own good!"

* * *

Even while she is telling him how big and strong and brave and masterful he is, she is thinking of him as just a spoiled boy, who needs a guardian, a valet, a food censor—and somebody to "mother" him.

* * *

Even before they have discovered the color of each other's eyes, he is mentally tying her down to the rocking-chair and the gas range—and she is mentally following him around with a questionnaire and a hot-water bottle.

* * *

And that's where the life battle begins! The struggle for supremacy is the first step toward the divorce court.

Three-quarters of a man's love for a woman is love of conquest. And the strongest tie that binds a woman to a man is not the great tie of duty or passionate devotion, but the little tie of material tenderness—the yearning desire to "mother" him—or smother him!

Every man loves to be "mothered"—a little. And every woman loves to be "mastered"—a little. But, nobody loves a guardian, a keeper, a reformer or a jailor. The old-fashioned marriage was a monarchy, in which the strongest will ruled. But, modern marriage is a democracy.

* * *

Perhaps that's why it so seldom lasts more than a few years. Then, a "third party" comes to the fore—and somebody else gets elected.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Charles Owens Is Freed of Suspicion in Brutal Attack.

AT Mr. Underwood's question Mary looked up at him with puzzled eyes.

"No, I didn't scream at first," she said. "I was too frightened for one thing. The sight of that awful face looking almost as if it were floating outside my window—the light made it look that way, I suppose—and the hand cutting the screen, absolutely paralyzed me for a second or two. Then I thought that if I screamed before I got out of the room, the man might shoot at me or something, so I made myself lie perfectly still while I thought what I'd better do."

My pulses accelerated with pride for my niece—I was proud to call her that, although she was not what my mother-in-law would call "blood kin" to me. But her voice, a bit husky with nervous tension, was going on and I focused my attention upon her story.

"The side of my room between the bed and the door was darker than the other, and the couch was between it and the window," she went on. "Was I glad that I was wearing my black silk pajamas? Oh, boy! I'll tell the world, I was. I wriggled out of bed and dropped down to the floor and crawled to the door without making a sound. Then I drew myself up against the door, so I could throw it open with one movement, for I knew the light from the hall would stream in when I opened it. And when I finally got into the hall—did I scream?"

She shuddered again, and Lillian spoke quickly again patently obeying a signal from her husband.

"We're not going to bother you any more tonight, Mary. Go to sleep now, with wreaths of laurel on your brow and all the rest of it. You sure deserve the Croix de Guerre, the Congressional Medal, and all the rest of the decorations."

Mary smiled wanly at us as we waved good-bye from the doorway and as if with common consent no one of us spoke until we were downstairs in the library again with the door closed. When we were comfortably seated, Mr. Underwood struck his fist against his knee.

"That plucky little devil!" he said admiringly. "And she sure was playing for a higher stake than she knew. That fiend would have dropped her if he'd seen her before she got to the door."

"You know who it was, Harry?" Lillian said, and the words were an assertion instead of a question.

"At least you and Madge know who it wasn't," he retorted, looking from one of us to the other. "I saw your face, Lady Fair, when Mary was describing the man, and there was relief on it. Evidently her description wasn't what you feared."

"My telltale face!" I exclaimed. "But you are right. The description in no way fitted Charles Owen, Samuel Brixton's half-brother."

He whistled — a long, slow note; then his face was suddenly grave.

"I apologize to you, my dear." He turned to his wife. "I was a bit too strenuous in my objections to hearing anything about the Brixtons. But if I had known this angle—I don't know it yet, but you'll tell me now, I know—it would have made quite a difference."

"It is I who should apologize, Harry," she told him, her steady eyes meeting his. "I should have known that anything affecting these young scions of royalty would be of importance to you. But you were so—so——"

"You needn't say what you mean," he told her with a grin. "It wouldn't be ladylike. As it turns out, there's been no great harm done as yet, and we're forearmed. But I sure do want to hear the low-down on this half-brother of Brixton's."

"It won't take long," I said, and forthwith told every incident of the encounter between Charles Owen and Prince Georges. Mr. Underwood listened attentively, and when I had finished, whistled again softly.

"Let me get this straight," he said. "Georges warned him that if Queen Olga found out where Olina was before she got ready to go home herself, the prince would hold Owen responsible, and see that he was taken back to Trees?"

"Yes, that was the threat Georges made," I said.

"No wonder your friend was desperate," he commented. "Georges was signing his own death warrant when he made a threat like that. If he had added a threat of what would happen if he himself was croaked, that would have been something like. This Owen must have been a very active person lately. Why the demurring look, Lady Fair?"

"Because," I said slowly, "I do not believe that Owen has the capacity for real murder in him. He could give—or sell—the information which he knew might cause the death of anyone, but he never could kill anyone himself."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, August 27.

AN ACTIVE and eventful day is forecast by the interesting positions of the ruling planets. There is augury of bold enterprise, with sudden and probably radical change or travel, in connection therewith. Yet there is need for discretion in all activities and those in employment are particularly enjoined to be wise. Personal affairs will be pleasant.

Those whose birthdays it is are confronted by a very lively year, with much enterprise and possible moving about and new arrangements. But a degree of precaution is needed for successful launching of new projects and those in employment should safeguard their positions. Domestic and affectional relations as well as social and artistic are under good sway.

A child born on this day will be artistic, enterprising, resourceful and versatile. Its personal life should be happy but in employment it may meet opposition or friction.

It is the mind that maketh good or ill, that maketh wretched or happy, rich or poor.—Spenser.

Household Hints

Glycerine will prevent steam from collecting on glass. Smear a little over the glass after polishing.

Bedding, when not in use should be covered with a cloth or newspaper sprinkled with spirits of turpentine to destroy moths.

Bone knife handles, which have become yellow can be whitened by rubbing with a flannel moistened in a solution of peroxide of hydrogen and water.

Black Eyed Susan -:- By Madge Geyer

SIDE by side in a lovely meadow grew two of the most georgeous daisies you ever saw. One was so superbly lovely that she was the most admired of them all, and she was so proud of her loveliness! But she was disdainful and thought the other daisies beneath her.

The daisy that grew right beside her simply couldn't take his eyes from her sparkling face, and her lovely black eyes simply fascinated him.

Finally she deigned to notice him and his joy was complete. And when a soft little wind came along and blew them so close that he could whisper the love of his heart, she couldn't resist.

So Black Eyed Susan blushed and dropped her eyes, and said "Yes" and that night there was the most glorious wedding. And Dan Cupid was the minister who tied the knot. Oh yes, he watches over the flowers just as he does over humans, for they love, just as we do.

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Keeping the Engagement Ring

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My sister was engaged to to be married and had received a very beautiful diamond ring from her sweetheart. Unfortunately he died recently. The question is what should she do with the ring? It is practically useless to her now; she will not wear it and also will not sell it. Is it proper for her to return the ring to his parents, with whom she is quite intimate? She also has some money which belonged to him. If it is proper for her to return both the ring and the money, how should she approach them?

READER.

THE ring your sister should keep, for it is the sacred symbol of their love, and does not concern anyone else so intimately and dearly. It is not necessary for her to wear it, and, of course, she wouldn't think of selling it. But she should keep it, in some sacred place where she can, if and when she wishes, visit it in contemplation.

The money, she should, I should think—although you do not explain very fully about it—return to the young man's parents. She will feel better about doing this, I am sure. She should do it in the most natural and simple way, which I should think would be to make an engagement to call on the mother, and then give it to her.

Ordering Dinner

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have been told by good authority that when a man and woman are seated at a table in a restaurants the waiter hands the man the bill of fare. He reads the various items aloud to the woman, and she chooses her order in that manner; gives her order to him, and he, in turn, gives it to the waiter. My friend does not agree. He maintains that the girl also is given a menu, and uses as proof that in every high-class restaurant this method is used. Please correct the wrong one.

LILLIAN.

USUALLY each is given a menu card, and they choose the dinner together. However, I think that what your friend has fundamentally in mind is that the gentleman who is the host should take the initiative, and with this point of view I am heartily in sympathy. The host should be "active" about the menu, suggesting various items that he knows are perhaps specialties of the restaurant in which they are dining, making it easy for her to make her choice, and, in general, being the "masterful host." If he can do this better with one menu card than with two, so much the better. I can easily understand that he might! The man who invites a girl to dine with him and then weakly hems and haws about what to order and shows that he doesn't know what such kind of hospitality is all about, is a disappointment to the woman he has invited. If men realized this more, they would acquire more graciousness and gracefulness about doing the ordering. And I am sure that, from what your friend maintains, he would be able to take the reins (or the menu card) in his own hands and order an interesting and well-balanced meal. And he is right about the girl's giving her order to her host, and the host giving it to the waiter, with his own.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Light Is Invaluable to Promoting Health.

SOMEWHERE I saw this quotation from Southey:

"I marvel not, O Sun, that unto thee
In adoration, man should bow the knee,
And pour the prayer of mingled awe and love,
For like a God thou art, and on the way
Of Glory sheddest, with benignant ray,
Beauty and life and joyousness from above."

Nothing that poet, madman or doctor can say in praise of sunlight is too extravagant to be true. To the sun we owe everything for the health we enjoy.

DR. COPELAND

You cannot be well, strong, vigorous, alert and magnetic without absorbing what sunlight can give. There are qualities in light that stimulate the circulation, enrich the blood and add to length of days.

I never see a white-livered, putty-complexioned person without being forced to restrain myself. I just long to read him a lecture about the importance of light.

Not everybody can have sunshine in the home. Many city houses never get a ray. But, fortunately for us, "skyshine" carries the ultra-violet rays. From the sky and the clouds, even though there is no sunshine, will come the helpful and health-giving rays.

I fear that the average person fails to appreciate the important part the skin plays in the battle of life. Unless the covering of the body is kept clean, is thoroughly aired and exposed to light, its wearer is robbed of one of the chief agencies of health promotion.

When cold weather comes, many of us will shiver and complain of the temperature. If the skin be given daily exposure, as it should be, it will grow strong and resistant. It will be less violently affected by extremes of weather.

There is a fad just now for sun baths. It is the most sensible fad of recent years. It is to be hoped it will not be short-lived.

Take advantage of the summer and fall months to accumulate a good coat of tan. Then do not let it fade out as winter comes. You will be better now and all through the year if your skin is burned.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. W. R. S. Q.—How old should a baby be before being permitted to look at moving pictures? Also what month does a baby begin to sit up unaided?

A.—Babies should not be taken to see moving pictures—a child should be at least six years before indulging in this recreation. Depends upon the strengh and general health of the baby—some babies sit up about the sixth month but there is no hard and fast rule governing this.

T. G. Q.—How can I gain weight?

A.—Proper dieting and deep breathing is the secret. You should eat nourishing foods and have plenty of sleep and rest.

* * *

V. F. Q.—What causes a cracking sound in my left knee every time I bend? The joint is not swollen and there is no pain or soreness in it.

A.—Lack of synovial fluid and poor circulation are probably responsible for this condition.

R. A. F. Q.—What causes ringing in the ears? What can be done to stop it?

A.—Ringing in the ears is often due to nasal catarrh which has extended into the middle ear. Special treatment is advisable.

X. Y. Z. Q.—What will make my eyelashes grow?

2.—What do you advise for developing the calf of the leg?

A.—You might try applying one per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment to the lashes every night.

2.—Walking, dancing, climbing, and skating are all good exercises for developing the calf of the leg.

E. M. N. Q.—What causes a growling noise in my stomach?

A.—This condition is due to "gases" caused by indigestion. You should correct your diet.

A. C. Q.—What foods should be included in a growing girl's diet?

A.—Milk, cream, fresh eggs, plenty of green vegetables, fresh and stewed fruit. Meat once a day is essential. Drink two or three glasses of water between meals.

F. A. J. Q.—What will make the face plump?

A.—Massage may be helpful, but gaining weight in general should be most helpful under the circumstances.

M. B. Q.—What is the cause of an eruption on my arms and legs and sometimes on my body which looks like blisters? These blisters are very itchy at certain times.

A.—You are probably troubled with eczema. You should eat simple food, abstaining from starches, sugar and coffee.

Hot-Weather Advice to Mothers of Babies.

IN HOT weather a baby suffers from prickly heat. A fine rash appears on the skin. Along with it is a lot of itching and burning, making the baby restless and liable to cry.

The most common cause for prickly heat or heat rash is overdressing the baby in hot weather. If the infant is dressed too warmly there is sure to be sweating. This is followed by the rash, and it will not disappear until the sweating is overcome.

Don't be afraid to expose the child to the air. In very warm weather take off all the clothing. Spread down a sheet on the floor or on the grass. Put the baby on this and let him kick and crawl to his heart's content.

When you expose the little youngster in this way, you will, of course, be careful so as not to expose the child too much to the rays of the sun. But unless it is a very hot day it will do no harm to accustom the child to the rays of the sun. They have a magical effect upon the health and welfare of the infant.

Sergt. York's Favorites To Be Heard on Radio

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor

THE WORLD WAR'S greatest individual hero, Sergt. Alvin C. York, who single-handed captured and killed 152 of the enemy, has selected his favorite music for the Edison Recorders, KDKA at 9. Meek as a lamb in civil life, we might venture a guess that hymns will comprise the greater part of the program.

Sergt. York

One of the best examples of choral accompaniment in opera, the "Bacchanale" from "Samson and Delilah," which represents the abandon in which Delilah and Philistine maidens rejoice at the overthrow of their enemies, will feature the grand opera concert through WJAS at 8. What does the boy friend say to his sweetie when he calls her on long distance and talks for 15 minutes? We shall learn at 7:45, WCAE, when Jack, in New York, puts in a call for Estelle out in Chicago.

Sergeant Alvin C. York, who, singlehanded, captured and killed 152 of the enemy in a raid during the World War, will select the program of music to be played tonight.

This deed of Sergeant York was described by Marshall Foch as "the greatest single thing accomplished by any private soldier of all the armies of Europe." After the war, Sergeant York, always of a modest and religious disposition, entered divine service. Today, his farm, presented by a grateful nation, is the headquarters for the "York Foundation," a school for the education of mountain children.

Anagrambles Gathering Speed! New Craze Leads Puzzle Field

Sun-Telegraph's Game Taking Pittsburgh By Storm

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's game of Unscramble the Anagrambie is making the crossword puzzle fight for its life. The anagramble is a tough little nut and, according to those who should know, it will not be long before it will have every other mental puzzle backed off the map.

Unscramble the Anagramble makes some think, some ponder, some consider and, sorry to say, some swear. There's no reason to swear though, for every little anagramble can be solved.

You might as well surrender yourself to the craze now as later, for it's bound to get you in the end. After all it's simple, not much to it except a little mind exercise. Everybody who knows the rules is telling the globe that Unscramble the Anagramble is crashing through to unparelled popularity.

RULES ARE EASY

The rules are easy. You are given, for instance, the word "rope" and the problem is to unscramble it with the letter "s." The rules of the game do not allow you to make it plural, like "ropes," or a past tense like "roped."

You must change the complete meaning of the word by inserting the letter "s" wherever you can, and by rearranging the word "rope" to suit your desires. Thus, to make an Anagramble of "rope" with "s" the word becomes "pores."

Here are a few more Anagrambles to show you how easy the rules are: Unscramble the word "cram" with the letter "e." The Anagramble is "cream." Unscramble the word "task" with the letter "e." The Anagramble is "takes." Unscramble the word "rest" with the letter "e." The Anagramble is "steer."

Now examine the Anagrambles presented here and see how you can unscramble them. Watch for the answers in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph. Every day you will find a new group of clever Anagrambles for you to solve.

You'll soon get the swing of it and will probably be making up new Anagrambles yourself. When you get a particularly good one, send it with the answer to the Anagramble Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, and it will be published with due credit.

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

Crew Exults as Ship Flies Over San Francisco

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

World-renowned newspaper correspondent, who crossed the Atlantic aboard the Graf Zeppelin on its first trans-Atlantic cruise, and who is writing the story of the Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World Flight.

ON BOARD GRAF ZEPPELIN, Hearst-Zeppelin-Round-the-World Flight—Over San Francisco, Aug. 26.—Statue of Liberty to the Lizard—America to Europe—in 42 hours 42 minutes!

Berlin to Tokio—93 hours 40 minutes—Europe to Far East in less than four days!

Tokio to San Francisco—Japan to California—Asia to America—in 68 hours 17 minutes!

New York to San Francisco via the broad Atlantic, length of Europe, the breadth of Asia, the vast expanse of the Pacific — in less than 17 days with a four-day stop in Friedrichshafen and three days in Japan!

Karl Von Weigand

That is the record of the Graf Zeppelin, nearing the end of the third leg of the epoch-making Hearst-Zeppelin Round-the-World-Flight when we reached the Golden Gate at 6:25 p. m. and beheld below us the beautiful city of San Francisco with all the landmarks so familiar to me from many years' residence there.

The Pacific had been conquered by air. Never again will it be said "no one has yet flown over the Pacific."

Pacific Trail Blazed

There will be no other "first flight" over that great ocean. Sullenly it submitted—surrendered its laurels of the air—to our stately silver meteor. The Pacific is no longer pathless in the air. Dr. Hugo Eckener has shown the way through unknown spaces with the Graf Zeppelin. Others will follow. But, never again will there be such a flight as ours. It will go down in history as the greatest of all air adventures up to the present time. It will stir the imagination and inspire coming generations.

We on board are somewhat dazed. I see passengers rub their eyes as if they were afraid they were dreaming as they look down and see one of the fairest cities on earth. Tokio Friday afternoon, San Francisco Sunday afternoon, between them more than 5,500 miles. Is it possible? Yes, it is, for here we are above San Francisco.

The Graf, making its way majestically, quivers as if conscious of the world achievement and had caught the excitement that stirs passengers, officers and crew. The bridge of the Graf Zeppelin should be dramatized at this moment, no less also the lounge where passengers excitedly crowd the windows. Bridge and navigation room are filled. Every officer off duty is there. Representatives of eight nationalities and nine countries are getting their first view of California from the first air ship that has crossed the Pacific.

Eckener Enthused

Even Dr. Eckener, Magellan of the air, cannot wholly conceal his emotions which his eyes betray despite every effort to suppress. He is still very weak from a severe attack of what apparently was ptomaine poisoning which will force him to spare himself as much as possible into Los Angeles. Saturday night he still had a high fever but stuck to the bridge till midnight with that determination for which he is known. Yesterday morning he ate something for the first time in two days and insists that he is quite all right again.

Around him on the bridge are Capts. Lehmann, Fleming and Von Schiller. Fleming had the honor of being in command when we reached the California coast. In the navigation room are Navigators Wittemann, Pruss and Ludwig whose extraordinary navigation, when for 12 hours at a stretch they could make no observation because of fog, aroused the spontaneous admiration of Lieut. Commander Rosendahl, our own "Eckener." He is on the bridge with the Commodore while in the navigation room are the two Japanese officers, Commander Kuswka and Maj. Shibata, who have caught something of the enthusiasm in the ship and that we see below us.

Lady Hay Excited

Lady Drummond Hay, England's intrepid air traveler, first woman to cross the Atlantic by air east to west and upon whom now falls the historic distinction of being the first woman to have flown around the globe, stands by the side of Dr. Eckener. For once the excitement of the moment is breaking through her unshakable poise and reveals itself in flash of eyes and heightened color. Of her it can be said that on this great air adventure she has been a true daughter of England. There is none braver or more cool in moments of danger on the Graf.

Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins, famous explorer, as difficult to shake out of his quiet as is Lady Hay, does show elation as we glide over the coast line.

"This flight has been a greater satisfaction to me than anything I have ever undertaken, because I have had time and opportunity to observe the skill and judgment of others," he tells me.

Care, Luck Credited

Lieut. Jack Richardson, navigator of our "Los Angeles," is almst as happy as if it were the American Zeppelin and he at the wheel or in the navigation room. William B. Leeds, our only and very genial millionaire, springs one funny quip after another, while Joachim Rickard, one time diplomat, "wouldn't have missed this marvelous flight for of our "Los Angeles," is almost missed it. I first vetoed his passage and only let him on the Graf one hour before our departure from Lakehurst.

Dr. Geronimo Megias, physician to the King of Spain, bursts out in Spanish admiration when he sees the city by the Golden Gate. M. Gerville-Reache, of Paris, cannot find enough superlatives even in his fluent French to express his feelings. Col. Iselin, of Zurich, flourishes a telegram of congratulations from the President of Switzerland. Dr. Henrich Zeilkopf, our excellent weather expert, wishes he could visit the San Francisco weather bureau.

Commodore Eckener turns to me and remarks, "A beautiful harbor and city." I ask Capt. Ernest A. Lehmann, flight commander, what the secret is of the success of this historic voyage. He answers, "Careful preparation, a good crew, meteorological navigation, a good ship and good luck."

There was a scramble and rush to the windows when word came from the bridge, "California coast in sight." Every glass on board was leveled. At first it was vaguely visible, but as the Graf rushed on at greater speed than the Twentieth Century Limited, land and clouds separated and rapidly took form. Soon, before us and a little to one side lay the entrance of the Golden Gate, so familiar to me.

Lady Hay at Wheel

Across the windows above the rudder pilot wheel on the bridge was draped the stars and stripes. Fifteen years that flag has been in my baggage. In China, Siberia, India, Manchuria, the Sahara, the Rif war in Morocco, the Syrian revolution, on almost every battlefield in the World war that flag has been with me. I never dreamed that it would grace the bridge of the first airship to cross the Pacific from Asia to America. Capt. Von Schiller and Navigators Pruss and Ludwig said the only American flag aboard was frayed out by the wind and did I have one?

A beautiful sunrise framed in fantastically by clouds that hung low, burst upon us when I appeared on the bridge yesterday morning shortly before 5 o'clock.

"I always furnish you with beautiful scenes of nature," Capt. Fleming, in command, greeted me.

Robert W. Hartmann, our indefatigable cameraman, was already on hand to register that sunrise for the screen. A little later Lady Hay, one of the earliest risers on the Graf, all in leather, for it was sharply cold, took the rudder pilot wheel for a while—the first woman to ever steer a giant air liner.

Engulfed in Fog

The morning brought us relief—from fog. In 30 hours we had just two or three monetary glimpses of the rolling Pacific. At times we tried to get above it, then again tried to crawl underneath it, which brought us closer to the invisible water than was comfortable while rushing along at 70 to 98 miles an hour. Again and again the bang! bang! of the echo log cracked. It's echo told us how close or how far we were from the surface of the ocean.

We had been shut from sky and sea. It was a pleasant sensation to see a few miles of the Pacific again. Soon, however, we drove into a fierce rain squall again. I went to the bridge and it looked as if a comber from the ocean had come across the bow, for the two helmsmen, Dr. Eckener and Capt. Fleming were standing in water.

"I have never seen such a mess of dirty weather as yesterday and last night," remarked the commodore.

He had come down from above rather earlier than usual. Hadn't slept much because he had had fever, looked pale but said he was a lot better. I suggested some tea. No, he did not want any tea or anything else, he growled. His gruffness, however, had no effect on me. I know his kind heart. I happened to have some $20-a-pound China tea, made it and sent it to him by Otto Manz, the rubicund chef, having the latter tell him at the same time that that price ought to tempt him. It did. A little later he came to the dining room, looked quite fresh again, thanked me and had breakfast—his first meal in two days.

"I am quite all right again," he insisted.

At 9:45 we sighted the S. S. Haku Tatua Maru, a Japanese freighter, who saluted us with flag and siren. It was the first ship we have seen in 5,000 miles. It also told us our position, which was within a few miles of our dead reckoning. Commander Rosendahl, standing with me in the navigation room, burst into spontaneous expression of admiration at the accuracy of the navigation by dead reckoning through the many hours of fog on this flight.

Luncheon. Frankfurter sausages and sauerkraut.

"I am sure that is not Sherry's catering," remarked Lady Drummond Hay, presiding at the captain's table. "That diet is too heavy for air travel."

At 3:42 the bridge first sighted land. It proved to be Point Reyes, and a mountain behind it. Leeds was the first passenger to get a glimpse of it.

Toast to Eckener

At 5 o'clock Dr. Megias invited the passengers to a "champagne cup." Col. Iselin made a short speech. The arrival of the Graf Zeppelin in San Francisco, he said, shows that the Germans are again in the front—and advancing. With cheers, the health of Dr. Eckener, the officers and our wonderful Graf Zeppelin, was drunk by everybody just as we were abreast the Farallones. All was excitement.

PAIN AFTER EATING

can be quickly eased with ACIDINE, the new discovery, because it eliminates excess acid and digests starchy foods. Six out of every ten suffer from starch digesting failure or as Webster's Dictionary puts it "Diastatic Deficiency."

ONLY IN ACIDINE CAN YOU FIND AN EXTRAORDINARY ANTI-ACID PLUS THE EXTRAORDINARY STARCH DIGESTANT "JAPTASE" WHICH DIGESTS 800 TIMES ITS OWN WEIGHT IN STARCHY FOODS.

At the first sign of SOURNESS, ACID, BELCHING, INDIGESTION, BILIOUSNESS, HEARTBURN, GAS OR A FEELING OF FULLNESS, take ACIDINE at once. Immediately your discomfort will be relieved.

ACIDINE prevents starchy foods from getting into sour fermenting lumps and at the same time neutralizes excess acid. Potatoes, bread, cereals, in fact all starchy foods are liquified within 30 minutes and pass out of the stomach as liquid dextrin. In addition, ACIDINE contains an anti-acid which remains in the stomach and keeps it sweet for a considerable period of time. ACIDINE is safe, effective, swift, sure, and GUARANTEED UNDER A MONEY BACK GUARANTEE. Your druggist has it, or write Health Laboratories, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa.

RUN-DOWN SYSTEM IS TRANSFORMED BY NEW KONJOLA

Pittsburgh Lady Finds Quick Relief From Nervousness and Kidney Trouble Through New Medicine.

If you are not feeling 100 per cent—if you suffer from troubles of the stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels, rheumatism, neuritis, or nervousness—help yourself to the knowledge of hundreds of Pittsburgh citizens who know from their own personal experience what a marvelous medicine Konjola is!

Call upon one of the two Konjola Men who are in Pittsburgh! One of them is at the Dow Drug Store, formerly McCulloch's, Penn avenue and Sixth street, and the other at the Dow Drug Store, formerly McCulloch's, Diamond and Smithfield streets, this city. Get the facts about this super-compound of 32 ingredients—22 of them the juices of well-known roots and herbs—which has become the most talked-of medicine in the nation. Learn what Konjola has done and is doing, as told by grateful Pittsburgh citizens. Among the many local Konjola enthusiasts is Mrs. Matilda Grimm. In gratitude because of the quick and thorough results this medicine gave her, she recently made the following statement:

"I am feeling so much better in every way, as the result of my experience with Konjola, that I can not help praising this wonderful medicine to others. For the past year or so I have been in a weakened, run-down condition. My nerves were in a dreadful shape. The least disturbance or annoyance would startle me terribly. I was weak and had no ambition to do my work, but just had to force myself about. My kidneys were also out of order. I had a terrible soreness and stiffness in my back and over my kidneys. It was difficult for me to stoop over. I was getting up several times during the night, and in the mornings I would feel as tired as I had when I went to bed the evening before.

"I tried many medicines but none seemed to reach my trouble. Then Konjola was recommended to me by a friend who had used it, and at last I made up my mind I would try it. How surprised I was at the great relief I received. In just a few weeks' time my kidney trouble was banished. I can sleep fine and get up in the mornings feeling refreshed. The pains and stiffness in my back are gone, and I can stoop over without the slightest discomfort. My nervous system has been wonderfully improved and I feel better and stronger in every way. Konjola certainly proved its merit in my case."

Just another one of the countless thousands of stirring indorsements that fill the files of Konjola almost to overflowing! Just another chapter in the amazing story of Konjola's success!

There is a Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, formerly McCulloch's, Penn avenue and Sixth street, and one at the Dow Drug Store, formerly McCulloch's, Diamond and Smithfield streets, Pittsburgh. There also is a Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, 5939 Penn avenue, East Liberty. All daily are introducing and explaining the merits of this new and different mericine.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

W. L. Mellon and Wife Guests of Sister At Luncheon

THE last days of summer find folks enjoying to the utmost the declining season, even though they are busy every spare moment planning for the fall and winter months at home.

Perhaps the return of summer weather, after a sample of autumn, has something to do with the increased gaiety at summer resorts. Whatever the cause, though, social life there is heightening instead of dwindling. Early September will bring departures, and by October the smart colonies will be deserted villages.

A few days ago I mentioned that the W. L. Mellons, of Pittsburgh, and their guests had arrived at Alexandria Bay to be the guests of Mr. Mellon's sister, Mrs. George S. Hasbrouck, of New York. At a luncheon the Hasbroucks gave recently in the Thousand Islands Yacht Club, the Mellons were guests of honor. Other guests were the James H. Hammonds, Mrs. J. Sidney Hammond, Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock and Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., the former Dorothy Babcock. The Mellons will leave their yacht, Vagabondia, in Toronto and go from there to their summer home at Muskoka Lakes, Canada.

AND from Newport I hear that Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt gave a dinner Saturday night at Beaulieu for their house guests, the David K. Estes Bruces, of Baltimore and Washington. Mrs. Bruce is the former Ailsa Mellon, daughter of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon. And later that evening the Bruces and their hosts attended the ball given by the Robert Duncans, of New York, at their villa, Bonniecrest. The event was one of the largest of the season.

Fifty small boats decorated to simulate gondolas, all illuminated, were rowed along the harbor in front of the estate, and in each gondola were musicians and singers. Near the villa was an evergreen bower, beneath which supper was served at small tables. Thousands of lights were entwined in the shrubbery of the grounds, and yachts anchored in the cove also were brilliantly lighted.

SAMUEL HARBISON, son of the Ralph W. Harbisons, of Sewickley, was among those playing in the annual August tennis tournament held at Lake Placid last week. The James Lockharts, of Pittsburgh, donated a trophy this year as usual.

ALTHOUGH I don't know the exact date, I do know that still another wedding is going to take place in the fall. An October date will be named, I hear, by Anna Cray, daughter of the James R. Crays, of Uniontown, for her marriage to Howard A. Vilsack, son of the A. J. Vilsacks, of North Negley avenue.

AND now the debutante list numbers over 40. Adding another name to this list is the announcement that the S. Murray Rusts will present their daughter, Alice Coburn Rust, this winter. Alice, who is now studying abroad, will return in the fall, and will study at Smith College as well as make her debut.

ELIZABETH WRY, daughter of Mrs. Robert Wry, of Sewickley, who has been at Beaumaris, Canada, and Priscilla Brown, daughter of the James E. Browns, of Sewickley, are at the Brown summer home in New York State, I hear.

And Emily Wilson Porter, daughter of the John Ebbert Porters, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. John Joy Edson III at Wynnewood. Before going to Wynnewood, Emily was a member of a house party in Wilmington, Del.

The William Nevins, of Cleveland, Tenn., have as their guests the Theodore Averills, of Flushing, N. Y., formerly of Sewickley, and their daughter, Nancy.

On Friday the Joseph D. Porters, of Sewickley, will sail for Paris. Later they will travel through England.

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH H. SAUERS, of Simen avenue, North Side, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Betty Sauers, to Harry D. Eaton, of Bellevue, which took place Friday. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Katherine Sauers, and the bridegroom by Elvin Voges. After an eastern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Eaton will make their home in Bellevue.

AN attractive wedding took place Tuesday morning at Colwell Farm, near Kittanning, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fullerton, of Wilkinsburg, when their daughter, Miss Anna Rebekah Fullerton, became the bride of John Bernard Kerr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Kerr, of Ford City. The Rev. Dr. Harry Nelson Basler, pastor of Trinity Reformed Church, Wilkinsburg, officiated, the bride being attended by Miss Mildred Kerr, a sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, and by Mary Louise Robinson, her own niece, and Ruth Jean Sheasley, a niece of the bridegroom, as flower girls. The bridal gown was of white taffeta and tulle and the bouquet was of white orchids and lilies of her valley, showered. Yellow chiffon was worn by the maid of honor, who carried sweetheart roses, and the little flower girls were in green frocks. Mr. and Mrs. Kerr will live in Christy Manor, Ford City.

Federation Backs Food Preservation

TRUE to its declared purpose of being "a group of organized women in every community who can be depended upon to promote all movements looking toward the betterment of life," the General Federation of Women's Clubs is deeply interested in the whole educative campaign for adequate food preservation and has accepted an invitation from the National Food Preservation Council to co-operate in a nation-wide food preservation campaign. While the Council is backed financially by industries concerned in refrigeration and refrigerated food products, its program is educative and conforms to public health promotion, which is the objective of the Federation and the other non-commercial agencies joining in the campaign. Among these are the National Dairy Council and the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. One phase of the program is a prize essay contest which is open to all club women, details concerning which may be had from the Council's New York office, 420 Lexington avenue.

MRS. ROBERT J. CLELAND, a member of the Wednesday Current Events Class, is home after having spent five weeks at Chautauqua. Next month Mrs. Cleland expects to take a motor trip into Canada.

MRS. JOSEPH SCHUTZMAN, president of the local branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, and Dr. Pauline Marks, one of the founders, have returned from a motor trip which took them into all of the New England states and Canada. Mrs. Francis Tyson, another founder, and her family, are in Europe this summer.

STYLE MASTERS ACHIEVE HARMONY IN CONTRAST

SKETCED IN PARIS— "Ensemble of heavy double white crepe. The graceful coat has circular flounces at the cuff and sides, giving perfect balance to the silhouette."

INCREASING DEMAND FROM AMERICAN CLIENTELE FOR STRIKING COMBINATIONS IS REPORTED BY FRENCH COUTURIERS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, Aug. 25.—Artists in black and white are those designers who season after season give renewed impetus to this, the most striking of all color combinations.

Much has been written on the beauty of black and white clothes, yet the story is far from covered. This alliance is not easy to wear. The combination has to be entirely in proportion, otherwise the effect is loud instead of striking.

And so we would ask you, when planning an outfit of black and white, to give it even more thought and careful attention than you would to any other type of costume. But the care will more than repay you, and however lovely the colored dresses around you may be, they will but be a foil for your own costume.

The designers here report a growing demand from their American clientele for such outfits, which are extremely effective with the clear coloring of our women.

SKETCHED for you today are two outfits, each a perfect example of the perfect black and white costume. The proportions are harmonious and the effects strikingly lovely.

The first costume was sketched at Deauville. It is a dress of white georgette and black satin, with graceful appliques of black lace leaves. Rarely are three materials combined with such striking effect. The accessories worn are all black. The small felt hat is trimmed with a diamond and onyx pin.

LUXURIOUS and very new is the wonderful ensemble of heavy double white crepe that is shown at the right. The graceful coat has circular flounces at the cuffs and sides, thus giving a perfect balance to the silhouette. The side flounces are accentuated by heavy borders of silver fox.

The carefully chosen accessories include a shoulder cluster of white gardenias and a black lace and straw hat.

How You Should Register

By MRS. DELLA B. HERSHEY, Director, Allegheny County League of Women Voters.

LESSON NO. 1.

EVERY citizen must do three things before he will be permitted to vote for Richard W. Martin or James F. Malone at the primary, September 17.

First, he must be assessed before September 5.

Second, he must secure a receipt for state or county taxes.

Third, he must register as a Republican on September 5, 16 or 14. All past registrations are void.

Mrs. Della B. Hershey.

If he desires to vote for the nomination of Thomas A. Dunn, who has no opposition, he must register as a Democrat. If he registers as an Independent or Non-Partisan, he cannot vote at the primary election.

Republic Garage Destroyed by Fire

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 26.—The business section of Republic, six miles east of here, was threatened when fire destroyed the garage of N. J. Bleilevens and six automobiles stored in it. A section of the home of James Badey, adjoining the garage, also was damaged.

Fire companies from New Salem and Brownsville, together with the Republic department, extinguished the blaze after a two-hour battle. The damage was estimated at $15,000.

Cash Prizes for Estimates Of Zep Flight's Time

Zeppelin Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh:

Here is my entry in the Hearst-Zeppelin 'Round-the-World-Flight Contest:

The Zeppelin will make the trip around the world in ..... hours ..... minutes flying time.

The Zeppelin will travel from Los Angeles to Lakehurst, N. J., in ..... hours ..... minutes.

Address .....

For the nearest correct answer as to the number of hours and minutes in actual flying time the Graf Zeppelin will require to fly around the earth, $100 in cash will be awarded. Second prize will be $25, third $15, fourth $10, and 50 prizes of $1 each.

For the nearest correct estimate of elapsed flying time from Los Angeles to Lakehurst, prizes will be $25, $10, $5 and $1 each for the next 25.

Estimates must be accompanied by the contestants' suggested slogan for the Hearst-Zeppelin 'Round-the-World-Flight. In case of tie, the best slogan will determine the winner. The contest remains subject to the rules and regulations published in the Sun-Telegraph heretofore.

CARSON STREET WIDENING UP

Council today received an ordinance authorizing an agreement with the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad Company for the widening of West Carson street from Smithfield Street Bridge to McKees Rocks.

The ordinance primarily is to fix the north line of the thoroughfare so that the company may proceed with the construction of warehouses costing about $1,000,000. The city will not begin street work in the immediate future.

A resolution accompanying the ordinance provides for the purchase by the city of land owned by the Wabash Railroad Company.

F. R. Phillips, vice president of the Philadelphia Company, has asked Council for a hearing on the Carson street project. He declared in a letter that the proposed improvement would involve the Pittsburgh Railways Company, Duquesne Light Company and Equitable Gas Company in large expenditures.

STRIKE KILLING TRIAL STARTS

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Trial of 16 members of the National Textile Workers Union for the murder of O. F. Aderholt, Gastonia chief of police, opened today with prospects of a court session that may last from three to six weeks. A special venire of 200 was ordered drawn for jury duty.

Aderholt was wounded on the night of June 7 when he and four other policemen went to a tent colony maintained by the union and the International Workers' Relief for strikers from the Loray cotton mill. He died the following day.

Thirteen of the defendants who have been held without bail on charges of first degree murder, were brought here this morning from Gastonia. Three women accused of second degree murder have been free on bond.

The cases first were called in Gaston Superior Court on July 29. A change of venue was granted by Judge M. V. Barnhill, of Rocky Point, presiding.

Allegheny Elk Hurt On Convention Train

SUNBURY, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Several hundred Elks from all sections of the state were in Sunbury today for the opening of the annual Pennsylvania meeting of the order.

Chas. E. Staving

First to arrive here, the Allegheny lodge, brought along a casualty. Charles E. Staving, exalted ruler of the lodge, was dragged for several hundred yards when he tried to jump aboard the delegation's train as it pulled out of Williamsport. He was cut and bruised about the legs.

Samuel Stern, Coal Operator, Succumbs

BALTIMORE, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Samuel Stern, 65, Uniontown, Pa., merchant and banker, died yesterday in Miss Mayer's Nursing Home here, where he had been a patient since last May. Death was attributed to lutenia. The body will be taken to Uniontown today, where funeral services will be held on Tuesday. Three sisters and two brothers who survive were with Mr. Stern at the time of his death.

Mr. Stern was a member of the Masonic order, and had engaged in the mercantile and banking business in Uniontown since 1890, when he severed his connection with the Pittsburgh Dispatch. He was a director of the Uniontown National Bank, and had coal and coke interests.

U. S. Legion Leaders Honored in Rome

ROME, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—National Commander Paul McNutt and other members of the American Legion party last night attended a reception given by the Italo-American Association in Salviati Palace. They had passed the day in sightseeing, many going to Ostia for sea bathing.

REFUEL FLIGHT ROUTED HERE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Co-operation of the Army Air Corps with the United Aircraft and Transport Company for a transcontinental refueling flight to continue as long as the condition of the flying equipment warrants has been approved by Secretary Good.

The War Department, in its announcement of the flight, said the take-off probably would be made August 30 at Oakland, Cal. From there the plane would fly to New York City and return to San Francisco without landing, taking on fuel in the air at various points en route. If the condition of the equipment warrants, the department's statement said, it is proposed to continue the flight from San Francisco to New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Albany, Boston and New York. Such remaining flights as the plane's condition would permit would be made over the transcontinental air mail route between San Francisco and New York.

TESTS DESIRED

Determination of the practicability of refueling in flight on the transcontinental air mail route and the determination of whether the refueling can be made practical for cross-country flights were set forth as the purpose of the flight.

Capt. Ira C. Eaker, a pilot of the army's plane, the Question Mark, which formerly held the world's endurance flight record, will be co-pilot of the Boeing mail airplane on the newest refueling experiment. The Air Corps also will be represented in the following personnel:

First Lieut. B. S. Thompson the other pilot; Capt. St. Clair Street, First Lieut. Newton Longfellow and Second Lieut. I. A. Woodring, with three enlisted men to serve as crews for the C-1 transport planes to be used in refueling.

FLIERS KEEP GOING

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Fifty-four hours in the air had been completed at 5:31 p. m., Central Daylight Time, yesterday, by the Chicago fliers, C. E. Steele and Russell Mossman, attempting to break the refueling endurance record.

TAILOR JUMPS TO DEATH

A leap from his third-floor room today ended the life of John Vsetula, 38, of 2228 Beaver avenue, North Side, police reported.

Vsetula, fatally injured, was found lying in the rear yard by Frances Tumpa, 14, of 2314 Roller street, who was passing. He died while being taken to St. John's Hospital.

Police said they learned that Vsetula, a tailor, had been despondent because he lost his job recently and had been drinking. He had been rooming at the Beaver avenue address for six months.

According to Woods Run police, Vsetula was found chewing an iron fence in front of a Beaver avenue church Saturday night. He was taken to the Woods Run police station, but later permitted to return to his home.

Planes Near Crash At Graf Celebration

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 26.—(INF.)—The first narrow escape from a serious mishap in connection with the Graf Zeppelin celebration ocurred early today when Marshall Headle, piloting a plane in a non-stop flight from San Francisco, made a forced landing at the airport here.

Headle landed with the wind directly in the path of a tri-motored plane coming in with a load of passengers from a sight-seeing trip. Collision was avoided by only a few feet. Headle's plane ran out of gasoline while over Mines Field.

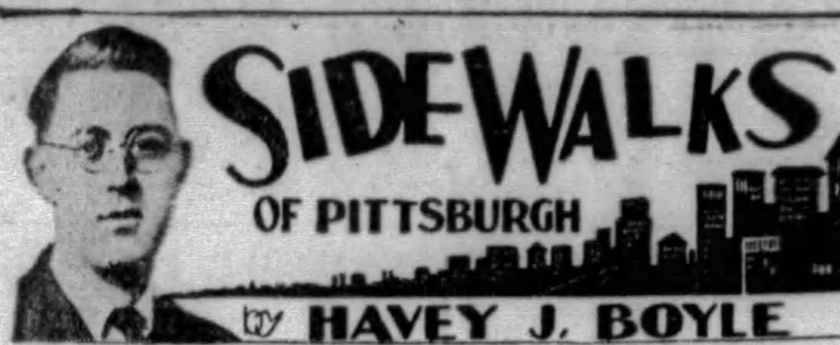
METROPOLITAN DISTRICT NEWS



A GROUP of Carnegie men have put forth "Big Bob" Keenan as a candidate for burgess in the borough which gave Honus Wagner to the world. They call Mr. Keenan "Big Bob" because he stands seven feet, two inches and weighs 392 pounds.

Bob Keenan doesn't know what it is to go into a store to buy clothing. With the exception of neckties—and there is a rumor he has got to have them stretched—Mr. Keenan must have all his clothing made to order. I understand that Mamaux got the contract for his pajamas last year, being low bidder in a large field.

(For the benefit of our many readers in Chicago, New York and Frisco, it might be well to say that Mamaux is a local awning maker.)

When I asked Mr. Keenan the size of his shirts he said he didn't know, as his mother made them. The size of his shoes is also a mystery, as the contract is given to an out-of-town concern which some time ago made the necessary survey and keeps the dimensions locked up. Even special orders must be given for hats, for no local hat store can supply the size for the local giant. Mr. Keenan has no use for an umbrella as the ordinary umbrella covers but one side of him and he doesn't feel like lugging around one of those umbrellas used on hucksters' wagons.

He is not at all sensitive about his size and has become accustomed to awe-stricken persons stopping and taking a second look. He has lived here all his life and he knows when some one stops and takes a look that that some one must be an out-of-towner.

At the present time Mr. Keenan works for Joe Mackrell in the register of wills office and "fills" the position very well.

I almost forgot to say that Mr. Keenan doesn't use a garage for his auto. At night he simply draws his trousers over the machine!

Pittsburgh Council recently considered a suggestion that pedestrians be arrested for violating traffic signals as motorists are now penalized. As a combination motorist-pedestrian, driving sometimes and walking others, my sympathies are with the pedestrians in the main, and if the councilmen care to know I'd write a letter to the editor if they take drastic action against the pedestrian. A pedestrian, it occurs here, is entitled to far greater consideration than the motorist. He is almost constantly giving the right of way to a motorist for a reason no better than because the motorist is armed with a machine that may do harm to the person of the walker.

There are motorists who blow their horn and who speed up on a pedestrian who wouldn't dare be so arrogant if they didn't know they have the weight and the speed wth them.

Pedestrians are more considerate to other pedestrians and to motorists than motorists are to one another or to pedestrians. A system of educating the jaywalker that he is being unfair to himself and to the motoring public certainly will have a better effect, and leave a better taste, than in legislation that will add another tooth in a legal jaw that seems always to be taking another bite out of the customer who walks. I trust I won't have to speak about this matter again.

It seems sporty to dash across the street just as the red flashes against you, but it is risky. One goes home at night picking the fenders out of the seat of his trousers. Only the other night my whole family congratulated me on what they considered was my red letter day. I had the fenders of three different makes in my rear pocket and a piece of a bumper from a fourth car. But in spite of this fun, we all should await the green light.

NEGRO CUTTING SUSPECT HELD

Physicians at Belvedere General Hospital said today that the condition of John McClatchey, 18, of 823 Collins avenue, slashed by two Negroes near the Larimer avenue playground, is "good." He was cut from shoulder to shoulder when he refused to tell the men his name, police said.

Russell Everette, 30, a Negro, of 562 Lenora street, is being held in connection with the cutting. Police said he threatened Ralph Marello, of 54 Paulson street, and William Shettler, of 133 Carver street, witnesses of the attack, after they chased the assailants into the Everette home.

The two youths were rescued by Patrolmen James O'Donnell and Joseph Thompson, who disarmed the man and arrested him. Everette denied he knew the two men, or that they ran to his house.

Mother Who Stole For Her Baby Goes Free

Mrs. Sarah Annie, 41, of 16 South Eighteenth street, was discharged by Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court when arraigned yesterday on a charge of stealing merchandise from a South Side 5 and 10-cent store.

Mrs. Annie, mother of nine children, according to her story to Magistrate Brandon, stole the articles for her youngest child, just past 1. Store officials refused to push the charges after hearing her story.

SHOWS CROWD 4 CITY PARKS

Between 90,000 and 100,000 men, women and children, because of the ideal weather that prevailed, attended the free motion picture shows in Highland, Schenley, East and McKinley parks last night. The exhibitions were sponsored by Mayor Charles H. Kline. Estimates were made by police officials.

Three police captains, each with their three lieutenants and details of 30 patrolmen, were required to take care of the crowds, to prevent traffic jams, and to park autos of those attending the "movies."

BAND CONCERT

Capt. Nuncie Marino, at Highland Park, said that 20,000 persons were present there, while at Schenley, 40,000 saw the show, according to Capt. Andrew Charles. A band concert preceded the Oakland entertainment.

The "movie" show at East Park, North Side, drew another large crowd. City employes secured a radio and placed it on the second floor porch of an apartment house on Cedar avenue, and gave a music program in connection with the picture.

NORTH SIDE JAMMED

So great was the crowd on the North Side that hundreds viewed the picture from behind the screen and spent the evening guessing at the titles. Capt. Hugh Hennessy said that 30,000 persons viewed the picture shown in McKinley Park.

Drum Corps Contest Planned for Bazar

A bugle and drum corps contest is being planned as one of the features of the street bazar to be held by Observatory Post No. 81, American Legion, at Perrysville and Marshall avenues, September 4, 5, 6 and 7. Prizes of $100, $50 and $25 will be awarded the three leading corps, while loving cups will be given to the corps coming the longest distance, the corps with most men in line and that body having the snappiest mascot.

POLICE SEEKING ASSAILANT

While John Janosco, 24, of 1447 Warner street, was reported improving in St. John's Hospital from two bullet wounds in the neck, police today were conducting a city-wide search for his assailant.

Janosco was shot down while walking in Chateau street, near Warner street, early yesterday by a man who followed him and his companion, Thomas Holleran, of 1914 Laurel street, from a Beaver avenue restaurant, police said. Neither Holleran nor the victim could ascribe a motive for the shooting.

The identity of the gunman was learned by police.

FEET CRUSHED UNDER TRAIN

His right foot and left leg crushed by the wheels of a freight train yesterday, Charles Kruger, 25, of 308 Twenty-ninth avenue, McKeesport, crawled to a restaurant at Seventeenth avenue and Walnut street, McKeesport.

Kruger was said to have lost his footing while attempting to board the train at Tenth avenue to ride to his home. He was taken to the McKeesport Hospital.

Grand Orange Lodge In Convention Here

Delegates from many sections of Pennsylvania were in Pittsburgh today to attend a two-day convention of the Grand Orange Lodge of Pennsylvania. Sessions will be held in the Fort Pitt Hotel. The Ladies' Loyal Orange Institution will be held at the same time.

Today will be devoted to a series of business sessions, a tour of the residential and industrial sections of the city, and a dinner at 6 p. m., at which state officers will be guests of honor.

OFFICER FINED FOR ATTACK

Charles Pittman, of 529 Suismon street, a sub-patrolman reporting at Central Police Station, was fined $50 in North Side Police Court yesterday after Leo Zak, of 22 Queen street, testified that the patrolman attacked him at Madison and North avenues. Merle Heath, of 707 Emlin street, who was with Pittman, police said, was fined $25.

Zak said the attack occurred while he was talking with friends on the corner. He said that the policeman handed Heath his blackjack, and drawing his revolver chased him several blocks. Louis Young, of 1313 Gerst way, complained to police, they said, that Pittman tried to force his way into his home.

Capt. Anthony Block, of the North Side station, suspended Pittman on a charge of conduct unbecoming an officer.

BURY VICTIM OF CRASH HERE

William J. Conway, 24, bellboy of the Ambassador Hotel Atlantic City, will be buried from his home, 1637 Methyl street, Beechview, tomorrow. Conway, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Conway, died in the Atlantic City Hospital Friday, from a fractured skull and crushed chest which he suffered when his machine crashed into a heavy truck on the White Horse pike, Germania, Tuesday.

With three other employes of the hotel he was returning to the seashore resort after attending the Lomski-Walker fight in Philadelphia. Harry L. McDermott, house detective; Bernard Murphy, James Duffy and Bernard Kelly, bellboys of the same hotel, were injured and are still in the hospital.

Services will be held in St. Catherine's Roman Catholic Church, Broadway avenue, Beechview, and interment in the Calvary Cemetery.

Honor Society's Officers Elected

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. Cecil Ronan, of Grand Rapids, Mich., was named president of the Kappa Gamma Pi, national honor society of Catholic women's colleges, at the first annual congress held at Seton Hill College over the week-end. Twenty-three colleges were represented.

Miss Ruth Keleher, of Woburn, Mass., was elected vice president; Miss Helen Boggs, Pittsburgh, secretary; Miss Catherine M. Connor, Indianapolis, corresponding secretary, and Miss Mary Hannan, Washington, D. C., treasurer. The membership is limited to students who received their degree with honor.

Suspect Being Held In Moon Run Killing

James Johnson, alias William Young, 30, Negro, of 605 Chartiers avenue, rear, was being held by county detectives today as a murder suspect. Johnson was arrested Saturday night in the Hill district and turned over to County Detectives Michael Ford and W. O. Alexander. He is accused of having slain Mrs. Ada Parker, Negro, at her home, House No. 16, Moon Run, with an ax last July 20, and injuring Mrs. Jennie Lomax, of No. 15.

South Side Church Plans First Reunion

The congregation of Montour Presbyterian Church, located on the Steubenville Pike, is making plans for its first home-coming to be held on September 7. Former pastors and delegations from Oakdale, Carnegie, Mt. Pleasant, Imperial, Sharon, Bethany and Forest Grove will be on hand. A basket picnic and a program is planned for the afternoon.

Stabbed in Back During Quarrel

With an ice pick sticking in his back, Julius McClure, 28, a Negro, of 2801 Mulberry way, walked into the Penn Avenue Police Station yesterday and told police that he had been in a fight with three Negro men and a woman.

A short time later police arrested Jiles Johnson, 49, of 3011 Smallman street; Stinson Woods, 25, of 2906 Mulberry way, and Thomas Nattas, 37, of 2309 Mulberry way, as McClure's assailants, they said. The woman was being sought. The fight occurred at Penn avenue and Thirtieth street.

Steuben Street Man Fined for Liquor

For transporting moonshine liquor in his automobile, Phillip Zinamon, of 57 Steuben street, was fined $100 by Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court yesterday. He was arrested in the West End by Patrolmen J. Rodzevicous and S. Oliver on a charge of violating the Snyder Act.

St. Mark's Opening Set for September 1

The women of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Brookline are planning to serve luncheons and suppers in the new church building which will be dedicated September 1, to help in paying off the debt incurred for the structure. Mrs. William Becker, Woodburne avenue, Brookline, is in charge of arrangements.

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 26.—Orie Rhodes, 36, suffered a broken back and other injuries when caught under the rear of a large truck as two jacks gave way.

Firemen of Dormont Plan Labor Day Fete

Arrangements have been practically completed for the three-day jubilee to be held by the Dormont firemen, beginning on Friday and concluding on Labor Day. A carnival will be the feature on the opening day, starting at Potomac and Broadway avenues at 7 p. m., while the program for Saturday calls for a street parade, starting at 4 p. m. On Labor Day there will be a carnival both afternoon and evening. Fire Chief H. C. Stuart is in charge.

New Congregation Dedicates Church

The recently-organized Bethel Pentecostal Congregation yesterday dedicated the new tabernacle, formerly the Tenth United Presbyterian Church building, Suismon and Middle streets, North Side. Speakers were the Rev. Nimrod Park, pastor, and the Rev. Ben Mahan, pastor of the Pentecostal Church, of Jeannette. Beginning September 1 a series of gospel services will be conducted in the church by the Rev. J. N. Hoover.

Seek Negro After East End Shooting

Penn avenue police today were seeking a Negro who shot Levi Dawson, 38, a Negro, of 732 Lorigan street, in the neck during a quarrel at Mulberry way and Thirty-second street yesterday. Dawson told police that his assailant started the argument and then drew a revolver and shot him. He was taken to St. Francis Hospital.

Lucky Bucks—New Money for Old

By LUCKY BUCK

It doesn't take very much financial acumen—good word, that—to sweep up a million dollars, folks. Just plain, ordinary horse-sense is what is needed.

But it takes brains and initiative, I understand, to find a Lucky Buck. In the first place, one must keep his eye on the Sun-Telegraph. In the second place, one must examine lots and lots of Bucks without getting discouraged.

That's just what some persons have done recently. Take J. E. Murphy, 125 North First street, Duquesne. This gent's a ticket agent for the Duquesne Railroad. Some bird hands him Benevolent Bean No. *22606394D in legal tender for a ticket (or part of one) to New Cumberstown, O. Murphy sees it and cops it.

Strange to say, in an impetuous moment, Murphy chases after this bozo, finds him, and assures him that a fin will be his reward on his return from good ole New Cumberstown.

And, of course, we have the wise Miss Mildred Sweeney, 42 Van Braam street, who looked in her mother's purse for Succulent Suskins. She found one, folks.

Miss Matilda Mackintosh is the lydee who traded me an air map at Weldin's store, Wood street, for a Fortunate Simoleon. She did not attribute her success in life to her Scotch predecessors and I could not obtain from her a fight talk for your benefit, folks.

Then some young kite, a messenger for Reymer's cigar store, Oliver and Wood street, has (or had) Lucky Buck No. T77100881D; the Neville Island Pharmacy, Grand avenue, Neville Island; the Central Lunch, Fourth avenue; the Gulf Refining station, Forbes and Braddock avenues, and a bird in the Frick Building barber shop, have the others.

Here they are, expiring midnight, September 4:

Mr. Buck at the Sun-Telegraph office will give holders of the above numbered bills twenty dollars each in new money.

If you haven't a Lucky One-Spot, some of your friends may have it. Be sure to tell every-one you know of the Sun-Telegraph's offer. It may mean many dollars — new ones for them.

Many Lucky One-Spots will be put into circulation. Every day numbers of these Lucky One-Dollar Bills will be printed exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

Priest Slain, Inquiry Asked by Mexicans

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—A group of residents of the State of Tabasco has asked President Emilio Portes Gil to investigate the alleged assassination by irregular troops of the Rev. Eduardo Chaires, who, they charged, was shot in the back while en route to a village to administer extreme unction to a dying man. The group complained that Catholics were being persecuted throughout Tabasco.

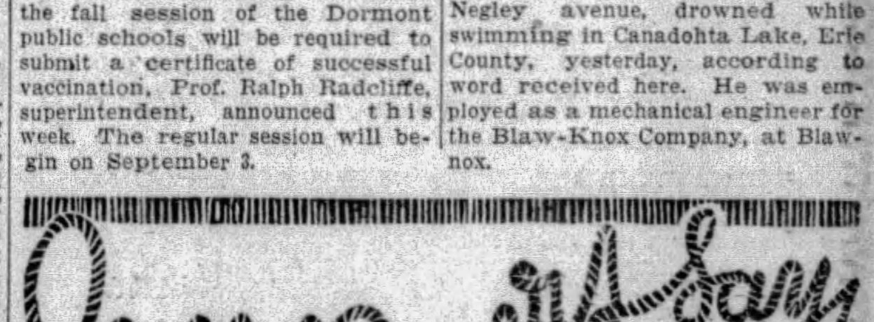
MISS MATILDA MACKINTOSH J. E. MURPHY

Miss Mackintosh, Beechview, bought an air map in a downtown store and, lo and behold, there was a Lucky Buck in the change! Generous Mr. Murphy, ticket seller at Duquesne station, tried to return to the owner the Lucky Buck offered him for a ticket.



SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 26.

Met Bobby Jones and had a chat with him about Peachtree street. I know nothing about the game, but he strikes me as being a man that would be mighty discouraging to play against.

There was six thousand watching him play golf. Shows you the advancement that game has made. Why, six years ago there wasn't 50 pair of misfit knee breeches in this whole state, and ten years ago there wasn't six thousand folks in Los Angeles that would lie to you about anything but real estate.

The Zep is here. We was the only town that would go out and get a hitch rack to tie the thing to.

Yours, WILL.

FOUR KILLED, 17 INJURED IN SUNDAY TRAFFIC CRASHES

2 DIE, 3 HURT AS MACHINE HITS POLE

Autoist Succumbs in Head-On Crash With Trolley; Man Run Down, Dies in Hospital

Four men were killed and 17 persons were injured in automobile accidents in Pittsburgh yesterday and last night.

THE DEAD

RAYNODICH, GEORGE, 50, of 5 Rock street.

The unidentified man was killed, and his companion, Fred Clapp, 35, of 526 Semple street, North Avalon, was critically injured when their automobile collided head-on with a Crafton-Ingram street car, in the 1600 block in West Carson street, late last night.

TWO ON CAR HURT

John Marshall, and his wife, Josephine Marshall, of 55 Strauss street, passengers in the trolley, suffered from shock and were treated at Presbyterian Hospital. Clapp was taken to South Side Hospital.

According to police the automobile in which the men were riding was westbound in West Carson street and crashed into the street car which was being operated the opposite direction by A. H. Mox of 112 Bluff street, Glendale. Mox escaped injury, police said.

John Kelly

Two men were killed and three were injured in Murray avenue, near Forward avenue, yesterday when their machine crashed into an iron pole, police reported.

Leo Higgins, 25, of 517 Ninth avenue, Munhall, and John Kelly, 21, of 501 Amity street, Homestead, were killed, and A. T. Williams, 25, of Homestead Park; Wallace May, 23, of Ammond street, Homestead, and James Slowey, 21, of 1108 Ann street, Homestead, were injured.

Williams, the driver, is being held at the hospital for the coroner. He has a fracture of the ankle.

MAN RUN DOWN, DIES

George Raynodich, 50, of 5 Rock street, died in St. Joseph's Hospital an hour after he was struck by an automobile driven, police said, by Joseph LeJeune, of 216 Arlington avenue, at Forbes and Lawn streets, last night. LeJeune was arrested. Raynodich suffered a fractured skull.

Miss Margaret Kapp, 18, of 4808 Cypress street, was in a critical condition in Homeopathic Hospital today as a result of being thrown from an automobile when it crashed into the curb at Forbes and Beeler streets, shortly after midnight.

Her skull and right arm were fractured.

DRIVER TAKEN

Half an hour later police arrested Bernard Gallagher, 21, of 217 Morewood avenue, alleged driver of the car, and took him to the Oakland Station where he was charged with violation of the automobile laws. They charged that after the crash Gallagher abandoned the wrecked car and the girl who was riding with him. He was arrested in an apartment at 4911 Baum boulevard.

A score of passengers on a Carrick street car were shaken up and two men were injured, one seriously, when an automobile driven by Joseph Berkheimer, 30, of 1420 Dormont avenue, collided head-on with the street car in the 2400 block of South Eighteenth street extension.

According to the South Side police, the machine was on the wrong side of the street when the crash occurred. The street car was operated by James Orben, of 2408 Sidney street.

John Hagen, 55, of Georgia and Arabella streets, a passenger in Berkheimer's machine is in South Side Hospital suffering a fractured skull and body bruises. The driver, after being treated at the hospital for lacerations of the head and body bruises, was placed under arrest charged with reckless driving.

WOMAN AND BABY HURT

Automobiles driven by A. W. Wall, 130 Third street, Rankin, and Henrietta Welsh, whose address was not obtained, collided in the East Circuit drive, Schenley Park. Mrs. Wall, and her son, 13, are in Montefiore Hospital.

When a cab driven by D. L. Small, 1374 Montezuma street, collided with a machine operated by H. E. Theil, of 4143 Stanley street, at Baum boulevard and Millvale avenue, Mrs. L. T. Shannon, of 141 Creedmore avenue, and her baby, riding in the cab were injured. John Sollenger, of 426 Ella street, riding with Theil, also was hurt. They are in West Penn Hospital.

Miss Florence Watkins, 29, of 558 Becks Run road, and Mrs. Edna Vandergrift, 24, of 284 West Riverview avenue, Bellevue, were injured when the machine in which they were riding, according to police, struck a parked car in front of 560 Becks Run road early Sunday.

DRIVER ARRESTED

Roy R. Kylander, 31, of 205 Knox avenue, driver of the car, was arrested charged with reckless driving. The parked machine was owned by H. J. Cooke, of 515 Union avenue. After being treated at the South Side Hospital, the injured were taken to their homes.

CHURCH GROUPS HOLD RALLY

Three hundred members of young people's organizations of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Western Pennsylvania attended a reunion of their groups in the Emory Church, East Liberty, last night. Charles Techmeyer, president of the Emory Epworth League, and assistant superintendent of young people's work in District No. 8 of the Allegheny County Sunday School Association presided.

Speakers were the Rev. Dr. John Benjamin Magee, of the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church; Charles E. Wagner, president of the Pittsburgh conference, board of control, and the Rev. Homer Clark, of the Anne Ashley Methodist Church, of Homestead.

CRASH REVEALS MOONSHINE

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 26.—A gallon of liquor spilled when two cars crashed, and two men, John Viennas, 50, Sharon, and John Drozzao, 36, Farrell, were arrested for transporting liquor.

Their machine was hit by a car operated by Frank Stewart. When Officer Roy Mosely arrived, liquor was flowing from a traveling trunk on the rear of the car. Mosely later found another gallon in the trunk.

James Coates, 50, Negro, was held for court under $1,500 bail when he was found to have liquor in his possession. Clarence Jones, a salesman, was arrested for operating his automobile while intoxicated.

Cannon Balls No Longer Handy For Bowling

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 26.—The cannon balls on the lawn of the Federal Building will no longer be used for midnight duckpin games. Young men were reported to be despoiling the decorative mounds which surround a naval gun recently mounted there, and three of the iron pieces were lost.

Kline Signs Top Malone's on City Fence

The score was 13 to 9 in favor of Mayor Charles H. Kline in the fight for prominence on the fence surrounding the new city-county building site until today. Last week Kline had setbacks on several occasions, when workmen removed or reversed the posters announcing his candidacy. Friday night James F. Malone supporters came along and posted nine of his bills on the fence. He was having little opposition until early Sunday morning when 13 signs of Mayor Kline's were posted. Today the contractor began turning the fence inside out and will paint it gray—a good background for printers' ink of varied hues.

PEDESTRIAN HIT BY CAR DIES

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Aug. 26.—Samuel Schwartz, 65, Youngstown, died early Sunday morning in the Shenango Valley Hospital as a result of injuries suffered Saturday evening on the Youngstown-New Castle road, near New Bedford. He was struck by the car of Joseph W. McCreary, of Poland, O.

Schwartz was walking on the highway and McCreary and his companion, Ralph Buchanan, of Harrisville, Pa., blinded by the light of an approaching car, did not see him until it was too late. McCreary and Buchanan brought the injured man to the hospital here. The state highway patrol held McCreary. He was turned over to Coroner J. P. Caldwell and placed in the county jail in default of bail, pending the inquest.

Veteran Oil Man Stricken on Bridge

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 26.—Walking across French Creek late Saturday night, Louis Mouck, 68, retired tank line company employe, was seized with a heart attack, and died before an ambulance could remove him to the hospital a half mile away. Mouck resided near Cooperstown.

LINK FATAL FIRE WITH LIQUOR

Police today were inspecting a fire at 23 Orr street, which early yesterday resulted in the death of one man and injury to four others, one a policeman.

Evidence of a liquor party in the apartment where the fire started was found by Detective Frank Crowley after firemen had subdued the blaze, he said.

The dead man was Charles Gustas, 54, a roomer in the home of Dominick Galumas, in a three-family frame house. Galumas was taken to Passavant Hospital, where it was said his condition was serious. Patrolman Walter Fletcher, of the Oakland station, was overcome by smoke, and Kenneth Schack, 23, of 2339 Fifth avenue, was burned on the hands when they tried to rescue the trapped men. Capt. H. Brice, of Engine Company No. 4, was cut on the right hand while fighting the fire.

Many persons in nearby houses were driven to the street when the flames threatened to spread to their homes.

Butler Street Man Dies While in Jail

Walter Musoff, 37, of Butler street, near Forty-first street, died yesterday in the county jail where he was serving a five-day sentence, according to a morgue report. He was arrested in the Penn avenue district August 19, police said.

KLINE CALLED 'ALLY OF COAL POLICE'

Civil Liberties Union Asks Position of Martin and Malone On Speech Issue

Charging Mayor Charles H. Kline's administration with close alliance with the coal and iron police, violation of the civil liberty of minorities, and promiscuous arrests of minority speakers, the Civil Liberties Union, through its secretary, W. Ellison Chalmers today made public the text of a letter sent James F. Malone and Judge Richard Martin.

The letter requests that these two candidates for the Kline succession explain their stand on the "fundamental issue of free speech and free assemblage."

Answer to four specific questions are asked:

Whether the candidates will approve of peaceful assembly of all groups regardless of beliefs.

Whether they will guarantee this right without hindrance.

Whether they will see that auditoriums and other buildings suitable for public meetings be allotted without discrimination to groups applying for them, and,

Whether they will keep the private and industrial police formerly known as the coal and iron police out of city precincts.

WAR CROSS WON BY CANDIDATE

A Distinguished Service Cross for heroism in action at Fismette, France, August 20, 1918, has been awarded James L. McInerney, candidate for sheriff on the Republican ticket, according to word received in Pittsburgh.

Gen. William G. Price, Jr., commandant of the Twenty-eighth Division, in which McInerney served as private, recommended the citation in September, 1921. In it he said that the Pittsburgher had made three trips to rescue wounded men "under heavy fire and in total disregard for his own life."

Brig. Gen. James F. McKinley, acting adjutant general, has ordered the commanding general of the Third Army area at Baltimore to present the cross to McInerney in the near future.

VISITING POLICE INSPECT CITY

Detroit police officials with their families, who attended the Police field meet Saturday, were entertained by Pittsburgh police officers yesterday with a sightseeing trip throughout the city, followed by a picnic.

W. R. Logan, second deputy commissioner of Detroit police, was in charge. In the party were Louis W. Siggins, publicity director of the Detroit department and Officers Elmer Reich and Clark Haskins, who participated in Saturday's events.

The hosts, directors of the Pittsburgh Police Pension Fund Association, were Lieut. Charles T. Cahill, Patrolmen Charles Staab, Hugh Lavery, John Borland, George Moulter and Terrence McCann.

After visiting points of interest, the party attended the second annual outing of the Veteran's Police Association, Meyer's Farm, Brownsville road, Brentwood. Among the several hundred of the association who attended the outing were Thomas D. Malone, police candidate for city council, and Clyde S. Edeburn, former inspector of detectives, and candidate for Sheriff. The committee in charge was headed by John J. Hardiman, assisted by Malone, Thomas O'Brien, James McCleary, James Delehanty and Charles Freeborne.

LAW REACHES FOR OAKLAND BANK CLERK

Extradition Fight Expected Following His Arrest in New York in Theft Case

Detective Thomas A. Morgan was on his way to New York today to bring back Wilson B. Smith, 25, discount clerk of the Oakland Savings & Trust Company, to face charges of embezzling securities and travelers' checks said to be worth more than $100,000.

Smith was arrested in New York when he attempted to sell his automobile. New York authorities said that all of the securities and most of the checks were recovered in Smith's room in an East Seventy-fourth street boarding house.

AIDS DYING MAN—HER HUSBAND

After lending her automobile to two men who asked its use to take an injured man to a hospital, Mrs. Mary Berlt, of 128 South Negley avenue, last night accompanied them to Pittsburgh Hospital, where she learned that the victim was her husband, Frank Berlt, 65.

Berlt died in the hospital of a fractured skull suffered when struck by a motorcycle in Washington boulevard at Chianti street. He was crossing the boulevard when struck by a motorcycle driven by Shelton Kimbo, 30, a Negro, of 2575 Berthoud street, police said.

Mrs. Berlt told police she and her husband had stopped their automobile near the scene to get a sandwich. Kimbo swerved his motorcycle to avoid striking Mrs. Berlt and by so doing, hit her husband.

Lawrence Universal Enamel

Jeannette Loff, charming Pathé star, says: "No matter what climate my pictures take me to, or how hard the water, I have found that Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin enviably smooth."

"I am utterly enthusiastic about Lux Toilet Soap," says pretty Mary Nolan, Universal star. "Even the most expensive French soaps have not kept my skin so beautifully smooth."

9 out of 10 screen stars use it to keep their skin soft and smooth

Nancy Carroll, Paramount—"Lux Toilet Soap is delightful for the skin."

REALLY exquisite skin does win hearts—Hollywood knows how surely it wins them!

"If a girl wants popularity she must have a lovely smooth skin," says William K. Howard, Pathé director. "Without rare beauty of skin a screen star can never hope to win her public, no matter what else she may have."

Nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap. You have only to look at Jeannette Loff's skin, or Mary Nolan's, or Nancy Carroll's, to see how exquisite this delicately fragrant white soap keeps the skin. Small wonder that every one of the great film studios has made Lux Toilet Soap the official soap in all dressing rooms!

You'll love it yourself—its generous lather is so caressing, and leaves your skin so velvety. Use it in your bath, too—and for the shampoo, as the screen stars do.

AVIATION'S FRIENDS RALLY TO AIR-MARKING DRIVE

BRACKENRIDGE WILL PAINT GUIDES

By MAX HENRICI.

Further progress in the campaign to get every Western Pennsylvania town "air-marked" is reported today.

Brackenridge has joined the communities that have agreed to guide aviators by putting up signs bearing the name of the town and arrows to indicate the location of the nearest airport.

The borough council has voted to put Brackenridge on the aerial map in this manner. The Atlantic Bottle Company has offered the use of its spacious roof for the sign.

The Kiwanis Club of Tarentum will meet tomorrow night to consider marking that town.

HANN LAUDS DRIVE

Commendation of the "Mark Your Town" campaign came today from George R. Hann, president of the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation.

"I have read with more than average interest," said Mr. Hann, "the daily articles in the Sun-Telegraph advocating the marking of roof tops, tanks, buildings, etc., as an aid to pilots who may be flying around in this vicinity.

"Only those of us who are keenly interested in the development of aviation and who, for this reason, realize how rapid are the strides in other parts of the country, as contrasted with Pittsburgh, can recognize the true value of this campaign for directing arrows on roof tops. I know from experience that the great majority of pilots steer their course well away from the Pittsburgh district, and they do so for very definite reasons.

SAYS FLIERS AVOID CITY

"Unfortunately, Pittsburgh is one of the least air-minded communities in the entire United States, and as a result pilots find in this city a lack of the attractions which lead them to other large business centers.

"The Sun-Telegraph has hit the nail squarely on the head in presenting a program for the promotion of markings in and about Pittsburgh and all of the surrounding towns. Not only are these markings splendid advertisements for the communities where placed, but they are of inestimable value to every pilot flying over Western Pennsylvania.

"It is to be hoped that these markings will rapidly multiply and that they will be made just as large as possible."

YOUTH BEATEN, ROBBED

Attracted by moans, his sister, Lydia, found him on the front porch of their home, which sets 300 feet back from the street. She summoned Dr. A. S. McElroy, of 3917 Perrysville road, and notified North Side police.

When he regained consciousness, Proudley told police he had been attacked by a strange man near his home, who went through his pockets and then struck him on the head with a blunt instrument. He did not know how he had reached the house, he said.

A year ago Proudley's brother was held up near their home, and since that time he has made it a practice to strap his watch and ring on his ankle when starting home late at night, he said.

ENGAGE CANTOR FOR SERVICES

The Jacob Joseph Rabbinical College of Pittsburgh has engaged the services of Cantor Abelowitz Almen for the festivals of Yom Kipper and Rosh Hashona. Both of these celebrations will take place at 5850 Forbes street.

This institution was established a year ago with the purpose of giving Jewish boys of 13 years and upward a thorough Talmudic religious, ethical and philosophical education, and aims to train some for the Hebrew orthodox ministry. Next year the college expects to assist out-of-town applicants to attend the courses free of charge, and to help in their maintenance. Rabbi J. J. Hurvitz, one of the foremost Talmudic scholars and spiritual leaders among the jewry of the country, is founder and head of the school. He is vice-president of the Assembly of Hebrew Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada.

VETS REUNION TO ATTRACT THRONG

Kennywood Picnic Under Sun-Telegraph Auspices Will Be Held Saturday.

Preparations for the Soldiers' picnic at Kennywood Park Saturday under the auspices of the Sun-Telegraph are fast nearing completion.

The general committee reports thousands of persons throughout the Pittsburgh district and beyond are counting on attendance at this get-together.

This, the tenth of its kind, under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, is one of the most elaborate in the history of the event. Every effort has been made to insure the proper attention to the vets. Committees from the organizations of the veterans have gone to great pains to perfect their plans.

OTHER GROUPS ASSIST

The organizations supplementing the active and official government forces in the field of action and behind the lines have expressed their intention of attending the reunion. The Salvation Army, the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., the K. of C., as well as the ex-service organizations, will be present.

Identification cards, calling for a statement of organization, name and address, will be presented to the vets as they enter the park. These, filled in, will be exchangeable for a strip of 15 tickets to various park amusements.

Kennywood Park, one of the most complete amusement parks of the United States, is amply fitted to provide for such a get-together. Thousands of vets who have attended the past functions will testify to that.

Remember—the day is Saturday and the festivities, including the Mardi Gras events, start at 2 o'clock.

The scholarship has been established as a tribute to the late chief engineer, Benjamin Garver Lamme, and will be awarded annually to the engineer in the employ of the company who has shown outstanding ability in his work.

Mr. Ludwig, who is a railway motor engineer, has chosen the Techniche Hochschule at Charlottenberg, near Berlin, for his year's study.

Farmer Accused Of Shooting Boy

LATROBE, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—James Martin, 15, of Latrobe, was in a hospital today with a shattered right arm, the result of a rifle wound suffered Saturday when he and two companions were in the orchard of Earl Stauffer, farmer of near here. Stauffer was released on $1,000 bond pending a hearing on charges that he shot the boy.

Three shots were said by the boys to have been fired when they started to run as the orchard owner appeared. The farmer was said to have shot three times in an effort to frighten the boys into stopping.

BANDIT SOUGHT WHEN THEATER HOLDUP FAILS

Deterctives and police today continued their efforts to find the bandit, whose effort to stick-up the Pitt Theater box office Saturday night, was frustrated by Meredith Fisher, 22, of West View, assistant cashier.

The man had reached the box office without attracting attention in the crowded lobby. He lost his nerve when Fisher, seeing his revolver, dropped behind the safe and yelled for help.

Fisher's daring action saved $3,000, police said. Several persons gave chase as the man dashed from the theater, but he escaped in Duquesne way.

Fisher's Aid Sought For Radio Program

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 26.—Joseph Riesenman, Jr., Elmer E. French and Frank L. Bensinger are representing Franklin Lodge of Elks at the state association convention at Sunbury. The party motored there Sunday.

On Friday, Riesenman will interview Gov. Fisher on having the state sponsor a million dollar fund for radio broadcasting of activities and scenic beauties of Pennsylvania.

"SUN-GOD" used TEXACO

More than an endurance test, was the remarkable non-stop flight of the "SUN-GOD". It was a scientific feat which demonstrated that refueling in the air is entirely practical for commercial purposes. The careful preparations included the choice of a fuel that was uniform, proven and available at all points—inevitably TEXACO.

Lieut. Mamer, the epoch-making pilot says his Wright motored Buhl never faltered on this, the longest linear airplane flight ever made. His plane and all the refueling planes functioned perfectly on Texaco Aviation Gasoline and Texaco Airplane Oil.

Again Texaco Aviation Gasoline and Airplane Oil have helped to blaze the way. Again Texaco has proved itself supreme in the air as well as on the ground. Yesterday Texaco was with Hawks on his record-shattering flight—today with Mamer on his equally impressive contribution to air history.

LITTLE CAESAR By W. R. Burnett

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

In the back room of the "Club Palermo," Chicago gangland headquarters, fat and swarthy Sam Vettori, gangster chief, outlines the plan for a hold-up of the Casa Alvarado, high-class night club. Tony Passa, Otero the Greek, Joe Massara and Rico, Sam's lieutenant, are each assigned parts to carry out. Sam, who does not actively participate, warns Rico there is to be no shooting. The gangsters depart. Scabby, the informer, tells Sam all is set but warns against gunplay. Otero, visiting his girl, "Seal Skin," hears her rant about the danger of following Rico.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER III.

IT was nearly two o'clock when Tony left his woman. A lake wind was blowing hard and the snow fell heavily past the street lights. Tony muffled himself in his overcoat and pulled his cap low. He felt tired and disgusted.

At the corner near his home, he turned into Sicily Pete's restaurant. Three Italians were playing cards at a table in the back. Up front a mechanical piano ground out The Rosary.

"Hello, Tony, how's the boy?" said Pete.

"Not so good," said Tony.

"You ain't looking any too good, Tony," said Pete.

Tony ran his hands over his face and stared at his image in the mirror behind the counter. Pale; circles under his eyes.

"Well, I guess I'll live," said Tony.

Peter smacked the counter with both hands.

"Love of God! Sure you'll live. You be O. K. tomorrow morning. I know, Tony, my boy. Don't forget I was a young fellow once. I know. I know."

"Sure you know," said Tony, sarcastic.

"Sure I do. You think I don't know about that little red head. Hot stuff, Tony, my boy. Only don't be a fool."

"Never you mind. All right, Tony, what'll you have?"

Tony couldn't decide. Pete went to wait on one of the card players. The mechanical piano finished The Rosary on a discord. Tony went over and put a nickel in the slot.

"I got a combination to go and two Javas," cried Pete.

The mechanical piano began to play O Sole Mio.

"I'll take a combination," said Tony, "and a cup of Java."

"O. K. said Pete; "I got two combinations, one to go and three on the Java."

"How's business, Pete?" asked Tony.

"Oh, what you call so-so. Not good, not bad. I never get rich here."

"Why don't you put in a line of bottled goods?" said Tony, smiling.

Pete raised both hands over his head and brought them down hard on the counter.

"None of that for Sicily Pete. Oh no. Pete's too smart for that. If the bulls don't get you, why, some of them gangsters do. I know. One say, you buy from me; the other say, no, you buy from me. All the same. No matter who you buy from, bango!"

"Tony," said Pete, putting his head on one side, "you know you look like your old man. Other day when you was in here I say to the missus, look, ain't he just like his old man? Well, well. That is good. A boy should look like his old man. That is a good sign."

"Knew the old man pretty well, didn't you, Pete?" said Tony, finishing his coffee.

"Yes, pretty well. When he was a young fellow he was like you. Full of pep and always after the girls. But I don't know, your mama she got hold of him, then he wasn't like he used to be. He wasn't like the same old fellow. Pretty soon he died."

Tony laughed.

"Hard on the old lady, ain't you?"

"Love of God, no," said Pete, an expression of acute misery on his face, "you don't get me, Tony. I mean he got to be a good fellow, like me. Work, work, that's all he knew. Well, work is a good thing. It keeps you out of trouble, but I don't know..."

Pete wiped the sweat from his forehead and meditated. Tony flipped him a fifty-cent piece. The mechanical piano stopped on a prolonged, slurred discord.

"Well, I guess I'll hit for home," said Tony, "so long, Pete."

The wind struck Tony in the face as he left the restaurant. The streets were white and silent. Tony walked home slowly, tired and disgusted.

As he entered the flat he saw a dim light in the front room. He tried to sneak into his bedroom, but his mother heard him. She rose from her chair, a monstrous silhouette against the dim front room light.

A fine time for you to come in, Antonio," she said. "Have you been out again with them good-for-nothing loafers?"

"Yes," said Tony, in a bad temper.

"So...!" said his mother, you don't even lie any more. Well, well! You are doing fine. Pretty soon you won't come home at all, you bum."

"You said a mouthful," said Tony.

"Sure you won't listen to your mother. Some day you'll remember what I told you. You loaf with crooks and bums long enough, you'll see what will happen."

His mother stood in the middle of the room for a minute, then she put out the light and sat in the dark, crying.

The little blonde check-girl helped Joe take off his big ulster, her hand lingering in his arm. He handed her a quarter.

"Don't go on a bat with that two-bits," he said.

"No sir," said the check-girl.

She watched him walk across the long dance-floor, pick his way among the crowded tables, bowing from time to time to one he had jostled and disappear through the employes' door at the back. Then she put checks on his coat and hat and hung them up.

"God, what a hot-looking man," she said, "I don't see how that little hunky got him."

Olga Stassoff was just putting the finishing touches to her make-up. Joe came in softly and stood watching her. She began to sing.

"If you're singing for me," said Joe, "you can stop any time."

Olga turned around.

"Well, what are you doing here? Broke?"

"Shut up," said Joe.

Then he turned and walked out of the room. Olga jumped to her feet and ran after him. She caught him near the employes' door. He pushed her away.

"Ain't that a fine way to say hello to a guy!" he said. "Why, you must think you got me roped and hogtied."

"I was just kidding, Joe," said Olga, "honest I didn't mean it. I was just kidding."

"Well, get this," said Joe, "I'm damn sick of that line. What do you take me for? That goes big with some of your swell boy friends who've got ugly wives and ain't any too particular, but me! I don't take that kind of talk from nobody."

Olga put her arms around him, but he pushed her away.

"Listen, Joe," she said, "I got good news for you, so get out of your fighting clothes and come to earth. Can't you take a little kidding?"

Joe took out his gold cigaret case and selected a cigaret. He always smoked the best, when Olga had plenty of money, and he usually carried three or four different brands. With a flourish he put away his case, then, very preoccupied, he placed the selected cigaret on the back of his left hand and, with a slight tap of his right hand, flipped it into his mouth. Olga laughed.

"Now," said Joe, "spill the good news."

DeVoss, the manager, came through the swinging doors.

"Have you told him yet, Olga?" he asked.

Joe gave the manager a most ingratiating smile.

"What's the big talk, Mr. DeVass? Am I missing something?"

"You sure are," said De Voss. "The Stranskys broke their contract and I'm putting you on in their place."

Joe leapt into the air and executed a twinkle. Olga burst out laughing.

"Well," said Joe, "how much?"

"One hundred to start, Joe, then we'll see."

"Well," said Joe, "I can't buy no limousines with that, but I'll take it."

Joe and DeVoss shook hands.

"Now," said the manager, "there's a girl out here who's just dying to dance with you, Joe."

Joe shook his head.

"No, I don't like that stuff. They always think they got to hand you something. What the hell! I don't want no dame handing me nothing."

Olga put her hand over her mouth.

"Don't worry about that, Joe," said DeVoss, "she already asked me about that and I told her you'd be insulted so she gave me a ten." DeVoss took a crumpled bill out of his pocket and handed it to Joe. "There, now get this. She's an up and up girl and she means lots of business to this place. Her old man's got a couple of million bucks and she's the real thing. All right, Joe?"

"Sure, sure," said Joe, "always willing to oblige."

DeVoss went through the swinging doors and stood waiting for Joe on the other side. Olga took Joe by the arm.

"Listen," she said, "none of your funny business now. Just do your stuff and leave it at that. I'm on to these society women. I know what they want."

Joe leaped into the air and executed another twinkle.

"Alley up!" he cried, "don't you trust me, baby?"

Olga put her hands on her hips and began to laugh. How could you be sore at a guy like that?

Rico was a simple man. He loved but three things: himself, his hair and his gun. He took excellent care of all three.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Unlike her bold and modern flapper sisters, Jeanne and Alice, Ann Marie Macy refuses to compromise her high ideals by petting. Ann Marie has more serious ideas. She saves the money she earns in her father's bookstore to study art. When John Lawler, catch-of-the-town, invites her to the Christmas dance, her happiness is short lived as Alice selfishly requests Ann Marie to stay home while she attends the party in her place. Alice and Jeanne further infuriate Ann Marie by pilfering her Christmas bottle of rare perfume. When Florence Lawler brings her visiting cousin, Neal Forsythe, and his friend, Jim Goodwin, to the Macy store, Ann Marie secretly falls in love with the fickle Neal. It is the more serious Goodwin, however, who is enamored of Ann Marie. He leaves the dance to visit her in the bookstore. Ann Marie belatedly attends the dance at his suggestion. She really wants to see the handsome Neal Forsythe. In the cloak room, she discovers Neal embracing Leota Ingram, notorious town character. She forgives Neal, but later he humiliates her by leaving her outside the clubhouse in a parked car.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IX.

THE jazz band was playing "Home, Sweet Home" for the last dance when Ann Marie opened the door of the clubhouse and walked into the wide hall, dragging Jim Goodwin's wet fur robe behind her.

Her soaked slippers left muddy tracks on the polished floor as she crossed it. She had reached the bottom of the stairs when she saw Jim come out of the ballroom.

He saw her just as she caught sight of him and started toward her. There was no mistaking the eagerness in his face . . . He had the look of a man who has been hunting everywhere for something and has just found it.

"I wondered where you were," he began, coming up to her. Then he stopped and his eyes went down over her muddy dress, over her soaked stockings, and wet, discolored slippers.

Ann Marie was no one to tell a lie willingly.

"I've been sitting out in your car," she said, and every word seemed to stick in her throat. "I went out with—a man. But he left me, and so I came back alone. I put your rug around me. See?"

She held it out, damp and darkened with rain, to show him.

He looked at it, and then back at her. The eager look had gone out of his face. "Thanks," he said, and took the rug from her. "You'd better be getting home so that you can change your clothes, or you'll be catching cold. I'll get the car, while you put on your wrap."

He was waiting for her in the hall when she came down five minutes later, and he was almost as wet as she was.

"Bad night," was all he said as he helped her into his automobile. And Ann Marie simply nodded in answer.

She was too tired and too miserable to talk much. Her only thought was to get home, away from everybody! . . . To lock the door of her own room, and lie down in the darkness to sob out all her shame and unhappiness into her pillow! . . . To wake up into a new day that would have no Neal Forsythe in it! . . . To put him out of her mind forever!

"Why, he isn't worth thinking about twice!" she tried to tell herself, huddled in her cape beside Jim Goodwin. "He's not a man at all! He's just a he-flirt!"

But she was still thinking about him when the great purring car came to a stop in front of the house on Pleasant street . . . He had kissed her and "kidded" her exactly as he might have kissed and "kidded" a cheap, common creature like Leota Ingram. And then he had gone away and forgotten to come back—just as he would have forgotten Leota Ingram.

That was all she had meant to him . . . just another girl who was "easy." Another girl like Leota Ingram—Tears stung Ann Marie's eyes and rolled down her cheeks as she thought it all out

Jim Goodwin unlocked the front door for Ann Marie.

"Good-night," he said, "I'd like to telephone you in the morning to ask how you are . . . And be sure to have some kind of a hot drink before you go to bed. Please promise me you will."

Ann Marie promised him, and he went.

She was in the kitchen, heating some milk, in a saucepan when Howdy and the girls came home.

She heard an automobile stop in the drive. Then there was a rush of feet on the front porch, and the doorbell rang loudly through the quiet house.

"We forgot our key!" Jeanie explained in a stage whisper when she went to open the door to them. "We brought some of the crowd home for waffles . . . We're starving!"

At the word "waffles," Ann Marie groaned inwardly. For waffles meant a job for her . . . Neither Alice nor Jeanie knew how to make them or anything else in the way of food.

But it was too late now to refuse to do it.

For the guests were tumbling into the hall—Brooke Walters, the two Lawlers and Neal Forsythe, with Alice clinging on his arm.

Behind them all came Howdy. He had forgotten his overcoat, and his collar and shirt front were like two wet rags. His tie was a mere string.

Neal Forsythe had been laughing when he came in. But he began to frown in a puzzled way when he saw Ann Marie. He walked up to her.

"How'd you get here?" he asked, but Ann Marie did not answer him, and before he had a chance to repeat his question Alice was pulling him into the front parlor.

"Don't talk out here—our aged parent will hear you and come downstairs to break up the party!" she fibbed. For poor Mr. Macy never had a word to say about the goings-on of his children, and he was slightly deaf besides.

Ann Marie stood still in the middle of the hall and watched them all file into the back parlor. The door of it closed after them, and someone began to play "Chopsticks" on the piano.

"Whoopee" was on in the Macy house—

Back in the clean and quiet kitchen, Ann Marie began to make her batter for the waffles.

The wet soles of her slippers left little dark prints on the linoleum which had been scrubbed and walked on for so many years that it no longer had a pattern.

She sneezed once or twice as she went about, heating the waffle iron, mixing up the milk and eggs and flour in a yellow bowl.

It was while she was shaking powdered sugar on the last batch of waffles that the door-bell rang again.

A half-minute later Howdy came quickly and unsteadily into the kitchen.

"S-say, I'm out of luck," he said, and showed her a silver dollar that he had taken from his pant's pocket. "I had to telephone Banjoe for some gin, and this is all the cash I have in the house."

Ann Marie hesitated . . . She had $5 in her little coin-purse upstairs. Five dollars that she had taken out of the bank a couple of days before to pay for some new paints that she needed.

"I have it," she said, "but you'll have to pay me back—Howdy, why do you have to have gin tonight? I know that none of the crowd wants it but you—"

"Oh, horse radish!" the boy answered angrily. "The whole gang wants it—and that Forsythe bird has hollow legs. You can't fill him up. Say, are you going to let me take that coin or not? Banjoe's waiting out on the porch for it."

With a shrug of her bare shoulders, Ann Marie ran up the back stairs for the money.

When she came back Howdy had filled a tray with tall glasses, and he was chopping ice in the pantry.

Ann Marie tossed the money down upon the kitchen table and began to measure coffee into the pot that stood on the back of the stove . . . Perhaps if the crowd had the waffles and some hot coffee they would sober up and go home without making any more "whoopee" in the house that night.

Ann Marie opened the kitchen door. It was still raining and the sky was black and starless. . . but, somewhere, behind the black clouds and the darkness the Star was shining.

And Ann Marie, who had always been a religious little thing, felt strangely comforted and uplifted as she turned back into the kitchen.

The merry crowd in the parlor did not realize that it was Christmas, or care. To them it was just the tail-end of a wild evening, and they were making the most of it in their own way.

Howdy had served his drinks — "bug juice" he called them—and the merry-makers had formed a half circle on the floor around the fireplace.

Ann Marie noticed, when she came into the room with her tray of waffles and coffee, that Alice was sitting so close to Neal Forsythe that her bright head was touching his dark one. . . From the other side of the half-circle Johnny Lawler watched them with a disgusted sulky look.

"What's the big idea?" Alice asked coldly when Ann Marie came in, "Why ruin a perfectly good party with waffles?"

Ann Marie set her tray on the floor in the middle of the group.

"Jeanie thought they'd be nice," she said. "It was her idea—"

But Jeanie shook her head and giggled. "That was just the bunk," she explained. "We had to have some excuse for coming in here this late. Mrs. Leezy always kicks up such a row about bringing folks in—and I thought waffles were as good an excuse as anything."

She laughed into Ann Marie's flushed face. "Anybody but you would have known that gin and waffles don't mix, Purity!" she added, and everybody laughed.

Ann Marie was on the verge of tears as she rushed out of the room and up the stairs . . . To stand and bake waffles for those people for 45 minutes and then have this said to her!

She did not turn on the light in her room. In the darkness she kicked off her shoes, and got out of her soaking garments. She climbed into bed, shaking and shivering.

"I'm catching cold," she thought as she dropped off to sleep.

It seemed only a minute later that she woke up with a feeling that someone had called her.

She listened, sitting up in her bed . . . Outside the cold gray dawn was breaking, but the room was still dark.

The call came again—It was a call, not part of a dream! . . . "Ann M'rie!—Oh, Ann M'rie!—Oh, dear God!"

It was Mrs. Leasure's voice. She was screaming at the very top of it.

SPORT COMMENT

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

So Long, Jim.
Here's What Happened.
While You Were Gone.
It's a Small World.
Big Chance for Tolson.
Helen Fools Us.

MAX INHERITS JACK'S HEADACHES

MR. JAMES J. LONG,
Proprietor of This Column,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Dear Jim:—I hope this letter finds you well, but not painfully, sun-tanned after your vacation up in Canada with Dan Benjamin, the picture-taking guy, who helped you to kill the two weeks allotted to the pair of you. When you get to read this I'll be starting on my vacation, and, as I won't see you for two more weeks, I thought I'd sort of tip you off to what has been going on in the old home town and generally while you have been away and I have been wrecking your typewriter banging out enough stuff to fill this space.

You can draw your own conclusions about what has happened to the Pirates while you have been away. The Cubs are so far out in front of them now that there isn't enough money in the world to pay for a telegram that would come even close to reaching them. It's all over but the shouting and you needn't bother asking Barney Dreyfuss about those ticket reservations for the world series I was talking to you about.

The village has gone in for dog races in a big way. We've won back the Wightman Cup and Helen Wills has kept her National tennis title. They've banqueted Carl Kauffmann for winning the public links title a third time. McKinley Park, in Beltzhoover, has been torn up and the sandlotters up that way are organizing to get themselves a new field. Jack Zivic got in a jam over a fight with Dave McConnell down in West Virginia and they have been set down, along with Manager Luke Carney, by the boxing commission.

From all of this, and a lot of other stuff I can't recall at the moment, you can see for yourself that a lot of water has run over the dam while you have been away. I guess you had better check back over the files to get all of the dirt.

When I get back, we'll be in the midst of the football training season and will be getting ready for that world series between the Athletics and Cubs. If it isn't one thing it's another, and generally it's twins. I believe we even have a big polo series ahead of us. It certainly is funny how business keeps up.

Well, so long, old top, and keep an eye on Red Mason and those other guys while I'm gone. You sent me two post cards while you were away and I'll try to do a favor like that for you if I can gather enough ambition while getting ready to come back to work for a rest.

As ever,
Your Pinch-Hitter,
HARRY KECK.

P. S.—If you find the letter "S" on your typewriter broken, it was that way when I began to use it.

JIM LONG will be back in this department tomorrow. If that's a relief to you, just think of us.

IT WOULD appear that this is, after all, a very small woild. Take the cases of Connie McGillicuddy, for instance, or Cornelius Mack, as he is perhaps better known, the tall, thin fellow who finally has stumbled into another pennant with his Philadelphia Athletics, and Joe McCarthy, manager of the Cubs, who will battle those A's in what, for want of a better name, is known as the world series.

Connie was born in East Brookfield, Mass., and now lives in Germantown, a suburb of Philadelphia. The other Greek, McCarthy, was born in Germantown and has lived in a lot of places, finally, to his everlasting shame, winding up in Buffalo, N. Y. Can you imagine one guy who started out in Germantown, where Bill Tilden, the expert tennis writer, lives, and another guy who now graces that burg with his presence finally working around to managing teams against each other in a world series?

HA, HA! And ho, ho! Laff this one off on your laugher. The Corp. Izzy Schwartz-Willie LaMorte fight at Newark, N. J., the other night over the 15-round route didn't involve Izzy's alleged flyweight championship of the world for two reasons. One is that Izzy is recognized as the champion only in New York State and his title doesn't rate in Joisey and the other that he had his fingers crossed, anyway, so that the decision LaMorte copped over him is out like Cuddy DeMarco when Tiger Joe Randall clipped him. And, aside from all of that, they're supposed to be stablemates. Phil Bernstein manages Izzy and not long ago handled both of them in bouts in Toronto, Canada, and they may even yet eat off the same plate for all we know. That combination beats the Luke Carney-Jack Zivic-Dave McConnell, Inc., scheme of things all hollow, and nothing has been done about it.

A BIG opportunity faces Slug Tolson, the behemoth first-sacker recalled by the Cubs from their Lost Angels (beg pardon, Los Angeles) farm to replace Charley Grimm, who has a busted mitt. If the Slug gets a break of his own in the way of a chance to play in the world series, he may take his place alongside such heroes of the game as George Rohe, Chuck Deal and Joe Sewell, who were pinch-hitting for others in world series play and got their names and pictures in the papers for their fine work.

Rohe, you will remember, was the gent who jumped in at third base for the Hitless Wonder White Sox and was such a big factor in thumping Frank Chance's Cubs in the all-Chicago series of 1906. Deal, a Wilkinsburg boy, was tossed into the breach at third base for the Miracle Braves of 1914 when Red Smith broke a leg and he played an important part in the crushing of the Athletics in four straight games. (Straight games is used advisedly, as this was in the days before the Black Sox scandal of '19.) Sewell came from the campus of the University of Alabama to replace Ray Chapman

BAG-TOTERS PLAY AT OAKMONT

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The annual fight among club caddie teams for the championship of Western Pennsylvania, staged under the auspices of the caddie welfare committee of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, got under way this morning over the links of the Oakmont Country Club. The Hulton course was at its best for the tournament.

Clubs have entered four-boy teams for the tournament, none being more than 18 years of age, and the combined total of each quartet will be tabulated in the scoring—the low tally, of course, carrying off the high honors.

Individually, the boys will be playing for the West Penn Golf Association caddie championship—and this competition is also causing spirited competition among the lads, although a secondary consideration. Today's pairings and starting times follow:

12:30—Conrad Dodson, Stanton Heights Golf Club; George Hall, Longue Vue; Andrew Myers, Oakmont Country Club; Vincent Siarono, Pittsburgh Field Club.

12:40—Charles Droskey, Stanton Heights Golf Club; James Hall, Longue Vue Club; Gus Rempkiss, Oakmont Country Club; Vincent Libbon, Field Club.

1:00—William Cartwright, Stanton Heights Golf Club; William Poindexter, Longue Vue Club; Grant Gray, Oakmont Country Club; Anthony Modoffari, Pittsburgh Field Club.

1:10—George Remeco, Alcoma Country Club; Raymond De Feltro, Schenley Golf Course; Carmen Clemens, Fox Chapel Golf Club; Robert Knoth, Westmoreland Country Club.

1:20—Daniel Orlick, Alcoma Country Club; John Kuzba, Schenley Golf Course; Albert Lesniak, Fox Chapel Golf Club; Ralph Young, Westmoreland Country Club.

1:30—Henry Rakowski, Alcoma Country Club; Arthur Sekay, Schenley Golf Course; Mike Clubs, Fox Chapel Golf Club; Steve Rafe, Westmoreland.

1:40—Mike Sechoka, Alcoma Country Club; Peter Hallahan, Schenley Golf Course; Rudolph Maruskin, Fox Chapel Golf Club; Tony Vachlo, Westmoreland Country Club.

1:50—Richard Kline, Edgewood Country Club; Henry Fialls, Shannopin; William Prenninger, Highland Country Club; Marty McDonough, Country Club of Pittsburgh.

2:00—Stanley Dombrosky, Edgewood Country Club; Mike Puskiz, Shannopin Country Club; Reese Marks, Highland Country Club; Robert Rafail, Country Club of Pittsburgh.

2:10—Paul Yurigan, Edgewood Country Club; Tom Tiernan, Shannopin Country Club; Regis Wunderly, Highland Country Club; Theodore Pearson, Country Club of Pittsburgh.

2:20—Mark Evanish, Edgewood Country Club; Charles Matoka, Shannopin Country Club; Wayne Tredway, Highland Country Club; Joseph Sullivan, Country Club of Pittsburgh.

2:30—John Stanco, South Hills Country Club; John Cap, Allegheny Country Club; Frank Cardaman, Montour Heights Country Club; Mike Ehas, Greensburg Country Club.

2:40—John Koslick, South Hills Country Club; Joseph Toth, Allegheny Country Club; Joe Cardaman, Montour Heights Country Club; Joseph Delvicchio, Greensburg Country Club.

2:50—Frank McGeary, South Hills Country Club; Steve Kuzma, Allegheny Country Club; Frank Ranaco, Montour Heights Country Club; Walter Grant, Greensburg Country Club.

3:00—John Nishnick, South Hills Country Club; John Hapta, Allegheny Country Club; Frank Criancor, Montour Heights Country Club; Joseph Stevenson, Greensburg Country Club.

3:10—I. Immel, Latrobe Country Club; James Pintsman, Beaver Valley Country Club; Sam Musico, Thornburg Country Club.

3:20—R. McCracken, Latrobe Country Club; George Frederick, Beaver Valley Country Club; Spike Montgomery, Thornburg Country Club.

3:30—S. Petrosky, Latrobe Country Club; Kenneth Hill, Beaver Valley Country Club; Clyde Thomas, Thornburg Country Club.

3:40—J. Arch, Latrobe Country Club; Thomas Weilcox, Beaver Valley Country Club; Tony Ragadzo, Thornburg Country Club.

TWO OTHER EVENTS

Two other tourneys of more or less importance are being played today, but neither is in the immediate Pittsburgh vicinity. The Pennsylvania State Golf Association has carded its second one-day 36-hole medal-play tourney at the Kahkwa Club, in Erie and a number of amateurs from Pittsburgh are playing there today, especially the Oakmont contingent, which defeated Kahkwa 16 to 2 in a special team match yesterday.

Professionals from throughout the section are playing at the Wheeling Country Club, in a special tournament for them. A. J. Chapman, the home pro, and the committee in charge, have left nothing undone in making arrange-

HERRERA TOPS BUSY DISTRICT FIGHT CARD

With shows scheduled at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock; the Jolly Bowl, New Castle, and the Point Stadium, Johnstown, and Willie Davies, of Charleroi, boxing Luis Carpentero, of Toledo, at Toronto, Canada, the boxing fans of the Pittsburgh district have a lot of activity to look forward to tonight.

Tony Herrera, the Mexican lightweight star, of Chicago, and Gaston Charles, of France, arrived in town yesterday primed for their 10-round windup in the Meyers Bowl.

Ray Kiser, of Oklahoma, a stablemate of Herrera, meets Ray Newton, of Mansfield, O., in the eight-round semi-final; Alvie Miller, formerly of Youngstown, but now of Pittsburgh, boxes Johnny Smackey, Canonsburg, in the second bout, and Young Joe Walcott, of Washington, Pa., meets Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, subbing for Bob Collura, of Beechview, in the opener. Collura was injured in a bout at New Brighton last week.

Phil Tobias, of New York, and Ernie Peters, the Indian, of Chicago, furnish the windup action at New Castle, and Mickey Solmen opposes Joe Colombo, Harry Taylor meets Young Zabish and Mickey Duris engages Jimmy Ropples in 10-round bouts featuring a card for the benefit of the Johnstown club, of the Mid-Atlantic League, at Johnstown.

RIVALS CLOSELY MATCHED

Big Jack Wells, Red Mason's new heavyweight, will have very little weight edge over Harry Williams, the clever Negro lightheavyweight, when they square off in the main bout of Francis Flynn's opening show in the Moose Temple, Friday night of next week. Williams

Duray Pilots U. S. Car to Victory

ARPAJOHN, France, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—The American driver, Leon Duray, piloted a Packard Black Devil, to victory over seven French and British cars in an automobile speed record meet here yesterday. Duray negotiated one measured kilometer from a flying start in 15 6-10 seconds, an average of a little better than 144 miles an hour.

Beans Reardon, N. L. Ump, Out Of Hospital

John L. (Beans) Reardon, National League umpire, operated upon for appendicitis at St. Francis Hospital 10 days ago, left St. Francis Hospital yesterday and went to the home of a friend, George Gray, of the King Edward Apartments, where he will rest for two weeks before going to his home on the Pacific Coast.

Reardon's doctors have ordered him to take a long rest and it was said the arbiter would probably not officiate any more this season.

It became known, with Reardon's discharge from the hospital, that his case was a serious one and that for three days after the operation he was in a critical condition.

JONES RANKED FIRST AGAIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Robert T. Jones, Jr., open and amateur golf champion of the United States, continues to rank No. 1 in the list of amateurs annually compiled by the United States Golf Association for the purpose of seeding the draw in the annual amateur championship.

The U. S. G. A. today announced the seeding list for use in the match play rounds of the championship. Two lists were announced, the first 10 and a second 10, arranged in alphabetical order, to be used, if necessary, in the first 10 on account of vacancies or failure to qualify. Eight players will be seeded in the draw.

The U. S. G. A. announced that no consideration was given to the names of players who have not entered or have indicated they will not be present at Del Monte, Cal., for the championship.

Cyril J. H. Tolley, British amateur champion, will be among the eight seeded players. The first 10 players:

Robert T. Jones, Jr., Atlanta, Ga.
George Von Elm, Detroit.
George Voight, New York.
Francis Ouimet, Boston.
Jess W. Sweetser, New York.
Harrison R. Johnston, St. Paul, Minn.
Donald Moe, Portland, Ore.
Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland, Ore.
Phillips Finlay, Redland, Cal.
F. J. Wright, Jr., Boston.

BUCS RETURN AGAINST CUBS WEDNESDAY

By Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Inasmuch as the Pirates are not entirely counted out by the figures, the impending five battles with the Cubs at Forbes Field should not be without their exciting features. The fun will get under way Wednesday with a double-header.

Manager Bush announces Burleigh Grimes and Remy Kramer as pitchers for the double scrap with the Bears. The spitball ace and the big Frenchman, along with Carmen Hill and Jess Petty, went home last night to be ready for the ordeal.

Grimes has trimmed the Bears four times this year without a flareback. Burleigh had a lot of stuff Saturday in his losing tussle with the Giants, poor play and a questionable decision causing him to take his third defeat of the season. He will have had three days of rest by Wednesday and should be in good shape.

An inventive Texan gave the 10,000 fans at the Polo Grounds yesterday a big thrill by presenting a brand new idea in announcing. The stands here were wired and amplifiers installed. Beneath the spot whereon the plate umpire operates, a switch was placed which made a contact with the shoes of the announcer, who happed to be Umpire Cy Rigler. By arrangement with the league officials, Rigler consented to try out the new system of announcing balls and strikes and the idea worked like a charm. Each pitch was followed by a resonant reproduction of Rigler's voice throughout the spacious stands and the fans cheered. The idea came out of Texas where the Giants prepared for the season.

REAL COMBINATION

An observing fan in the press box yesterday pointed out that it was possible to pick from the contesting teams an infield which perhaps would be the greatest and most desirable in the game.

The stellar combination singled out by the fan would have Bill Terry at first, Fred Lindstrom at

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—One game remaining before they finish one of the worst Eastern trips in recent years, the slumping Pirates today are playing an exhibition game in Bridgeport. Tomorrow the Freebooters will be in Philadelphia for a single contest, after which they will head for home. But there will be no bands to greet them when they return. The conquering heroes of July are the fallen idols of August.

The Pirates, mathematically, are still in the flag fight, but they are so far behind the Cubs that only those of unusual optimism hold any hope for a pennant. The Cubs have an advantage of more than a dozen games, the immediate concern being whether the Buccos will be able to hold to second place.

Losing three out of four to the men of McGraw, the Pirates are only three games in front of the Manhattan foemen who have very serious designs on the runner-up position, if they cannot overtake the galloping Bears.

BUCS DEMORALIZED

After losing seven out of their last eight games and making errors by the wholesale, the members of the Pittsburgh club today made no attempt to any pennant claims as they viewed the remaining games on the schedule. The loose play around second base, the repeated switches made in an attempt to get the club out of the rut, the inferior pitching on the part of hurlers who were supposed to have more class, these and a number of other developments have thrown the club into such a demoralized condition that the whole team feel the jig is up so far as the pennant is concerned.

Out of the welter of all of this comes more weight to the presumption that a radical change will be made in the Pirates of 1930.

Pirate fans may need a guide to distinguish the club of next year. Pitchers, catchers and infielders are apt to be placed on the trading market as soon as the present season ends.

MAKE 10 MISPLAYS

The Pirates made something like 10 misplays in the games at the Polo Grounds and they were almost as loose as they competed against the Phillies.

The Pirate card for the 16 battles of the last jaunt shows only five triumphs, three of which were gained in Boston. They started out in Brooklyn by dropping three out of four, but reversed these figures at the Hub. They were given four unmerciful trimmings by the lowly Phillies and then took the bitter dose in three of the four fights on the Polo Grounds. That is sad news, and plenty of it for so-called flag-contenders.

More loose play by George Grantham gave the Buccos a push in the face in the finale of the season on the Polo Grounds. Jess Petty was giving a rare exhibition of pitching his way out of a crisis when Grantham booted a slow roller into a two-run error. Comorosky injected a double boot on top of the Grantham wobble. Mel Ott struck his thirty-second homer of the season and when the excitement subsided, six Giants had registered and the game was on the ice. Heine Meine took up the pitching burden in the fourth and finished. Larry Benton worked the full distance for the Polo Grounders. The final score was 10 to 5.

Petty engaged in one of a couple of arguments with Umpire Rigler when Cy gave Francis Hogan his base at the start of the terrible third. Hogan had three balls and one strike when Jess seemed to shoot one over the dish. When Rigler called the pitch a ball, Petty came in and spoke a warm piece to the official. It was just another of those kicks a club gets when it is going bad. Eddie Farrell followed with a double to left which put runners on third and second and Jess proceeded to reel off a flash of remarkable pitching. Benton hit a sharp liner to Brickell, who made a fine catch and threw to the plate, his fast action holding the runners. Petty fanned Fullis, and should have been out of the inning without permitting a run when Roush hit the little

MRS. HILL MEDALIST IN WOMEN'S WESTERN

TURNS IN CARD OF FIVE UNDER PAR FIGURES

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Just when it appeared that medalist honors were captured by Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, Mrs. C. S. Hill, of Kansas City, came in to edge her out by one stroke with a sparkling 77, five under par, in the Western Women's golf championship today.

Mrs. Hill scored 41, one over par, going out, and 36, six better than perfect figures, coming in, to snatch the lead. She got a par four on the thirteenth, birdie fours on the next three, and then finished out grandly in par.

STARS WITH IRONS

Beautiful irons were responsible for her great score, which came within one swipe of equaling the Mayfield course record established by Miss Van Wie several years ago. She layed her approaches dead to the pin steadily and was in the traps but twice. Her card:

Only twice was the runner-up in the 1928 National championship over par on a hole. On the first, she was in the trap with her second and was forced to take six swings on the par five hole, while on the tenth she was trapped on her first and took four to get on and two putts.

CHAMP SCORES 83

Mrs. Leona Pressler, from the San Gabriel Club, Los Angeles, brilliantly started defense of her championship by turning in a card of 39-44—83, one over par.

The champion was a trifle erratic, taking a bad six on the seventeenth hole, which is par three, but she made up for her mistakes by bagging four birdies and two eagles. The eagles came on the fifth, a par five, and on the par four twelfth. Her card:

Par out ..... 5 4 5 3 5 6 4 3 5—40

Two Meeting Places Set for Sportsmen

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 26.—Factions apparently have formed in the ranks of the Tri-State Fox Hunters' Association and two meeting places are being advertised, Burnsville and Prosperity.

At a meeting two weeks ago, it was decided to hold the annual confab at Burnsville, September 18, 19 and 20.

L. W. McLaughlin, of Prosperity, a director, claims that five members of the board met in Waynesburg and voted to hold it at Prosperity.

Sudden Eclipses

ECLIPSES often come to sport stars without any of that prophetical precision such as foretells the dimming of their astronomical counterparts. A dazzling links luminary, seemingly secure as a star of the first magnitude, is dimmed suddenly in a big tournament or two; a tennis sensation, after a few extraordinary seasons, lapses into all but utter mediocrity in the space of a few weeks; and so on through the many divisions of athletics—eclipses dim, or entirely extinguish, sportdom's celebrities with thrilling frequency.

Fortunately many such eclipses are but temporary. Myriad admirers of the justly popular Johnny Farrell sincerely hope that his golfing eclipse, which started with the American open last June, will be brief. Another army is pulling for Jess Sweetser to come back during the national amateur golf championship in California next month. Farrell's eclipse is blamed on "too much golf" since winning the U. S. title in 1928. Sweetser's came soon after he won the British amateur crown in 1926, and it was due solely to illness.

Among the most poignant of historic sporting eclipses was that of Red McLoughlin, the Comet of the Courts. His was a strenuous style of play. He was "burnt out" after a couple of seasons, dropping from top ranking to mediocrity. But what a whirling wow that "Comet" was in his halcyon days.

Like most athletes who "burn out," McLoughlin's eclipse was permanent. The great stars fight hard against that fate. Dempsey tried to come out of his Tunney eclipse against Sharkey, and all but emerged during those 14 seconds at Chicago! But the years were pinning Dempsey's legs. Father Time eclipses us all in the long run and turns out light after light—the stars, of course, included.

JONES IS DUE AT DEL MONTE

DEL MONTE, Cal., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Robert Tyre Jones, United States amateur golf champion, was expected to arrive here today from Los Angeles to put in a week of practice in preparation for the defense of his title in the 1929 National amateur golf championship at Pebble Beach, September 1 to 7.

Hammers Dethroned As Tennis Champs

JEANNETTE, Pa., Aug. 26.—In a five-set match that fired the enthusiasm of the gallery to the boiling point and gleamed time after time with the finest tennis seen in the tournament, James Hughes and Gus Wolfe, Jeannette, dethroned Edgar (Tack) Hammer and his brother, Theodore, Greensburg, in the doubles championship here yesterday. The score was 8-6, 4-6, 1-6, 6-1, 7-5.

In the mixed doubles, Edgar Hammer and Helen Carson, defending their title, and Western Pennsylvania champions, advanced to the second round by defeating Margaret Maley and Joe Cameron, 6-1, 6-3. Other scores were:

H. B. Barclay and Freddie Wheeler, Derry, defeated Katherine Cole and Sam Hibbs, Greensburg, 6-1, 6-4; Jean Scheibler, Greensburg, and Gus Wolfe, Jeannette, defeated Mickey Lampropilis, Latrobe, 6-1, 8-6; Dick Bruner, Jeannette, and Betty McKee, Greensburg, defeated Harry Garman and Mary Eagen, Jeannette, 6-4, 6-1.

when the latter was killed by one of Carl Mays' bean balls in 1920 and helped to down the Brooklyn Robins. There have been some other fresh-water world series heroes of this sort, but these stick out in memory and they may have to move over to make room for big Tolson.

ONE THING about Helen Wills' clean-cut defense of her National singles title in the play that ended last Saturday. She made rummies out of a lot of us column fillers who were prone to view with alarm her chances after the tough time she had beating Betty Nuthall in the Wightman Cup play. It looked as if she was up against it with Betty waiting to get another crack at her and Helen Jacobs also lying in wait for her, but both fell by the wayside before they could catch up to her, and Helen had easy sailing, leaving the "experts" to do all of the worrying in her behalf while she contented herself with playing the game. Such a girl! Tssk! tssk!

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, but the dizzies who first called Max Schmeling the new Dempsey knew their stuff. Maxie doesn't fight like Dempsey or punch like him, but he looks like him and you may have noticed that he has contracted the same sort of managerial headaches that harassed the old Manassa Mauler. Just now he's on the high seas bound for der Vaderland and a carload of aspirin.

FOR A WHILE, Miss Sarah Palfrey, the 17-year-old Boston tennis star, was the sensation of the National singles tournament, after having won the Eastern States title the week before. The experts raved about her personality and her game. Said she had everything. When she was beaten they were sure they were right, for they discovered that she did have everything—including a weak backhand.

Do you remember the old, filthy shop where the man in the window rolled the leaves . . . with dirty fingers . . . and spit on the ends?

What a far cry this is from the modern method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo. Each Certified Cremo leaf is scientifically treated by U. S. Government approved methods. Its purity is carefully safeguarded along every step of the way in the Certified Cremo manufacturing process.

Certified Cremo cigars are free from the danger of "spit-tipping" because they are made by amazing inventions that fill, wrap and tip the cigars in sunny, airy, spotlessly clean Certified Cremo factories.

Only the choicest, tenderest leaves are used in making Certified Cremo. Rich and ripe, they are put through a slow, expensive mellowing process that develops the fullest measure of their goodness. Finally, they are finished off with a choice, imported Sumatra wrapper.

No scraps or floor sweepings in Certified Cremo! Only long filler—only fresh, tender leaves. To safeguard the cleanliness of this wonderful quality, more than $7,000,000 was spent to perfect the method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo...a process that insures uniformly fine cigars...safe for your mouth! Crush-proof...immaculate...foil-wrapped...sanitary...the kind of cigar that the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly had in mind when he said: "What this country needs most is a good 5-cent cigar."

BRUINS, MACKS HOLD SAME ADVANTAGE

Associated Press.

The long-awaited grudge meeting between the Reds and Cubs came off in Cincinnati yesterday, but hardly as advertised. Lured by threats and counter-threats of what would happen when Messrs. Wilson, Kolp and Donohue found themselves once more within the confines of a single ball park, even so roomy a battle grounds as Redland Field, 35,432 clients appeared before the turnstiles with cash in hand.

They settled into their seats, or standing spaces, expecting at least a 10-round bout, but really hoping for a Battle of the Marne.

After all they had been led to hope for they saw nothing but two very business-like ball games played by peaceable young men who apparently did not even know how to make a hostile gesture. Red Lucas won the opener for the home team by 6 to 3, his seventeenth triumph of the season, but Guy Bush turned the tables for Chicago in the nightcap, winning his eighteenth game by a score of 10 to 1 after being held 0 to 0 by Pete Donohue for seven rounds.

CUBS 13 GAMES AHEAD

The crowd, the largest paid attendance ever accommodated at Redland Field, was not hostile to the pennant-bound Bruins, although Hack Wilson did hear a few deep-throated Bronx cheers from time to time. The fans more than made up for this, however, by the way they cheered Hack's circus catches, and he made several in the two games.

The even break enabled the Cubs to stretch their margin half a game to 13 full contests as the Pirates again bowed to the Giants, this time 10 to 5. The Bruin edge now is exactly the same size as that owned by the wily Mr. McGillicuddy in the rival league.

Lester Sweetland pitched the Phillies to a 4-to-0 triumph over the Robins in Brooklyn yesterday, allowing only four hits, and Willie Sherdel shutout the Braves in Boston by an identical score while allowing five hits.

The game at the Polo Grounds was marked by Mel Ott's thirty-second home run and by Cy Rigler's manipulation of a broadcasting device which amplified announcements of batteries and player changes to fans throughout the vast park.

After 32 scoreless innings, the master minds of the Yankees devised a plan for getting runs across the plate, at once simple and effective. It was merely to have Mr. Ruth step to the front and hammer the ball out of the lot, which he had neglected to do for some days until yesterday, as box scores of Yankee games will show.

RUTH STELLAR

Putting this plan into operation against Wally Stewart in the fourth and the ninth innings at Sportsman's Park yesterday, Mr. Ruth snapped the Yankee string of scoreless innings and lifted his personal home run total from 33 to 35, but failed to win the ball game, which the Browns did at the expense of Roy Sherid by 3 to 2. Ruth's two homers broke up a tie which had existed among the Yankee slugger and Hack Wilson and Chuck Klein.

The Athletics also lost yesterday when Al Thomas allowed just four hits to win by 3 to 0. It was three out of four for the White Sox over the leaders, who now have dropped six of their last eight.

Detroit finally won from Washington, stopping the Senators by 8 to 7 in 11 innings at Navin Field, and the Indians divided a double-header with the rejuvenated Red Sox. Cleveland took the opener by 5 to 4 and Boston the nightcap by 5 to 3.

BUCS RETURN WEDNESDAY

second, Travis Jackson at short and Pie Traynor at third.

"I'll take those four boys for my infield and you may have the pick of the world for your club," was the gist of the gentleman's statement. "Look at that infield—all big, strong fellows who can run like deers and who could kill off base hits all summer long. And after you get through pondering their defensive skill, consider what they would hit and the bases they would steal, not to remark on their spirit. My, oh, my, what a tough summer a manager would have with a club sporting that bunch on the infield."

SCHALK STILL GOOD

Ray Schalk was catching good ball before Rolly Hemsley or Francis Hogan left their cradles, yet the former star of the White Sox looked and acted like a boy when he donned the mitt and pad and went behind the plate in the late innings of the first scrap of Saturday.

Schalk is McGraw's first assistant in the leadership of the Giants, but he works under a player's contract and therefore is eligible, as well as able, to do the difficult job.

PHILLIPS WINS SWIM

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Frank Phillips, 18, Cincinnati, swimmer, outdistanced a field of 62 entrants to win the annual Ohio River marathon swimming record here Saturday. The meet was held under the auspices of the Ohio A. A. U. and the Ohio River Yacht Club. Phillips' time for the four miles and eighty yards was one hour, 17 minutes, 9 1-5 seconds.

NEW $100,000 BEAUTY

PURCHASED BY YANKEES

The New York Yankees recently purchased this 19-year-old southpaw pitching sensation from the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League, for a price said to be $100,000. He is serving his first year in Class AA baseball and leads the Coast League in strikeouts and boasts a run of 11 consecutive victories. He resembles Dutch Ruether in pitching style.

Bambino's Two Homers Boosts Hit Average

Associated Press.

Babe Ruth's two home runs in St. Louis yesterday made up most of the activity in the Big Six for the afternoon, a safety by Chuck Klein in Brooklyn and two smashes by Hornsby being the only other base hits registered. All members of the hard-swinging circle were in action. The Babe's two blows, his thirty-fourth and thirty-fifth of the season, lifted him into a lead of two in the home run race, broke a spell of 32 scoreless innings by the Yankees, and brought him to within two points of an escape from the Big Six cellar. LOCAL NETMEN VICTORS OVER GREENSBURG

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN,
Staff Correspondent.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 26.—The Greensburg Country Club racquet squad entertained Whitey McLain's Pittsburgh netmen on the picturesque club courts before a large and colorful gallery here yesterday afternoon, the Steel citizens carrying off three of the four singles tussels and the one doubles tilt engaged in to garner the decision. The meeting marked the first inter-city tennis battle staged on local rectangles in many years and from the standpoints of both interest and caliber of play, the affair proved an unqualified success.

Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. ace, accounted for Billy Ramsay, Lafayette College flash, 6-2, 6-2, in the number one encounter.

O'LOUGHLIN STEADY

O'Loughlin's steady and well-calculated baseline game, punctured by frequent opportune excursions to the barrier, circumvented Ramsay's brilliant, but erratic, sharpshooting. The home luminary was guilty of numerous double faults that cost him dearly for several broken services.

Dave O'Loughlin, 1925 and 1926 West Penn champion, hit his fastest stride of the season to down Tack Hammer, perennial Westmoreland County titleholder in straight brackets, 6-3, 6-2. O'Loughlin's ripping forehand was hitting the corners and his backhand proved unusually fast and consistent. Hammer, however, furnished powerful opposition, trading drive for drive. The fracas being much close than the tally would indicate.

STAGE SERVICE DUEL

Rinehart and Snyder staged a service duel in which the Pittsburgh performer swayed the balance with steadier ground strokes and more reliable net play, 6-2, 6-4. In the remaining singles affair McLain and Sullivan rushed forecourt to split two sets, Whitey annexing the first, 6-4, and dropping the second, 2-6, largely because of backhand misplays.

Ramsay and Snyder pushed John O'Loughlin and Rinehart vigorously in the doubles largely because of effective delivery and net play. The power of the visitors asserted itself at vital moments, however, to return a Pittsburgh verdict.

The summary:

Singles—John O'Loughlin, Pittsburgh, defeated Ramsay, Greensburg, 6-2, 6-2; David O'Loughlin, Pittsburgh defeated Hammer, Greensburg, 6-3, 6-2; Rinehart, Pittsburgh, defeated Snyder, Greensburg, 6-2, 6-4; McLain, Pittsburgh, and Sullivan, Greensburg, played a tie to 6-4, 2-6.

Doubles—Rinehart and John O'Loughlin, Pittsburgh, defeated Snyder and Ramsay, Greensburg, 6-4, 7-5.

National Net Title Goes to Jennings

BUFFALO, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—George J. Jennings, Jr., Chicago, won the National public parks tennis singles championship for the second year in succession when he defeated Jack R. Delara, Los Angeles star, in the final round on the Delaware Park courts here yesterday afternoon. The defending champion won from Delara in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

LADIES' NIGHT TONIGHT AT DOG TRACK

Ladies' night will be observed for the second time at the dog race meeting at the Bridgeville Speedway track tonight, members of the fair sex being invited to attend free of charge as the guests of the Keystone Kennel Club, operating the track.

Under the direction of H. M. Barton, the new racing secretary, what probably is the best card of the meeting so far has been arranged. It embraces eight races with many of the best dogs at the track entered. Tecumseh Blue and the Galloper, two of the most popular greyhounds at the track, will be in action again.

WINNERS STAGE DUEL

A crowd of 6,000 witnessed Saturday night's sport and saw some keenly-contested races. In the feature event, the sixth race, eight undefeated dogs went to the post and Golden Yale was the victor, turning in his fifth straight triumph of the meeting. Tonight's program, which gets under way at 8:15, follows:

He has boxed Willie Davies, Midget Wolgast, Black Bill, Frisco Grande, Blas Rodriguez, Pete Sanstol, Steve Rocco, Benny Tell and other good ones and is managed by Bob Levy, former mentor of the late Battling Siki. Tobias is a Jewish lad.

Arthur DeKuh and Italian Jack Herman meet in a 10-round bout at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., next Thursday night.

DeVOS vs. McGORGARY

Rene DeVos, the Belgian middleweight title contender, and Babe McGorgary will meet in the main bout of a Catholic church building fund show at Montauk, L. I., Friday night.

Jackie Rodgers, local Negro bantamweight, begins training today for his 10-round windup with Johnny McCoy, of Buffalo, at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night.

ARMOUR COPS WESTERN

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Tommy Armour, slender Scottish professional from the Tam O'Shanter Club at Orchard Lake, Mich., is holder of the Western open golf championship, and author of the most brilliant performance in the tournament's 29 years of history.

Armour, rated as the game's wizard of iron play, returned to the form that carried him to the National open title two years ago, shooting 72 holes over the Ozaukee Club course in 273 strokes, to finish eight strokes out in front of Horton Smith, sensational pro from Joplin, Mo. Armour's card was five strokes better than the Western open record set 24 years ago by Arthur Smith, of Columbus, O., and bettered par for the Ozaukee layout by seven strokes.

The tall Scot was under par on three of the four rounds, and his amazing 65 for the first day not only won him the medal honor, but set a new competitive record for the course. His second tour produced a 71, the only time he failed to better par 70, and his subsequent rounds were 69 and 68. Only nine times did he require more than par for a hole, and these slips were more than redeemed by 16 birdies.

Bevo Lebourveau Recalled by Mack

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Connie Mack, owner of the Philadelphia Athletics, today recalled Bevo Lebourveau, centerfielder of the Milwaukee Brewers, and has sent Osie Orwoll, utility man for the Athletics, to the Brewers on option, Louis J. Nahin, vice-president of the Milwaukee Club, announced today.

May, Dean Enter Labor Day Race

Rollin May, Michigan state champion, and Ray Dean, another speedster from the same state, were the first to send in their entry blanks for the A. A. A. automobile classic at the Pittsburgh-Bridgeville board speedway Labor Day afternoon as part of the Congress of Daredevil program being put on by B. Ward Beam.

The auto race will be only part of a pretentious card that includes a head-on collision between two cars, the "Ash Can Derby," appropriately termed the "World's Worst Race," in which only cars valued at not more than $50 are eligible.

MIDWICK TAKES TITLE

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—The Midwick Club, of Pasadena, Cal., won its second national polo title within two weeks, defeating Fort Leavenworth, Kan., 11 to 7, in the final of the U. S. Polo Association 12-goal championship.

Bill McKechnie's Candidacy Indorsed

The members of Dr. Flint's Bible class of the Mifflin Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church of Wilkinsburg yesterday went on record as indorsing the candidacy of William B. McKechnie for the position of tax collector of that borough. McKechnie, back as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, has announced definitely that he will retire from baseball in event he is elected.

The members of the Bible class, of which McKechnie is a member, have formed a boosters' club to present his qualification to the voters of Wilkinsburg. McKechnie has a legion of supporters who are aiding him in his fight for the tax collector's office.

GOLF AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

Answered by
Canadian Open, San Diego Open, Massachusetts Open, Metropolitan P. G. A. Qualifying Medal, P. G. A. Championship, 1928; Tied for Long Beach Open, 1928; San Diego Open; Canadian Open Champion, 1929.

This is a difficult shot and should be carefully played because the ball must be picked clean. The midiron or driving iron is the best club to use under the circumstances because the other, straighter faced clubs have a large possible margin of error. An open stance should be used, in order to get the ball into the air, and a strong follow-through also is recommended.

This is one of the places where it actually does a lot of good to do some concentrated thinking before playing the ball.

Oakmont Golfers Set Down Kahkwa

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 26.—Oakmont Country Club golfers won the special team match between Oakmont and Kahkwa Club here yesterday in decisive fashion, capturing 16 out of the 18 matches. Kahkwa captured two of the six two-ball foursomes to represent their only triumphs while the Hultonites cleaned up in all 12 singles matches.

Watts Gunn featured the one-day event with the medal score of 70, three above the course record set by Walter Hagen here some time ago, Gunn went out in 34 having three birdies and came back in 36 with two more, to shatter par by two strokes.

Lincoln Fields Meet Opens Today

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Lincoln Fields, improved and beautified, today claimed Chicago turf interest and offered a track program for the opening of its 30-day meeting.

Today's card, topped by the Olympia Fields handicap, $2,000 added, for 3-year-olds and up over the mile route, will be followed by six feature stakes, totaling $5,000 in value. The blue ribbon offering of the meeting will be the $25,000 Lincoln handicap, at a mile and a quarter, September 7. The closing feature will be another handicap event, the Marquette, at a mile and an eighth, and worth $10,000. Four $5,000 events are on the program.

tap to Grantham which George messed up. Two runs went over.

ERROR RUINS GAME

Grantham's error was bad, but the situation became much worse when Comorosky muffed Lindstrom's liner. Commy made a poor return of the ball for a double error, Lindstrom reaching third and Roush scoring. Terry singled to score Lindstrom and Ott rapped out his four-sacker for two more tallies that raised the total to six.

The Pirates struck back with spunk in the fourth when they made five hits, but a fast double play on the Waner boys which Farrell started held the run-making to two tallies. Brother Lloyd opened with a single but Paul hit to Farrell who soon had a double shuffle in effect. Traynor followed with a single and when Grantham's little fly to right fell for a fluke double, Traynor sprinted to the plate. Brickell beat out an infield hit and Comorosky whipped a single to right that scored Grantham.

Meine blanked the Giants in the fourth and fifth, but they reached him for three hits and a run in the sixth. Farrell's single with two out scored Jackson.

ANOTHER BARRAGE

The home boys made the seventh another big inning. Roush walked with one out and then hurried to third on Lindstrom's single to right. Terry's fly to Comorosky scored Roush and Ott followed with a double to center, scoring Lindstrom. Jackson's single to left tallied Ott.

The Freebooters struck back well in the eighth with three markers. Bartell walked with one out and L. Waner dropped a lucky double near the left field line, Dick taking third. Brother Paul scored both with a single and when Traynor hit safely to center, Paul rode to third from whence he scored on Grantham's sacrifice fly.

National Doubles Net Play Today

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—(INS.)—With a formidable entry list, play in the national doubles tennis tournament was to begin today on the grass courts of the Longwood Cricket Club, at Brookline, Mass.

There will be no defending team in the championships as John Hennessey and George Lott, the winners last year, have dissolved partnership. Nor does the entry list have the strong international flavor of 1928 as neither France nor Australia have teams entered.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Tony Herrera vs. Gaston Charles, 10 rounds; Ray Kiser vs. Ray Newton, 8 rounds, and Alvie Miller vs. Johnny Smackey and Young Joe Walcott vs. Ted Yarosz, 6 rounds each, Meyers Bowl, North Braddock.

Bloomfield Civics On Gridiron Again

The Bloomfield Civics, formerly the Brownies, will be represented on the gridiron this season by a strong team. Last season the Civics' goal line was uncrossed in eight games and, with players such as Lippicott, Ruel and Reynolds, similar results are expected this season.

Practice sessions are being held twice a week under the direction of a Carnegie Tech man. The Civics would like to open their season Saturday, September 28, or Sunday, September 29, with a suitable opponent. Any team in the junior lightweight class desiring games communicate with James Morrissey, 4074 Howley street, or call Fisk 2337-R and ask for James.

Tolson on Hand To Replace Grimm

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Charley Tolson, big firstbaseman recalled from Los Angeles by the Cubs to replace Charley Grimm, injured field captain, today was ready to go to work. He was not certain of getting into today's game with Cincinnati, as Clarence Blair who has played the position since Grimm was injured last week, has been playing excellent baseball. Blair got a double in the first game and a pair of singles in the second tilt of yesterday's doubleheader at Cincinnati.

BULLS CHARGE ON DESPITE RESISTANCE

Profit-Taking Weakens Technical Position but Trend Continues Upward

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—The bull movement on the stock market encountered considerable resistance today, as the prospect of tighter money over the month-end and fears that the rapid advances late last week may have weakened the market's technical position, prompted profit-taking.

Operations for the advance were pressed forward aggressively, however, particularly in the rails, coppers and some of the utilities, and the general price trend was maintained on the sharp upgrade.

The day's news continued reassuring. Further reports of railway July net operating income were particularly favorable, notably those of Missouri Pacific, Great Northern and Northern Pacific. Week end retail and business reviews, while indicating some tapering of retail buying, which is to be expected at this season, again stressed the extraordinary vitality of major industries for this time of year.

MONEY IN SUPPLY

Call money again renewed at 7 per cent and was in ample supply at that figure. Time money was unchanged at 8¾ to 9 per cent, but a firmer tone was noted in commercial paper, and rates for the longer maturities of bankers' acceptances were a shade higher, reflecting the increasing seasonal business requirements for credit.

Gains of 2 to 8 points were common, and in some of the more volatile issues ran to a maximum of 16½ points in Abraham and Straus. More than a score of issues once more reached new high ground. New York Central rose more than 6 points, and Pennsylvania more than 4 to a record level above 103. Chicago Northwestern and Soo Line also reached new high territory, while Hocking Valley jumped 12 and Jersey Central 14 points. Atchison and Lackawanna each rose 5 points.

COPPERS IN DEMAND

Buying of the copper shares was based on expectations of a renewed upturn in red metal prices, Anaconda advancing 3, American Smelting nearly 4 points and Greene Cananea 8. Merchandising shares were strong in anticipation of heavy fall trade, Sears, Roebuck mounting more than 8 points. In the communications shares, International Telephone and Western Union again reached record levels, the former on rumors of a new concession in France.

Stone and Webster was a feature of the utilities, selling up nearly 7 points to duplicate its previous high, on rumors of important developments to be announced shortly, and the recent appreciation of its treasury assets. Brooklyn Union Gas again reached new high ground with a wide gain.

CHEMICALS BUOYANT

Chemicals were buoyant, Allied Chemical jumping 12 points, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol 4 to new peaks. Other strong points included Eastman Kodak, Warren Brothers, U. S. Freight, and General Cable. U. S. Steel was under pressure for a time, but soon rallied, and Inland, Crucible, and Republic rose 3 points and more to new tops.

Westinghouse Electric was again under pressure of realizing, losing 6 points. General Electric lost nearly as much, and Case Threshing tumbled 11. American Water Works, Union Carbide, National Biscuit, Allis Chalmers, Simmons and Gillette slipped back 2 or 3 points.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—A weak market at Liverpool started wheat downward on the Chicago board today and with scant export business reported, wheat sagged around 2 cents below Saturday's close during the opening hour of trading. The start was ⅞c to 2⅛c lower. Other grains were weak, too, corn beginning irregular ⅛c higher to ¾c lower and losing ground afterward; oats ⅛c to ½c lower. Provisions soft.

Wheat continued to be a trading market with the early drop of around 2c ascribed generally to sympathy with Liverpool. The loss there was attributed to heavy shipments to the United Kingdom and to lack of demand from the continent. Quiet heavy demand was another bearish factor here and while trade seemed to expect eventual higher prices, there was no incentive to buyers in the day's news. The belief was general that the visible supply would show an increase today.

Corn reacted quickly to reports of rain over the Middle West and a break of about 1c a bushel occurred soon after the bell opening. There were still some reports of corn firing, but private observers said the early crop in Iowa would bring a good yield even without more rain.

LOCAL MARKET CONTINUES GAINS

Arkansas Gas and Blaw Knox Again Surpass Their Previous High Levels

The bulls again took hold of the Pittsburgh market and the upward movement of last week was resumed in exceptionally active trading.

Both Blaw Knox and Arkansas Gas were pushed into new high ground.

Blaw Knox is selling ex-dividend today but opened at 62, compared with Saturday's close at 60. This was immediately followed by a sale at 62⅛. Later in the day Blaw Knox reacted slightly on profit taking.

Arkansas again accomplished its daily task of making a new high within the first 15 minutes of trading.

Exceptional strength was evident in the entire local list. Lone Star, Devonian and Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt all scored gains in the opening transactions. United Engineering opened at 53, unchanged from Saturday's close.

Joseph Horne, which has been inactive for a long period, suddenly came into notice today. Several fairly large blocks changed hands. After opening at 33 the stock bounded to 37 in the first half hour.

Budd Manufacturing Gets Large Order

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26.—Edward G. Budd, president of E. G. Budd Manufacturing Company announces that the company has received a $10,000,000 order, shipments on which will start early in January. The company manufactures automobile bodies.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Steel Plate Orders.

New orders for fabricated steel plate during July were 46,686 tons, according to reports from 48 firms received by the Department of Commerce. This represents 61.7 per cent of capacity. In June new orders totaled 45,918 tons, representing 57.5 per cent of capacity, while in July, 1928, orders were placed for 35,959 tons or 46.8 per cent of capacity. Total orders during the first seven months of 1929 amounted to 330,300 tons or 59.5 per cent, compared to 296,442 tons and 53.3 per cent for the same period last year and with 532,810 tons and 55.8 per cent for the entire year 1928.

Lake Coal Movement.

Movement of bituminous coal to Lake Erie ports for shipment by boat to Upper Lake Erie points has been the heaviest so far this year of any corresponding period in recent years, the car service division of the American Railway Association announced. Up to August 11, 21,128,196 tons were loaded at Lake Erie ports, an increase of 3,737,104 tons over the similar period last year.

New York Air Brake Net.

New York Air Brake Company reports for the six months ended June 30 net income of $641,799 after charges and federal taxes, equal to $2.14 a share on the 300,000 no par capital shares outstanding. This compares with $439,968, or $1.46 a share in the corresponding period of 1928.

Cigaret Output Gains.

Production of small cigarets in the United States in July amounted to 10,724,402,990, versus 9,723,647,453 in July, 1928, up 19.29 per cent, according to Bureau of Internal Revenue. Production of large cigars totaled 589,282,068, versus 558,205,683 in July, 1928, increase of 5.56 per cent.

Frosted Foods in Deal.

A substantial interest in the Batchelder & Snyder Co., of Boston, one of the oldest independent wholesale meat-packing and food distributing organizations in New England, has been acquired by Frosted Foods Company, Inc., a subsidiary of General Foods Corporation, formerly the Postum Company.

Radio Forms Mexican Unit.

Radio Corporation Association Photophone of Mexico, Inc., has filed a charter with the Secretary of State. Capital is 1,000 no par shares. The company will engage in the taking of and production of motion pictures.

British Coal Exports.

British coal exports to Germany fell in the first quarter of 1929 to 981,000 tons as compared with 1,160,000 tons in the same period of 1928. The monthly average was 327,000 tons (1928, 447,000; 1927, 353,000; 1925, 347,000.)

Keith-Albee-Orpheum Loss.

Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation, controlled by Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, and subsidiaries, report a net loss for the six months ending June 30, of $446,274.

Revenue Collections.

Revenue collections for July totaled $89,819,069, against $91,026,463 in the same month a year ago, according to the Internal Revenue Bureau. Corporation income taxes declined $4,712,755.

New York Steam Report.

New York Steam Corporation reports for the year ended June 30 net income of $1,021,484 after charges and federal taxes equal after preferred dividends to $12.65 a common share, versus $974,534 in the preceding fiscal year or $11.89 a share.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

PUBLIC SHUNS POORER GRADE OF STOCKS

Marked Preference Shown For Shares of Companies That Are Well Managed

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER,

(Copyright, 1929, Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The theme which the stock market stressed last week was the prospect of further months of peak corporation profits.

There was little disposition to permit subtleties of the credit situation to divert the attention of security operators from the overtone of prosperity. Irrespective of extravagance in particular instances in capitalizing at the market place the earnings of over exploited corporations, there is abundant evidence that the present period constitutes a golden age for big business. Recognizing this, the public has shown a marked preference for shares of outstanding leaders in favored industries. At the same time, the public is staying away in droves from inferior stocks of companies whose managerial capacity in this era of heightened competition is problematical.

The rise of brokers' loans to the highest peak in the history of speculation is a reminder of the hazards of being overextended at present. Yet the market minimized the significance of the brokers' loan news, stressing the offsetting fact of an improved reserve ratio and emphasizing the fact that new issues payable during the period were unusually heavy.

INVESTMENT TRUSTS

Unquestionably, the institutional investors—the socalled investment trusts—have been heavy buyers of some of the leaders since the May reaction. As the trusts grow in number and in resources, they increase their significance in corporate affairs. The chief difference functionally between an investment trust and a holding company is that the former remains an outsider whereas the latter assumes a responsibility for the internal direction of the affairs of the companies controlled. Gradually, investment trusts en masse will become the most influential stockholders in great corporations, and, though they may be content to leave successful management untrammeled, they doubtless will interfere in case of adversity.

Heretofore, outside investors—the ordinary amateur holder of securities—have been of value to the company primarily only as a source of capital. Outside investors have been apathetic toward the details of management, frequently neglecting even to fill out proxies to exercise voting power. In effect holding the proxies of their own patrons, the investment trusts, as professional investors, may be expected to respond more intelligently to the requirements of ownership. They are not likely to be passive in times of corporate reorganization. If they live up to their opportunities, the good investment trusts will not only protect their own interests, but in times of necessity they will form a nucleus around which outside investors can rally when it is necessary to safeguard their property rights against incompetent management.

The Federal Reserve Board has called attention to the declining ratio of brokers' loan increases coming in recent months from bootleg, non-banking sources. However, last week there was a revival of this trend. The increase in loans for the account of others was larger than the total increase from all sources. Accordingly, despite the increase in brokers' loans to a new peak, there was an actual decline in the aggregate of bank credit tied up in loans to brokers.

FARM PROBLEM

The comeback in agricultural prices has temporarily relieved the stress of the farm problem, and there is a general inclination to withhold criticism of the newly-launched Federal Farm Board, of which Alexander Legge, former president of the International Harvester Company, is chairman.

James E. Boyle, farm economist, of Cornell University, said:

"The Farm Board has the opportunity of formulating and promulgating a 'big business' program for agriculture, dealing fundamentally with orderly development of land utilization, orderly production, and orderly marketing of perishables. Magnificent results may be secured. But if the Farm Board deals only with the selling problem then the board will be merely paddling and piffling and paltering with a serious problem. We are anxiously watching the board, hoping it will pass over the mere expedient and opportunistic things, and will bring to the farmer some fundamental and permanent benefit, not simply 'relief.'"

Prof. Boyle's idea is that 90 per cent of the problem is to get farmers to produce what the consumer wants.

"We are farming too much land," he said. "We are suffering from overdevelopment of our agricultural plant. When stimulated by war prices we cut down 5,000,000 acres of forest and plowed up 40,000,000 acres of sod, putting thus into cultivation 45,000,000 additional acres. Not one-fourth of this new land was needed. Consequently, during the five years ending with 1925, 31,000,000 acres of crop land went back out of use. This tragic overexpansion naturally spelled bankruptcy for many farmers. They cried to Congress for help and Congress twice passed the surplus marketing act. Twice the President wisely vetoed the bill, because it was not surplus marketing, but surplus production that was hurting the farmer. The McNary-Haugen bill would merely have increased this surplus."

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP.)—Curb Exchange prices tended downward today, although a few of the leaders in the utility, investment trust and specialty groups pressed forward to new highs. Losses, however, were mostly small. Call money renewed at 7 per cent.

The Mellon stocks—Aluminum Company and Golf Oil and the Gianinni issue, Transamerica, found favor and were pushed higher, Aluminum more than made up its last week's net loss of 10½ points, getting up to 279 on an advance of more than 18 points. Gulf rose nearly 2. Transamerica, which declared a 150 per cent stock dividend, reached a new high above 156 on a rise of more than 3 points.

Electric Bond and Share continued to march forward, but the rest of the utility group failed to follow its lead. The Arkansas Natural Gas issues both scaled a new peak, as did Cities Service. Their gains, however, were small. American Superpower, Central States Electric, Commonwealth and Southern, Electric Investors and St. Regis Paper were inclined to heaviness.

The oils, with the exception of Gulf, encountered selling pressure. Standard of Indiana scored a fractional gain, but Continental, Humble, Ohio and Vacuum all worked lower.

National Investors continued its climb into new high ground, getting up to 243, an advance of 13 points, but lost half of its gain in profittaking. Fourth National Investors—the third member of its group of investment trusts, was formally launched today. The Blue Ridge issues eased off a fraction on profittaking.

A new high was established by Anchor Post Fence. This stock has almost daily been advancing into new high ground.

The securities of two British companies were admitted to trading—Newcastle and the Underground Electric Railways Company of London.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Treasury May Employ New Method in Forthcoming Certificate Issue.

A PUBLIC offering amounting to about $400,000,000 is expected to be made by the United States treasury around the first of next month in its September financing. Treasury certificates totaling $510,624,000 will mature on September 15. About $300,000,000 of these are 4¾ per cents and remainder bear 4½ per cent coupons. The rate of interest to be paid if new certificates are issued is, as usual, the subject of much conjecture. In its June financing the treasury issue bore a 5⅛ per cent coupon when call money rates stood virtually at the present level, indicating that the rate on the new refunding operation is likely to be near that figure. However, the treasury may take advantage of the new law enabling it to issue treasury bills at a discount and bearing no interest. If so, this will be the first instance in which that method has been employed.

Among the department store issues R. H. Macy has been attracting considerable attention of late. Recent application filed with the stock exchange revealed that Macy paid approximately $25,000,000 in stock and cash to obtain control of L. Bamberger & Co. The latter is expected to prove a highly profitable unit in the Macy organization. The last half of the year brings about greater possibilities for merchandise organizations due mainly to holiday buying and present prosperous condition of the country might readily result in a record-breaking volume of business beduring the current half.

ALTHOUGH it appears obvious that the technical position of many stocks has been weakened by the sustained rise since August 10, there was no change in the character of the market in New York at the start of the new week and many of the recent favorites were again whirled into new high ground. As a result of the sensational advances recorded of late the public is again back in the financial district on a large scale and commission houses report a substantial volume of business being done both in odd and round lots. Such profit-taking as makes its appearance is termed relatively unimportant and it is well absorbed. There are many in Wall street who are perplexed over the current action of stock prices. They are at a total loss to account for the advances being scored in some issues.

With profit-taking sales holding back favorites that had led the market forward in recent sessions, traders turned their attention in other directions and successfully operated for the rise. Sears Roebuck, which had failed to keep pace with Montgomery Ward in the latter's steady advance, came to life with a brisk spurt, while R. H. Macy and Abraham & Strauss scored gains. Western Union joined in the upturn in communication shares and International Telephone & Telegraph lifted its top. But the climb to 300 inspired realizing in American Telephone. Underwood-Elliott Fisher and Eastman Kodak were issues that had been strong recently and continued in demand.

AFTER the gyrations of call loan rates in the earlier part of the summer, the financial district is enjoying the steadiness of the money market which has followed the advance in the reserve bank's rediscount rate. The recent comparative ease continued today with the renewal rate of 7 per cent in effect and money enough to meet the requirements of all borrowers. Whatever may be the cause, and there are numerous explanations, forecasters predict some firmness over the ends of the present week and month which terminate on the same day, due to month-end settlements and increasing requirements for money in the interior of the country.

Continued strength in Underwood-Elliott Fisher shares revived reports that negotiations for a merger in the business machine field involving Underwood were nearing completion. Suggestions were heard that Remington Rand might figure in the consolidation, as it has been believed the Remington Rand management is considering plans for expansion. International Business Machines was mentioned as a possible affiliate with Underwood in rounding out a complete line for the combined companies. Although reports of the proposed consolidation were rather hazy, many observers were inclined to believe developments in the field might be expected.

Grape Juice Freight Rate Ordered Cut

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Freight rates on unfermented grape juice in carloads moving in all parts of the United States, with the exception of New England territory, were found unreasonable in a decision by Interstate Commerce Commission, and reasonable rates, which will result in a reduction of 15 per cent, were prescribed.

Earnings Expanded By Great Northern

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Great Northern reports July gross of $11,544,394 against $10,121,026 in July, 1928, and net operating income $3,600,053 against $2,607,145. Seven months gross was $67,729,952 against $60,088,509 in same period 1928, and net operating income $13,693,437 against $10,049,365.

FREIGHT TRAINS SPEED UP

The heavy freight traffic now being moved by the railroads of this country is being handled with a rapidity never before equaled by them, the Bureau of Railway Economics reports.

The average speed of freight trains in June this year, according to reports for the month just filed by the Class 1 railroads, was 13.4 miles per hour, the highest average ever reached in any month and an increase of three-tenths of one mile above that for June, last year. It also was an increase of one-tenth of one mile above that for May this year.

The daily average movement per freight car in June was 32.4 miles, which exceeds the previous high average for any June on record, having been 2.1 miles greater than that for June, 1928, and 2.4 miles greater than that for June, 1927.

In computing the average daily movement per day, account is taken of all freight cars in service, including cars in transit, cars in process of being loaded or unloaded, cars undergoing or awaiting repairs and also cars on side tracks for which no load is immediately available.

The average load per car in June this year was 26.7 tons, including less than carload lot freight as well as carload freight. This was an increase of four-tenth of a ton above that for June, 1928, but a reduction of three-tenths of a ton under June, 1927.

Roth May Resign As Copperweld Chairman

It was reported today that J. M. Roth will resign as chairman of the board of directors of the Copperweld Steel Company.

Roth is the inventor of the hot molten welding process patent for making copperweld wire and other products. He sold the patent to the Copperweld Steel Company, of which he is the founder. He served as president from its inception to 1926, when he resigned to become chairman of the board.

Mr. Roth's resignation, it is reported, is pending because of a desire to devote his entire time to his investment business and other interests.

California Crude Production Lower

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—California daily crude oil production for week ended August 24, totaled $878,500 barrels against 879,500 barrels for the previous week, a decrease of 1,000 barrels. Total number of wells on production for week ended August 24 was 10,424 against 10,414 for the previous week, an increase of 10 wells.

PIERCE ARROWS EXPORTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—"Unit volume of Studebaker Corporation exports for this year will be below figu set in 1928, but dollar volume of export sales will closely approximate the 1928 record because of increased demand for the higher priced eight-cylinder models, with a correspondingly larger margin of profit per unit," said H. S. Welch, president of Studebaker-Pierce-Arrow Export Corporation, before sailing aboard the S. S. Bremen for a short business trip in Europe.

"Although Studebaker exports will not duplicate their increase in 1928 when a gain of 41 per cent was recorded over the previous year, the company is doing a very satisfactory business, with substantial increases in the Scandinavian countries, Holland and Spain, and with a widespread gain in exports of commercial vehicles," he stated. "Pierce-Arrow exports have shown continued improvement since the formation of the joint export corporation and the volume of Pierce-Arrow overseas sales for 1929 will be greatly in excess of any previous record.

"The European market offers a particularly good field for American trucks and commercial vehicles and will probably absorb approximately 80 per cent of the total production of commercial cars in the United States for 1929. In the passenger car field, the elimination of the excessive horse-power taxes in practically all European countrise has substantially stimulated demand for cars of higher horse-power, in line with American standards."

Asks Court Review Of P., W. Va. Decision

CINCINNATI, Aug. 26.—Counsel for Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad Company and minority stockholders of the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad asked the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to review its decision of last June granting the appeal of Wheeling and Lake Erie and Cleveland Terminals Company from the decree of the District Court at Cleveland, which enjoined them from leasing the Wheeling terminal property to the new Union Station Company at Cleveland.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 1 to 12 points in response to steady Liverpool cables and reports of continued dry weather in the South. Prices held quite steady during the first few minutes but the weather map seemed to afford some encouragement for expectation of showers in the Southwest and prices eased off after the early demand had been supplied.

By the end of the first half hour active months were about 3 to 6 points net lower under liquidation and local selling while there was also selling here for New Orleans account. October sold off from 18.61c to 18.45c and March from 19.13c to 19.10c.

Private cables reported trade calling and covering which had absorbed some hedge selling and liquidation in the Liverpool market.

The reactions from the early advance carried the market off to 18.42c for October and 19.02c for March, making net declines of about 5 to 9 points. The official forecast, however, failed to encourage the hope of showers in the Southwest, as it called for generally fair weather in West Texas. The market steadied later in the morning on covreng.

Midday prices were about net unchanged to 5 points higher, with October quoting at 18.53c and March at 19.11c.

CANADA EXPORT TRADE OFF

Foreign trade of Canada declined in aggregate value in July for the first time in many months, compared with the corresponding period last year, the figures being $221,471,000 this year, against $230,771,000 in 1928, says the Bank of Montreal's August Business Summary. Decline in the value of wheat shipments accounts for much more than this recession, wheat exported having dropped to $20,373,000 from $42,281,000 in July of last year.

The state of domestic business reveals no special features, being satisfactory as a whole, with retail trade profiting from an unprecedentedly large tourist traffic.

Iron and steel industries are well employed; cotton textile mills operate at about 70 per cent of capacity; production of artificial silk is at a higher ratio; boot and shoe factories are moderately busy; wholesale trade is at normal summer level.

While the ratio of output to capacity of Canadian newsprint mills was slightly lower in July than in June or May, it was exceeded in only three months last year. Volume of production reflects growth of capacity. Thus, at a lower ratio, production in July was 4,003 tons more than in June, and 44,846 tons more than in July, 1928. In the last seven months Canadian output has reached 1,540,367 tons, an increase of 14 per cent over 1928, while production in the United States in the same period, 809,287 tons, shows a decrease of 2 per cent. As late as 1925 newsprint production in the United States was larger than in Canada; now production in Canada is nearly double that in the United States. Prices are stable.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The raw sugar market was quiet early today, and as no sales were reported prices were unchanged at 3.83c for spots, duty paid.

Raw futures were irregular during early trading, but aside from September, which opened 2 points off under liquidation in advance of first notice day tomorrow, prices were steady on covering and a little commission house buying and generally unchanged to 1 point above the previous close. Trading was quiet and consisted principally of September liquidation and exchanging from that delivery to late months. Fluctuations during the remainder of the forenoon were narrow, with the list at midday about 1 point lower to 1 point higher.

What little new buying was in evidence was supplied through second hands at from 5.20 to 5.25c. Refiners quoted 5.50c.

THE WRECK OF THE NANCY LEE

By JEAN PLANNETTE.

(With no apologies whatsoever to Joan Lowell)

IT was Mother's Day and the schooner Nancy Lee was going on the racks.

"If a sou'nor'wester comes up afore dawn, the Nancy Lee is doomed!" said the mate. Just then a sou'nor'wester came up.

"Thank Heaven!" said the skipper, running up at the moment, "the Nancy Lee is saved!"

"Saved—me eye!" the mate said and punched the captain in the nose.

"Mutiny!" the captain shouted and began to sob. But just then Jack Robinson, the second mate, came running up before anyone could say "Jack Robinson." Quelling the mutiny with his stern glance, he knelt at the feet of the captains daughter.

"Rachel," he said, and if you will believe it, his stern voice quivered, "Rachel, I want—"

"No, no! You don't understand!" cried Jack, "Im not asking you to—"

"Yes—yes—I know—you don't need to tell me—I know MEN!"

"Rachel!" Jack's voice was stern now, for the Robinsons have always been proud. "I wouldn't harm a hair of your head!"

"Quiet, Jack Robinson!" shrieked Rachel, "I wouldn't marry you now if you were the last man on earth!"

"I didn't ask you to marry me," he said hotly, "if you had let me finish—"

But a smile had broke on Rachel's face and a great light of understanding was in her eyes. She held out her arms.

"Jack, my darling!" she cried, "I didn't understand!"

Congress Should Authorize Trial by Jury of Contempt Cases Except When Committed in Presence of Court

Further limitation must be placed by the Congress upon the power of Federal judges to punish for contempt if the American people are to be adequately protected from the abuse of that power by the lower Federal courts.

Down to the early part of the eighteenth century cases of contempt by persons not officially connected with the court were tried by jury except where the offender confessed or when offense was committed in the actual view of the court."

But after the Star Chamber appeared on the scene, as two professors of the Harvard Law School have pointed out, it assumed authority over contempts of any court and asserted its power by punishing summarily for contempt.

Gradually the summary process of the Star Chamber crept into the common-law courts. But not until 1720 do we find any instance in common law precedents of punishment otherwise than after trial by jury.

Ever since 1883 attempts have been made in Parliament to purge the English courts of this ugly inheritance from the days of the Star Chamber. But the bills introduced have yet to pass.

As long ago as 1896 this whole question was thoroughly investigated by the United States Senate, through its committee on the judiciary.

As a result of that investigation remedial legislation passed the Senate and was favorably reported to the House, but before the bill came to a vote the session ended.

It is high time that the Judiciary Committees of both Houses of Congress investigated this whole question anew in the light of the arbitrary action of the Ohio judge who has recently punished for contempt two Cleveland editors.

Those editors were not given a trial by jury. They were made the victims of the wrath of an irate judge whom they had courageously criticized for issuing what they believed to be an utterly illegal injunction.

Congress can and should protect the American people from such abuse at the hands of any Federal judge, and the Legislatures of the several states will probably follow the example of the National Congress.

The way to abolish judicial tyranny is for Congress to purge Federal procedure of its inheritance from the days of the Star Chamber and AUTHORIZE THE TRIAL BY JURY OF ALL CASES OF CONTEMPT EXCEPT WHERE THE ALLEGED CONTEMPT IS COMMITTED IN THE PRESENCE OF THE COURT.

'Air Mark' Your Town It May Save Lives

If you were to take an automobile trip into unfamiliar territory, and were to find the roads unmarked, you would be annoyed. It probably would be necessary to stop the car many times and make inquiries.

It would be a still more serious matter if you were to travel along unmarked airways, for it is not practical for an aviator to stop at every strange town and inquire its name and in what direction and how far away the air port is for which he is aiming.

If a flier finds he is going to have to make an emergency landing a sign telling him where the nearest landing field is may save his life, as he may otherwise come down in a dangerous place.

For these and other good reasons the authorities on aviation have requested that every town put up without delay a sign to guide fliers. The request has come from the State Aeronautics Commission at Harrisburgg, the Department of Commerce at Washington, the Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and many others.

Western Pennsylvania towns should be, and doubtless will be, quick to answer the appeal.

The signs cost only a few dollars. They can be put up in a few hours. Almost any large roof will do.

Who should put up the sign? Perhaps you can have it done yourself. If not, ask your chamber of commerce, your town council, your service club, your civic association, to help.

What About Oil?

And the Sherman Law.

Some big oil men, partly because of a desire to protect the nation's oil wells from waste, chiefly from a desire to protect their own pockets and the prices of their stocks, planned an agreement to limit the oil output.

They understood that President Hoover was in favor of protecting the country's oil supply, and everything seemed smooth and rosy.

Then the new Attorney General, Mitchell, told the oil men, "I can't approve any agreement to limit oil production. That would be a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law." Now the oil men wonder whether Mr. Sherman's Anti-Trust ghost is to be taken out for a little exercise in this administration, or whether the administration wants to show that it is a foolish ghost and ought to be abolished, to permit big business to grow without going to jail.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

JIM has a Mean Woman in his family circle.

Jim thinks that's a novelty. What a lot that boy has to learn!

Be that as it may, this Mean Woman is, according to Jim, the world's worst Mischief Maker.

Her name is Lydia. She is forty-three years of age, a disappointed spinster. She's not an ordinary nag or gossip. She has developed Hellraisin' into a fine art.

Her chief joy in life consists in starting riots. Usually she begins with some fragment of truth, some frail filament of scandal. Slowly, painstakingly, with the zest of a scientist and the joy of an artist, she proceeds to develop her case. A whisper here—a hint there—a sigh of sympathy to a peevish wife—a seemingly reluctant word of advice to an aggrieved husband—and phone calls ad lib—and the thing is under way. By the time she is through she has a young war on her hands, with half a dozen families involved and everyone reaching for a throat hold. Then she sits back and looks innocent. But secretly she licks her chops over a good job, well done.

"But why does she do it?" cries the bewildered Jim. "Everyone's nice to her. Yet there isn't one of us she hasn't knifed. And I'll be daggoned if I can figure out why she gets that way."

Why does she get that way? Why does she make cussedness? FOR EXACTLY THE SAME REASON THAT OTHER PEOPLE MAKE BLESSEDNESS.

Life is always urging us to DO SOMETHING. Always teasing us to ACT.

Life PREFERS constructive action. It wants to BUILD UP—to PRODUCE. Study a healthy tree, or plant or animal—or a healthy human. They build. They produce. They produce acorns and seeds and nests and houses and babies.

Normal life builds—builds useful things and happy relationships. But life isn't always normal. Sometimes sickness or shock or disappointment or grief or envy or fear have turned it from its natural plan. It becomes a twisted life. BUT THE URGE TO ACT STILL GOES ON.

THEN, INSTEAD OF ACTING CONSTRUCTIVELY, IT ACTS DESTRUCTIVELY.

Construction and destruction seem very far apart, but they are both action. But one is healthy action and the other unhealthy action. YET THEY SPRING FROM THE SAME URGE.

That's how Mischief Makers get that way. When they get that way too far the doctors call them neurotics or psychopaths, and they press closer and closer to the thin line of insanity. It's hard for normal folks to understand such twisted natures. Their pride in their vicious work seems fiendish to us. But it springs from the same source as our pride in our valuable work. Life has accomplished SOMETHING—even if it's a BAD something—and life is proud.

Every writer has intimate, exasperating experience with "Lydias"—both male and female. Many people make a regular business of heckling writers. These people usually want to be writers themselves. They wish to exert power—to be admired and respected. But they have neither the talent or the energy to attain their desires. So they are filled with envy. And they express their envious desire through vicious, anonymous letters and bitter criticism.

These letters comfort them and give them a strange, perverted sense of satisfaction. They feel that they, too, have accomplished something.

Life, with its restlessness, is the most beautiful and the most terrible force on earth. It must raise SOMETHING—and if it can't raise anything else it will raise cain.

Bible Passages

Christ's Ascension

(The Acts 1, 1-12)

THE former treatise have I made, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and teach.

Until the day in which he was taken up, after that he through the Holy Ghost had given commandments unto the apostles whom he had chosen:

To whom also he showed himself alive after his passion by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God:

And, being assembled together with them, commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father which, saith he, ye have heard of me.

For John truly baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence.

When, they therefore were come together, they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?

And he said unto them, It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father has put in his own power.

But ye shall receive power, after the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.

And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight.

And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel;

Which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven, this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.

Then returned they unto Jerusalem from the Mount called Olivet, which is from Jerusalem a sabbath day's journey.

THE Jack Horners of the medical world have been comparing physiological plums at Harvard. Ask your doctor if he is keeping track of their discoveries.

If he ISN'T following the latest fashions in surgery and pathology, you're likely to miss the benefit of investigations that may decide a close battle between life and death.

For instance, he should know that research has finally detected a ray between light and heat, by means of which photographic plates register organic changes that the strongest microscope fails to perceive.

The exactness of diagnosis is thus immeasurably advanced and limitless opportunity afforded to forestall internal trouble in its primary stages.

"Cyclopropane," another anesthetic, challenges "amytal" for championship in the reduction of operation risks.

It ALSO works in a flash, produces unconsciousness at one whiff, instantly disconnects the nerve centers from the area of pain, and likewise brings the patient through his surgical ordeal without upsetting either heart or stomach.

Speaking of insurance, the end of 1929 will find ONE HUNDRED BILLION DOLLARS of underwriting in force.

Less than a century ago, NOBODY carried provision for dependents. But, lest we pat ourselves TOO heartily on the back for present forethought, the official bulletin, which informs us of the fact, begs to remind the public that this staggering amount represents only ONE year's national earning power.

In other words, most of us have arranged to leave a mere annual income to the missus and children.

An industrial sales manager, considering the figures, would be inclined to say that life insurance hasn't BEGUN to sell its goods.

Perhaps the most encouraging message broadcast from Cambridge is the information that carbon dioxide is the long missing remedy for the consolidation of lung tissues in pneumonia cases. And THAT'S what makes pulmonary attacks so fatal.

Nobody has claimed sight of the flu germ. But let's at least congratulate ourselves that a method has been found to defeat its ULTIMATE aim.

ERNEST TSO, a Chinese delegate, acquaints his confreres with a substitute for cow's milk. There are practically no kine in his land, so ingenuity has contrived a stop-gap, compounded of soaked soy beans, starch, sugar, salts, cod liver oil and cabbage water.

What's more, clinical charts attest that children fed with the concoction thrive quite as heartily as on mother's milk.

One of fiction's favorite prophesies is the concentration of meat equivalents into a pill-sized meal. And somehow or other, the notion doesn't seem so preposterous as it USED to.

Nature is a wasteful manufacturer and goes to an awful lot of bother to furnish the essential elements of nutrition.

Laboratories are doing so MANY of her jobs at LESS expense and fuss, that a bright young test-tube may YET manumit civilization from dependence upon the pasture and packing plant.

In which case, we could utilize beef, pork and mutton exclusively for pharmaceutical benefit and devote their substance entirely to curative purposes. Sweetbreads, liver and glands shouldn't be wasted for food—MATERIA MEDICA needs every ounce of 'em.

And the LATEST derivative from offal promises such marvels that the news scarcely dares CREDIT the report.

In brief, we are led by two independent groups of investigators to expect prolonged life from "inter-renalin"—a first cousin to adrenalin.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up fairly betimes and in a restaurant for breakfast a wag had a waiter puzzled and perspiring by asking his eggs be eliminated. There was also a bearded gentleman pointed out as a favorite of the Czar, albeit I thought all of them were carriage starters.

So through town and talked to Karl Hoblitzell, the southwest vaudeville magnate, and also saw Charles B. Driscoll, home from his junket to pirate dens in Spain and elsewhere. Home and labored four hours without looking up from the typewriter, dizzy, and happy, too, at my industry.

In the evening with my wife to a dinner and Laura Cobb, Irvin's wife, and their daughter Laura Chapman Cobb, from Italy, there and we had thinly sliced venison steak, rich brown pan gravy, black eyed peas, wild rice and a salad of avocados. To bed in great content.

Hobbies, peculiarly enough, have a greater and more lasting hold in a big city than upon those who endure the monotonous tedium credited to the prairie cottage or the village street. Three out of five city men, statistics show, are riding a hobby of some sort.

Postage stamp and coin collectors have their clubs and meetings that are largely attended in the metropolis. There are many periodicals dealing with this phase of mental relaxation and down in Jacksonville, Fla., is a monthly magazine dealing with hobbies of all descriptions.

Nearly every millionaire eventually becomes a collector. Morgan's art collection is, of course, world famous. Henry L. Doherty has a remarkable collection of prints of early New York. Another millionaire's hobby is known as Circusania—that is the collection of cuts of the circus and old time wagon shows.

A rich bachelor has a collection of shaving brushes—1,543 in all from all parts of the world. One man in East Seventieth street has an entire floor of his home given over to conch shells. Phil Baker collects accordions and has more than 100. Women, it is said, are not so eager about collecting.

Highly bred dogs are frequently congenitally deaf and others are often made that way by having ears clipped too close. A number of deaf dogs have been cured by aeroplane flights—the atmospheric pressure of the altitude having some affect on the aural tubes. A veterinary near Mineola arranges to take dogs for experimental flights for $50 but does not guarantee a cure.

The dog doctor with a class clientele reaps substantial rewards in New York. Most of them have hospitals in connection with their offices, where sick dogs are cared for and where others are boarded while owners are away. The canine specialist charges $2 for an office visit and $5 for visiting the home during the day. Night calls are $10. One occupies an entire six-storied house in the seventies and employs a staff of 12 attendants. In Westchester are several select boarding kennels where a charge of $100 a month is made for the care and feeding of the highly pedigreed pooch. And you can almost send a boy off to Yale and get him refined for that.

Another sartorial synchronization for the well dressed man is an autumn leaf brown suit with a pink shirt and collar and light tan tie. The combination is seen frequently at those fashionable tea places where the bloods congeal.

* * *

And—if they go on dressing that way people will begin to talk—there is still another fashion plate who is featuring a light brown felt hat with a baby blue band.

THE MOON

By Archibald Henderson

DESPITE the connotation of the name of the planet Venus, the most romantic of all the planets is the Moon. It is popularly supposed, and not without cause, to have a magic effect upon paired members of the human race, of opposite sexes. It is believed to have caused more proposals of marriage than all the other planets put together. There is something mysterious about this beautiful, luminary of translucent glow; dogs lose their customary poise at the sight of it and "bay the Moon" with singular persistence, to the great nuisance of would-be slumberers.

The Moon exerts a powerful gravitational effect upon the earth; and some day we shall tell of the extraordinary effects it exerts in producing the tides. Much time and thought has been devoted to the study of the Moon; and yet we know very little about it.

Judged by inter-stellar measurements, the Moon is quite near to us. In round numbers, the distance of the Moon from the earth is 240,000 miles. Although it makes a sufficiently formidable and impressive looking heavenly body, especially when near the horizon, the Moon is not large. It has a diameter, or distance straight through its center from one side to the other, of about 2,163 miles. Thus, it is slightly more than half the size of Mars. With our present telescopes, we can conveniently use a scale of 100 miles in measuring the surface of the Moon. A speck on the Moon, the size of a city block, is visible through the telescope.

One of the puzzling features about the moon is what seems to be its vanity. It always turns its best side toward us. Depending upon our sex, we always see "the man in the moon" or "the girl in the moon." How is this possible, if the earth and the moon are both rotating, each upon its own axis; and each is revolving in its own orbit? We should naturally expect to have a different face or side of the moon constantly turned toward us. But this is not the case. We always see the same face—the same portion of the moon's surface.

The moon makes a circuit about the earth every 27 and a half days. The plane of its orbit is just about the same as that of the earth's around the sun. The gravitational attraction of the sun on the moon is about twice that of the earth upon the sun. Why, then, does it not show every side of its face to us and not keep one side always turned toward the sun? A little reflection will give the answer.

The sun is 400 times as far from the earth as is the earth from the moon. Hence the sun, although so very much larger than the earth, does not exert nearly so large a gravitational force, because of its vastly greater distance away. The moon would have to be 1,330,000 miles from the earth, Lepper has pointed out, to enable the sun to convert the moon from a Satellite of the earth into a primary planet.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

IF YOU cannot indulge in your favorite game or sport without losing control of your emotions, you better not engage in such pastimes.

Cussing over poor plays, making constant alibis for your poor showing, becomes very tiresome to those who are associated with you.

If you used good reasoning you might become more philosophical concerning the ups and downs of your game.

In your work, something to which you have devoted your life and much study, there are days when you cannot accomplish all you wish.

Do you literally tear your hair and swear?

Indeed, no, but you make a greater effort to concentrate on the duty at hand and make just as much progress as your "off day" will permit.

If you allowed yourself to be agitated over mistakes in your daily work you would be looking for another job soon.

Why not apply the same control to your sport as to your business?

Success in work or play is largely a matter of self-control, and there is need for you to exercise it.
